Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, April 9.—The Pope passed a bad night, the high fever and palpitation of the heart rendering sleep impossible. His condition caused serious apprehension, owing to his increasing drowsiness, amounting almost to stupor, and convulsions similar to epileptic fits. Dr. Amici, who spent the night at the Pope's bedside, resorted to frequent hypodermic injections, which rendered the heart beats more regular.

Toward dawn the Pope's condition slightly improved, and his fever diminished, enabling him to get a few hours' sleep.

When Prof. Marchiafava visited the Pope at half past 7 in the morning he found the patient greatly depressed. Stimulants were administered, and it was reported to Cardinal Merry del Val that the condition of his Holiness was satisfactory. It was decided that it was not necessary to issue an official bulletin.

The Pope's two sisters and his niece went to the Vatican at 8 o'clock and remained at the bedside until 10, when they returned to their house.

Drs. Marchiafava and Amici revisited the Pope at noon and at 4 in the afternoon. They found his condition unchanged, but later he had another convulsion and again became slightly feverish. Hypodermic injections were again given, but caused temporary local irritation, which considerably troubled the patient.

Extraordinary precautions were adopted at the Vatican to prevent news regarding the Pope's illness from leaking out. All the doors leading to the antechambers were guarded by Swiss guards and gendarmes and nobody was allowed to enter the Pope's bedroom except his doctors, sisters, two secretaries, and valet. Cardinals, diplomats, prelates, and members of the nobility who called at the Vatican to make inquiries were received by the Major Domo, who invariably gave a reassuring report.

The official optimism prevailing at the Vatican was also shown by the evening's statement in The Osservatore Romano, which said:

"We are enabled to announce a notable improvement in the Pope's condition after yesterday's relapse.

"Audiences will not be granted until further orders."

Diplomats accredited to the Holy See yesterday telegraphed to their Governments that the Pope's death was a question of days, perhaps of hours. Moreover, the Eucharistic Congress at Malta is likely to be postponed.

On the other hand, although the Pope's illness is serious and likely to be fatal, his recovery is not yet hopeless. Prof. Marchiafava says he may live for several months. The prevailing impression is that his Holiness will not die suddenly. His great weakness is the real danger.

It is generally believed that the official statements are altogether too hopeful, and that they are simply an attempt to conceal the distressing truth.

Countless messages from all over the world have been received at the Vatican. Among the great number of callers there to-day were Martin Maloney of Philadelphia and his daughter. Mr. Maloney, until the day of the Pope's relapse, served as a Papal Chamberlain and saw his Holiness daily. He was under the impression that the Pontiff had quite recovered, particularly since, three days before he was stricken, he received thousands of pilgrims, showing great animation and delivering an address on the rights of the Church and the liberties it should enjoy instead of the persecution it suffers in various countries. It is quite likely that the Pope's relapse was due to overexcitement on that occasion.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, April 10.—The Rome correspondent of The Daily Express says the serious condition of the Pope is due to a two and a half hours' argument with Cardinal Katschthaler, Archbishop of Salzburg, at the Vatican on Monday afternoon.

Cardinal Katschthaler came from Vienna to beg the Pope, on behalf of Austria, to declare a Roman Catholic protectorate over Albania and to intrust the same to Austria. The Pope refused and the lengthy conference which followed proved too much for his Holiness in his weakened state of health.

Treasury Officials Almost Put His Portrait Upon Canal Bonds.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—New Democratic officials of the Treasury Department to-day almost succeeded in conferring the first Governmental honor upon Col. George W. Goethals in recognition of his success in building the Panama Canal. They had decided to order the engraving of his portrait on Panama Canal bonds, when in the nick of time it was discovered that the law forbids placing the picture of any living person upon the currency or Government bonds. The Chief Engineer of the Canal would have to die to receive such a distinction.

The portrait was to have been placed upon new $10,000 registered Panama Canal bonds of 1961, a denomination which the Treasury Department to-day decided to issue for the sake of convenience. Previously these bonds have been issued in denominations of only $1,000 and under.

WILSON IMPRESSES GIBBONS

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, April 9.—Cardinal Gibbons visited President Wilson yesterday afternoon and to-day expressed his pleasure in the experience of meeting the Executive.

"My only regret," said the Cardinal, "is that I did not have a longer time to spend with him. With the Rev. Dr. William T. Russell, rector of St. Patrick's Church in Washington, I arrived at the White House at twenty minutes after 2 o'clock; but as it was an inopportune time for Mr. Wilson, and as he was extremely busy, we only stayed a short time. But that was really my own fault, as I myself selected the time for the visit.

"My visit to the President was purely a social one, and we refrained from talking of business matters. During the time that I was with him the President and myself chatted very pleasantly. I was deeply impressed by the visit to President Wilson and I found him to be a fine gentleman."

CUT 100 TELEPHONE WIRES.

For two hours early last evening the newspapers of this city were unable to get in touch by telephone with their branch offices at 6 Centre Market Place, where the reporters assigned to cover Police Headquarters have their offices. Boys got on the roof of a three-story building next door, at 4 Centre Market Place, and, with an axe, cut away about twelve feet of lead pipe, inclosed in which were nearly 100 telephone wires connected with various places in the district, including all the wires to the newspaper offices in No. 6.

Cosmos Peterson, employed by the New York City News Association, and Robert Maninsi of 2 Central Market Place, started out to do some detective work. At 167 Mulberry Street they saw three boys in the cellar, cutting up the cable into small pieces. Peterson and Maninsi went to Police Headquarters, and Detective Lieut. Cassassa and Detective Fogarty accompanied them to the Mulberry Street address, where they surprised the three boys and placed them under arrest.

The boys are Dominick Dendile, 10 years old, of 167 Mulberry Street; Tony Ticarelle, 12 years old, 182 Mulberry Street, and Michael Masselli, 10 years old, 109 Mulberry Street. They were sent to the Children's Society.

MALONE TO BE BRYAN AID.

O'Gorman's Son-in-Law Expected to be Third Assistant Secretary.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Dudley Field Malone of New York is to be appointed Third Assistant Secretary of State, according to reliable information obtained here to-night. It is expected that his nomination will be sent to the Senate by President Wilson next week. The present incumbent of this office is Chandler Hale, a son of ex-Senator Eugene Hale of Maine.

In recent years the Third Assistant Secretary of State has come to be regarded as a sort of ambassador to society. He is commonly referred to as the social manager of the Government. These designations grew out of the practice of assigning the Third Assistant Secretary to the duties of receiving titled and other distinguished official visitors to the United States, and he usually accompanied guests of the Nation on tours of the country. Of course the Third Assistant Secretary of State has other and more important functions to perform.

Mr. Malone has the friendship of President Wilson, and he is on the best of terms with Secretary of State Bryan. He is a son-in-law of Senator James A. O'Gorman of New York, but Senator O'Gorman did not recommend Mr. Malone for any office. The latter was mentioned as a likely choice for United States Attorney for the Southern Judicial District of New York. The post of Assistant Attorney General in charge of customs cases for the Port of New York was also offered to him.

START DIGGING, SAYS MAYOR

Time to Stop Celebrating Signing of Subway Contracts, He Writes.

In a letter to ex-Alderman Alexander S. Drescher yesterday Mayor Gaynor expressed the belief that it was time to cease rejoicing at the completion of the Subway contracts and to get down to the actual digging. Mr. Drescher had written to invite him to a dinner at Brownsville next Thursday, and the Mayor replied:

City of New York,
April 9, 1913.

Dear Mr. Drescher: I thank you for your invitation to the dinner at Brownsville on April 17 to celebrate the signing of the subway operating contracts, but I shall not be able to attend. And I feel that it is now time to set our minds on something else. It is true that the subways and rapid transit roads have been laid out, and that the contracts with the operating companies have been made. But it yet remains for the city to construct the roads. That is the important thing. What we now want is that the Public Service Commission advertise for the construction contracts, and get the work under way as soon as possible. Let us therefore cease our jollification over what has been done, and the praising of those who were in the doing of it, and proceed to do the actual work of construction. Yours very truly,

W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

Alexander S. Drescher, Esq., 760 Howard Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Since the Subway contracts were signed the commission has arranged for the opening at an early date of the loop line and the Fourth Avenue (Brooklyn) lines by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit, and has urged the Interborough to take up the operation of the portion of the Steinway Tunnel already completed.

WILSON REVISITS CAPITOL ON TARIFF

EXPECTS PARTY AGREEMENT

House Caucus Backs Up Underwood Rates—Sugar Proposal May Affect Cuban Tariff.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—President Wilson took another step in carrying out the policy he announced to the joint houses of Congress yesterday in bringing himself more directly in touch with the legislative business of the Government. While the House Democrats in secret caucus were discussing the new Tariff bill item by item, the President, accompanied by four Secret Service men and Secretary Tumulty, motored to the Capitol, occupied the President's room, and conferred for an hour and a half with the Democratic Senators of the Finance Committee, which will handle the tariff measure in the Senate.

The precedent which Mr. Wilson set aside in thus calling on Senators for conference at their end of the Capitol, instead of inviting them to the White House, is less than half as long as that which he set aside when he addressed the two houses of Congress in person. The last President on record to use the President's room on days other than the closing day of the session, for the purpose of signing bills passed in the final hours, was Abraham Lincoln. In the stress of war times, when, as Asher C. Hinds, the parliamentary recorder of Congress, says, "all of us were brothers," President Lincoln frequently lounged in his democratic way at the Capitol, and there talked with the Senate leaders about important legislation.

The President's visit to-day dealt exclusively with the tariff, the means of getting the bill through the Senate, the obstacles in the measure's path, the chances of its ultimate success, and the possibility of concessions to keep the small Democratic majority intact. The President and his Cabinet have understood for several days that some changes must be made in the House bill. Several, it is expected, will be made by the House caucus. The others, with the President's approval, will be reported when the bill is presented by the Finance Committee to the Senate. In addition, the Senators, while their meeting with the President was entirely friendly, made it plain that they had no intention of abrogating the Senate's long-established right of amending the action of the House.

Another National Calamity.

When the President left, he and the Senators were evidently in perfect good humor. Most of the Senators were smoking, and Mr. Wilson, carrying his overcoat on his arm, and wearing a brown slouch hat, smiled at the crowd gathered around the door. Then, in response to a press question, he called the newspaper correspondents around him. Evidently the President was not unaware of the criticism that had been passed in the Senate on his violation of tradition in delivering his message in person. But that criticism seemed only to increase his good humor.

"I suppose," he said, with a smile, removing his hat, "that you think this is another National calamity. It is something that I hope the Senators will permit me to do very often. The net result of our conference is that I am sure we will have no difficulty in keeping together on the tariff. That, I think, is about all I can say."

The President was asked whether the Senate still desired three tariff bills instead of a single measure.

"That point," he said, "is being decided at the other end of the building."

It was suggested to him that the House Democrats might be willing to yield to the necessities of their partisans in the Senate and divide the bill in order to facilitate its passage through the Upper House.

"I haven't asked them to do that yet," said the President.

The President made it plain, as did the Senators afterward, that the parliamentary possibilities had been fully discussed and the conclusion reached that if the House sent up a single omnibus tariff bill, the Senate could not divide the measure into its component parts. If the Democratic caucus decides on a single bill, the Senate will accept that form as final, and the bill will pass or fail as a whole. Should the Senate wish to divide the bill, this could only be accomplished by amendments, killing all of the measure except the part wished to be passed. Then that part would have to go to conference, and the section stricken out by the Senate would have to originate again with the House if the divisions were ever to become laws.

Correction of Oversights.

Some of the amendments under consideration by the President and his advisers in the Cabinet, as well as in the House and Senate, involve the correction of obvious oversights on the part of the majority of the Ways and Means Committee. One of these was the leaving of mohair with a duty of 20 per cent., while raw wool was put on the free list. The committee intended to have wheat and flour free, but it has been found that the countervailing duty on flour, conditioned upon duties levied by other countries on American flour, practically re-established a duty on flour from all nations of the world except Great Britain. And Great Britain is not an exporter of flour. Senators with agricultural constituencies have been worried to find phosphoric acid, an important item in fertilizers, which the Payne-Aldrich act left on the free list, subjected to a duty by the Underwood bill. That change will probably be corrected. There is also a move under consideration for striking from the dutiable list all articles producing a negligible amount of revenues. This is for the purpose of saving the Government the trouble and expense of collecting unimportant sums

Several days ago seven of the ten Democratic members of the Finance Committee called on the President at the White House and laid before him their fears that a single tariff bill could not pass the Senate on account of influence of the wool and sugar men stripped of protection by the bill. At that conference it was understood that further conferences would be held, and the President then suggested that it would be easier for him to come to the Capitol than for so many Senators to come to the White House. To-day he had the Senators informed by telephone that he would be in his room at 3 o'clock, and would be glad to see them there. This announcement, though somewhat unexpected, caused great excitement. The leaders consulted with one another and adjourned the session of the Senate at 12:45 to allow the committee members time for consultation previous to the President's arrival. This meeting, at which all of the majority members were present, was still

MISS DODGE WANTED TO GO ON THE STAGE

Ran Away to Seek a Career, but Is Reconciled to Home Life Now.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 9.—A thwarted stage ambition was the cause of Miss Lucy Dodge's disappearance, according to Thomas Sweeny, the ex-Inspector of Scotland Yard, who found the girl yesterday. He said to THE NEW YORK TIMES's correspondent:

"Mrs. Guest gave me the names of theatrical agents to whom her daughter had applied for work, believing that she would visit them. She said that she and the girl had had frequent differences on the subject. The daughter was found in a rooming house in Shaftesbury Avenue, in the heart of the theatrical district, where, under an assumed name, she was making plans to embark upon a stage career.

"Her every move was extremely clever. She returned to London at Waterloo Station last Thursday from a visit to friends in Somersetshire, and took a four-wheeler to her home in Seymour Street, where she got rid of her maid. Then she went to a garage in Gloucester Mews, where she had previously stored her baggage, and took this to a hotel in Queen's Square. Then, next day, anticipating that we should be able to find the cab driver and trace her address, she summoned a taxi and departed from the Shaftesbury Avenue address; but this driver was also found, and the house was shadowed.

"Last night she went out to post a letter, and was identified by my men. I then conferred with the Guests, who at first determined not to disturb her and to keep up the surveillance, but later went to the address, where the girl, who was completely surprised by the discovery, readily consented to return. She had not much money, but plenty of jewelry."

"We have sent her out of town on account of the notoriety; but she is as safe as if under lock and key, perfectly reconciled to being supported by us and with several romantic ideas removed."

HONOR INSANE PAINTER.

R. A. Blakelock Made an Associate of the Academy of Design.

The name of Ralph Albert Blakelock, an artist, who has been confined in an insane asylum for the last sixteen years, was at the head of the list of candidates selected for associate membership in the National Academy of Design at the Spring meeting of the Academy last night.

There were thirty-one other candidates, but Mr. Blakelock alone received the unanimous support of the hundred Academicians voting. The decision to honor Mr. Blakelock was made some weeks ago, after one of his paintings had been sold for $13,000 and others had been hung in the Metropolitan Museum, the Brooklyn Institute, the Corcoran Gallery, and the National Gallery, in Washington.

The career of Mr. Blakelock, it was explained last night, was one of the tragedies of American art. He was born in New York on Oct. 15, 1847, and gained his art education here. He refused to attend the art schools, but studied with whatever artist took his fancy. His first fame came from Indian canvases, and the greatest of these he painted just before it was discovered that he was violently insane.

While he was at work on this picture, "The Pine Dance," now in the Metropolitan Museum, his friends found him in his studio playing a piano violently and then working on the painting, which was arranged on the piano in place of a piece of music. He was playing the piano and painting at the same time, he explained, because he needed the rhythm of the music to enable him to make his Indians dance. As a matter of fact it was the rhythmic swing of the dancers that made the painting famous.

Blakelock soon afterward drew a knife on his wife and she was forced to call the police. He was taken to Matteawan, where he was confined for six years and was then transferred to an asylum in the upper part of the State. No effort will be made to notify him of the honor conferred upon him, it was said at the Academy.

MRS. FASSETT GETS DECREE

Absolute Divorce for the Wife of a Well-Known Mining Engineer.

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev., April 9.—Mrs. Carrol Shelton Fassett to-day received a decree of absolute divorce from Newton C. Fassett, a well-known mining engineer of Spokane. Among her accusations were those of drunkenness, cruelty, and infidelity. The suit was undefended.

The two were married in January, 1910. Mr. Fassett is said to be a relative of ex-Congressman J. Sloat Fassett of Elmira, N. Y.

NEW ORLEANS' FATE DEPENDS ON A TRAIN

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, April 9—A train of seventeen cars, loaded to capacity with steel piling to be used in bracing the levees in the region of New Orleans, started from the Carnegie Homestead mills to-night. The train will have absolute right of way over all the roads it will traverse in its race to reach New Orleans ahead of the flood waters now rushing down the Mississippi River.

The failure of the train to reach New Orleans before April 17, when the flood will be at its greatest height, may mean the destruction of millions of dollars' worth of property in and around the city. An agent of the United States Government is in charge of the train. He has authority to command any assistance necessary to prevent delays.

Since the order for the steel piling arrived ten days ago one department at the Homestead mills has worked day and night on the job. In the meantime the Government has been making arrangements with the railroads for the run to New Orleans.

Should the Government get the train into New Orleans in less than seven days it will set a new record for speed between the two cities. Transportation men here assert that unless the train is wrecked it will make the trip in time to permit the setting of the levee braces. It is said that the Government has the machinery ready for the pile driving, and that all other arrangements have been made for the immediate use of the steel upon its arrival.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, April 9.—Terrific rainstorms, which were general this afternoon and to-night throughout the southern territory, increased the fear felt for the weakening levees. As soon as word reached New Orleans that levee conditions at Angola, La., were critical, State Engineer Kerr left the city to take personal charge of the work there until the cause for alarm is removed.

The Weather Bureau to-day issued a special bulletin in which the previous maximum stages in the Mississippi River were increased at all points from Natchez south. The Red and Ouachita Rivers are scheduled to begin rising within forty-eight hours.

Capt. C. O. Sherrill, Chief of United States Engineers, in charge of levee work from Vicksburg south, has large forces of men strengthening the levees and raising them two to three feet above the high-water stages of 1912. Unless there are additional heavy rains in this district, Capt. Sherrill believes the levees will withstand the flood.

MEMPHIS IN GRAVE PERIL.

Levee Near Wilson, Ark., Goes Out —Other Levees Menaced.

MEMPHIS, April 9.—After a day of torrential rains and a strong wind, one levee gave way before the flood waters of the Mississippi to-day, and at half a dozen other points a desperate fight is being waged to hold the turbulent water within bounds.

The levee near Wilson, Ark., went out late this evening with a roar that could be heard for a mile or more. About 100 feet of the earthen revetment collapsed, and at a late hour to-night the gap was about 300 feet in width, and the broken ends of the levee were crumbling fast.

As a result of the break, parts of the Poinsetta, Cross, and Crittenden Counties will be flooded, and, with the water coming through the crevasse at Graves Bayou, about 600,000 acres of the St. Francis basin will be flooded.

Wilson, a settlement of about 250 lumber workers and their families, is the most important town that will be swept by the first rush of the waters. Other points in danger to-night are Mound City and Osceola. At both points the crest of the levee is a foot or more above the water, but the river is being beaten into high waves and sweeping over the rain-soaked embankments.

At Little Rock the precipitation for eighteen hours ending at 3 P. M. to-day, was 9.36 inches. The main pipe line, which conveys natural gas from the Caddo (La.) field to Little Rock, has burst, and a majority of Little Rock homes are without light or fuel. No trains have been run out of Little Rock since morning.

With the exception of the St. Louis and San Francisco lines all railroad operations west of Memphis ceased to-day because of washouts.

TRENTON SESSION MAY 6.

TRENTON, N. J., April 9.—Gov. Fielder decided to-day on May 6 as the date for the special session of the Legislature to be convened by him in an effort to force the Democratic majority to live up to its platform pledges.

While the primary purpose in calling the legislators back is to obtain enactment of a jury reform law, constitutional conventions, and small boards of freeholders will also be considered. The Governor hopes that an agreement can be reached between the southern and northern sections of the State on the convention dispute.

Thomas F. Martin, the Hudson County Assemblyman who is responsible for the Legislature's failure to pass a jury reform bill at the regular session, was at the State House to-day, and still appears confident that he can block any measure that does not carry a referendum. He does not think that even the stumping of President Wilson will win the votes from him.

Gov. Fielder said President Wilson would come to New Jersey probably the latter part of this month.

Newsstand Bill Advanced.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 9.—Senator Pollock to-night introduced a bill regulating the issuing of permits for newsstands. Mayor Gaynor recently vetoed the Levy bill, which authorized the Board of Aldermen to issue licenses for newsstands in streets in which the stoop lines were eliminated. Senator Pollock's bill, it is said, overcomes the objection of the Mayor by providing that the Board of Aldermen may authorize the Bureau of Licenses to issue the necessary permits. The measure was advanced out of its order to third reading.

FIND HOME RULE ACT NOT WHAT IT SEEMED

SULZER MAY SIGN IT TO-DAY

Sudden and strenuous, if belated, action against the Levy-Cullen Municipal Home Rule bill, which has passed both houses of the Legislature and is now before Gov. Sulzer for signature, developed yesterday, when city officials and others who can speak with authority on city government, realized for the first time that the measure contained possibilities of bringing about more sweeping changes than were ever contemplated in the regulation of this city's affairs. At the same time it became known here that Gov. Sulzer had not yet been made cognizant of these newly discovered objections to the bill, and had intended to sign it to-day.

It was with amazement that those who studied the bill carefully and analyzed its complicated features discovered that its effect was apparently to supersede the present City Charter and to vest in the Board of Aldermen absolute control of all branches of the City Government. Nullification of the functions of the Board of Estimate and Public Service Commission; giving to the Aldermen full control of all grants and franchises, the right to fix salaries of public employes, and power even to run the Board of Education and the civil service system as it might see fit, were only some of the possibilities under the bill which stirred into sudden activity those who were able to study and analyze it authoritatively.

Ex-Justice Edward E. McCall, now Chairman of the Public Service Commission, was one who expressed deep concern over the harmful possibilities of the measure. He would comment, however, only upon the provision relating to the Aldermen taking over the functions of the Public Service Commission and the right to grant franchises. Others condemned the bill from beginning to end. Archibald R. Watson, Corporation Counsel, consulted with Chairman McCall and Mayor Gaynor yesterday regarding the measure and may go to Albany to-day to see Gov Sulzer.

One thing which more than anything else amazed those who had seen copies of the bill was the fact that its authors had been able to get so far with it without these possibilities having attracted attention. Little or no opposition to the bill developed in the Assembly or the Senate, and when on Tuesday Gov. Sulzer held a public hearing upon it, only a few persons appeared in opposition, among them Oliver C. Semple, counsel for the Public Service Commission, who confined his remarks practically to the effect the proposed measure would have upon the commission. Chairman McCall, however, after considering the text of the bill, said yesterday:

"I am absolutely opposed to it, especially to the part dealing with franchises. We simply do not know where we are at. They say it does not affect New York, but how can we tell?

"The bill would apparently transfer the granting of franchises to the Board of Aldermen. It forbids the granting of any franchise for a period longer than fifty years. There is a special provision that this act shall supersede any special or local act with which it comes in conflict. Does this apply to the charter, and to the Rapid Transit act under which we serve? No one knows where we stand."

Ivins Analyzes the Bill.

Williams M. Ivins, who is perhaps the best authority upon the City Charter, analyzed the bill carefully, and then had this to say about it:

"The so-called Cullen-Levy act, commonly spoken of as the Municipal Home Rule bill, is in form an act to amend the geenral city law in relation to the powers of cities, and is superior to and takes precedence of all charters whatever. In this general city law it would insert a new article consisting of six sections, Section 19 being a general grant of powers, Section 20 a specific grant of powers, Section 21 a definition of public and municipal purpose, Section 22 providing that the grants contained in this act are in addition to existing powers, Section 23 prescribing how the powers so granted by the act shall be exercised, Section 24 how this new article shall be construed.

"Section 19 with regard to the general grant of powers provides: 'Every city is granted power to regulate, manage, and control its property and local affairs, and is granted all the rights, privileges, and jurisdiction necessary and proper for carrying such power into execution.'

"This is the widest and largest possible grant. The only limitation would be that which should arise out of the construction of the words local affairs.

"In order that there may be no restriction or limitation whatever upon this general grant this same section provides that no enumeration of powers shall operate to restrict the general grant or to exclude other powers which are comprehended within the general grant.

"It will thus be seen that this is an absolute grant in the widest possible terms to cities of an absolutely complete and practically unlimited power to regulate, manage, and control their their property and local affairs. This grant having been made, it becomes of the most immediate and intimate interest to know how this regulation, management and control is to be exercised.

"Notwithstanding the general grant in Sections 19 and 20, it proceeds to enumerate and grant specific powers. These specific powers are practically all possessed at the present time by the City of New York. It is not apparent on the face of the measure why, given the general grant, the particular powers referred to in Section 20 should be enumerated. They are:

"'To contract and be contracted with and to institute, maintain, and defend any action or proceeding in any court.

"'To take, purchase, hold, and lease real estate and personal property, &c.

"'To acquire real and personal property for condemnation for any public or municipal purpose, and to sell and convey the same, except that the right to dispose of water front, ferries, land under water, public landings, parks, &c., are inalienable.'

"How this latter provision can be construed consistently with the provision in Section 19, to the effect that no enumeration of powers shall operate to restrict the meaning of the general grant, &c., is not apparent, but that the section would raise a very serious and difficult problem of law is undoubted.

Usurps All Charter Powers.

"Then follows the grant of powers to take real and personal property by gift or devise; to levy and collect taxes; become indebted for any municipal purpose and to issue the obligations of the city therefor; to establish sinking funds, to lay out, maintain, and alter streets,

Grahame-White Proposes $10,000,000 Plan to British Government.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 9.—Claude Grahame-White, adressing the Women's Aerial League to-day, said he had placed before the Government a comprehensive scheme for putting aviation in England in a sound condition at small cost. In company with a group of financiers he had undertaken to produce the sum of $10,000,000 to be devoted to the establishment of aerodromes in all the big cities, the purchase of hydro-aeroplanes, and the construction of dirigibles. The organization, he added, was prepared to train yearly 500 pilots for the army and 500 for the navy. The Government was considering the scheme.

SULZER FOR HEARST.

Governor Hopes Publisher Will Be a Candidate for Root's Place.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 9. — Gov. Sulzer is greatly pleased over the adoption of the amendment to the Federal Constitution to provide for the direct election of United States Senators. The first Senatorial election in this State will take place at the general election in 1914, when a successor to Senator Elihu Root will be chosen. Senator Root was elected by the Republican Legislature of 1909 for six years.

Gov. Sulzer expressed the belief that William R. Hearst would be a candidate for Senator.

"I hope he is," the Governor remarked.

FLYNN MAY RETURN TO YALE

Friends Hint That Full Back's Marriage May Be Annulled.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, April 9.—Friends of Maurice Bennett Flynn, the Yale fullback, who eloped last Fall with Irene Leary, a chorus girl, say that he is now in Italy, and that his parents will make an application for the annulment of his marriage on the ground that he is under age. Flynn's chums expect that he will return to Yale next Fall. He was one of the best athletes at the university, and his return would be hailed with glee by the undergraduates, coaches and captains.

COLLEGE SOCIETIES TO STAY

Wisconsin Legislators Kill an Anti-Fraternity Bill.

MADISON, Wis., April 9.—The Assembly to-day killed the Anderson Anti-Fraternity bill, directed against college organizations, by a vote of 57 to 42. All amendments were rejected. A letter from John Hannan, Private Secretary to Senator La Follette, was read, tending to show that La Follette was not in sympathy with the anti-fraternity movement, but Anderson said that if La Follette's autobiography were read it would be seen that La Follette had a strong aversion to the organizations. He considered them undemocratic. D. C. Hall defended the fraternities and called the measure "infamous."

TD EDUCATE EMPLOYES.

Sixteen Girl Workers to be Schooled at Employers' Expense.

The Board of Education at its meeting yesterday approved a plan whereby sixteen young girls, workers in white goods factories, are to have a course at school at the expense of their employers. The aim will be to make them more efficient workers. This innovation is one of the results of the recent white goods strike here.

The firms which will bear the expense are D. E. Sicher & Co., 45 West Twenty-first Street; M. Martin & Co., 11 West Nineteenth Street; Wolf & Co., 119 West Twenty-fifth Street, and A. S. Iserson, 395 Fourth Avenue. The sixteen girls will be sent to Public School 4 in Rivington Street, of which Miss Lizzie E. Rector is Principal. They will attend classes on alternate weeks, and their wages will be kept up. They will begin their school work next week probably.

WRECK TRIAL HALTS.

Hint That Case Resulting from Westport Disaster May Be Dropped.

BRIDGEPORT, April 9.—The trial of four officials of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, charged with criminal negligence in connection with the wreck at Westport last October, came to a sudden halt to-day when Judge Greene granted the motion of the defendants for separate trials. The indicted men are Homer J. Horn, Vice President; Benjamin R. Pollock, Superintendent; C. N. Woodward, formerly Superintendent of the Lake Shore division, and Laurence J. Carmalt, Engineer of Maintenance.

The State evidently was not prepared for the motion, and Silas Judson, State's Attorney, promptly asked for a continuance until the May term. This was agreed to by the attorneys for the defense, and the seventy-five talesmen who had been summoned were dismissed.

When Mr. Judson was asked if he intended to dismiss the indictments he said: "I have not yet determined that point."

BOY SETS SCHOOL AFIRE.

He Wanted to See How the New Auto Engineer Would Turn Out.

Charles Robson, Jr., the fourteen-year-old son of Charles Robson, a coal merchant of 12 Slocum Place, Flatbush, like the other boys and girls of the neighborhood, had a great desire to see the new motor apparatus of the fire house at Cortelyou Road and East Twelfth Street turn out. For long he had watched in vain, but on Tuesday a brilliant thought struck him.

After the part-time pupils had been dismissed at Public School 139, Avenue C and East Fifteenth Street, he took a waste paper basket and filled it with papers. He went into the science room, which was empty, and stuffed the basket into a desk. He set the papers ablaze and ran to the house of the engine company to await developments. He did not have long to wait. The fire was discovered by George B. Petty, a teacher in the school, and the janitor turned in an alarm. This brought out the new apparatus, and young Robson, delighted, ran after it to watch the firemen at work. The fire was extinguished with a loss of about $500.

Capt. Lynch reported the fire as suspicious, and Fire Marshal Brophy and Deputy Fire Marshal Nolan obtained evidence sufficient for the lad's arrest. He was taken to the Children's Society shelter and admitted his guilt.

WOMAN AND BOY SHOT IN CAR RIOT

ALL CITY'S LINES TIED UP

3,000 CANNOT KEEP ORDER

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, April 9.—Car strike rioting resulted to-night in the probably fatal wounding of Mrs. Ida Lorich, 25 years old, and three other persons in a battle at Niagara and Tonawanda Streets.

With the entire Fourth Brigade of the National Guard on duty the International Railway Company, though rejecting all advances for a settlement, was unable to maintain its street railroad service. Efforts to run cars were abandoned for the night shortly after dusk.

Three thousand soldiers were employed in attempts to keep the crowds moving in the streets and to protect the car barns and other property of the company. Major Gen. O'Ryan spoke of calling out the entire National Guard of the State to-morrow. Such a step would concentrate 15,000 troops in the city, duplicating the situation in the memorable steam railroad strike here in August, 1892.

Mrs. Lorich was shot in the worst of to-day's big riots. A bullet passed through her back when guardsmen and policemen on one side and strikers or sympathizers on the other were battling for possession of a trolley car at Tonawanda and Niagara Streets. Hospital surgeons said she almost certainly would die.

Harold Muna, 16 years old, a schoolboy, was shot through the arm and side in the same fight, and Thomas Amesden was bayoneted. Both were said to be in a critical condition.

In a similar outbreak a few blocks away on South Street James Walker was bayoneted by an infantryman and his whole side was ripped open. Ties were piled on the tracks and a car was wrecked. An effort was made to set the car afire, but policemen went to the aid of the small squad of soldiers and saved it.

Barns Besieged, Power Line Cut.

Mobs surrounded the barns throughout the evening. It was believed an attack would be made at Cold Springs before morning. The Niagara Falls power line was cut again, but linemen soon repaired it. Special deputies guarded the viaducts throughout the city, fearing efforts to dynamite them.

Another effort was made to-night to get the company and strikers together. The 2,000 men ofefred to return if the company would recognize the union and let the other disputed questions be settled by arbitration. The company refused to do that. In fact, it discouraged many attempts by Mayor Louis P. Fuhrmann to bring about a settlement of the difficulty by arbitration. William D. Mahon of Detroit, President of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, submitted to the Mayor an outline of the men's grievances and made a definite offer to lay them before a board of arbitration. President E. G. Connette of the International Company, conferred with the Mayor, but neither official would divulge what passed between them.

Mayor Fuhrmann held a conference late to-night with President Mahon and other representatives of the strikers at which, it was said, he laid before them terms on which the railway would submit to arbitration. The company's reported offer will be considered by the Executive Committee of the strikers to-morrow. It is understood the International is willing to reinstate all the strikers and submit their demands to arbitration, but will not recognize the union.

The fact that the calling of more troops was under consideration by both civil and military officials was taken as an indication that a peaceful settlement still was remote. With more than 300 miles of street car tracks to patrol, the 3,000 guardsmen here, under command of Brig. Gen. Samuel Welch, had to be spread out too far to make an effective policing force. Gen. Welch had ordered out all the men under his command. If more troops were to be brought here, the order must be issued by Gov. Sulzer.

A mob to-night pulled down ten trolley poles on Niagara Street, near the scene of this afternoon's shooting. A detail of troops was hurried to the spot, but the marauders had escaped.

Riots in Important Streets.

The most serious disorders of the day occurred on Main Street, almost in the business section, and on Niagara Street, near the International Bridge. No effort was made to move cars until the afternoon. Only a few cars had left the Cold Spring barns on the way down Main Street between curbs lined with soldiers when the crowds began to assemble. At 2 o'clock a crowd of rioters broke through the military line and piled heavy timbers and stones in front of a down-bound car.

All the soldiers in a half dozen blocks were concentrated at the point, but the crowd assumed such great proportions that they were unable to control it. The stalled car and two following close behind it were bombarded with rocks and were damaged badly. At the sight of the threatening crowd the strike-breaking crews raised their hands above their heads and deserted their posts.

The strikebreakers then were seized by the mob and beaten and the cars were smashed. The police charged the crowd. Guardsmen followed with leveled bayonets. A half dozen of the rioters were stunned. One strikebreaker is believed to have suffered a skull fracture.

It was hours afterward that the trouble was started in Niagara Street that led to bloodshed. Half a block from the International Bridge the Niagara Street car lines pass under an overhead railroad bridge. Rioters carrying heavy timbers rushed on the railway bridge as a car was approaching and tried to drop a railroad tie on it. It missed the car. The rioters were preparing to drop more obstructions on the tracks, when a detail from the Sixty-fifth Regiment ordered them to halt.

They jeered at the soldiers. Another warning was given as the soldiers leveled their rifles. The hooting and jeering were continued, and another piece of timber fell over the side of the bridge.

"Fire!" came the command. A dozen rifles answered. Mrs. Lorich and Muna fell. The crowds, which rapidly had assumed large size, broke at the sound of the rifles and began to chase the street car that just had passed under the bridge. The soldiers followed with fixed bayonets and drove the throng to the curbs. More than one rioter felt the butt of a rifle in the flight and a man suffered a bayonet thrust in the hand.

Bluecoats Hurt in Clash.

Although all attempts to carry the public on the trolley lines had been suspended by 7 P. M., a special car was run out of the Forest Avenue barn this evening to take a squad of policemen to another part of the city. It at once was stoned by a mob that had surrounded the barn. Several policemen were hurt in the battle that followed. The car was run back to the shed. Soldiers were stationed in all the barns with orders to kill any man who might attempt without permission to cross the dead-lines drawn around the structures, or any person who picked up bricks or other missiles.

A breach between the city authorities on the one hand and the railway company and military commanders on the other widened in the evening. The company made a demand on Gen. Welch for more troops. The military authorities, it was understood, admitted that the guardsmen on duty were not in sufficent force to police properly the 300 miles of tracks.

Refusal by the Governor to send more troops until they should be asked for by the civil authorities left doubt. The Mayor and the Sheriff would not ask for additional guardsmen, as they believed it was a mistake to bring any troops here, and that public sentiment had become stronger against the company since the soldiers took control.

Court Granted Company's Wish.

The appeal to Justice Charles H. Brown of the Supreme Court for an order for military protection was made by the railway officials after frequent demands on Mayor Fuhrmann and Sheriff Becker for such an order had been denied. Before issuing the order, Justice Brown conferred with the Mayor and Police Chief Regan by telephone. Mayor Fuhrmann insisted that in his opinion there was no call for the troops, but Chief Regan admitted the situation was getting beyond his force of 300 bluecoats, who had been on duty almost continuously since Sunday morning, when the strike was begun.

Justice Brown acted under Chapter 41 of the Laws of 1909, empowering a Justice of the Supreme Court, a County Judge, a Sheriff or the Mayor of a city, in the event of rioting, to call on the commanding officer of the Guard for aid. Gen. O'Ryan was present when the order was served on Gen. Welch. After a conference it was decided to order out the entire Fourth Brigade.

Executive Committeeman Fitzgerald of the Amalgamated Association sent a protest to Gov. Sulzer to-day against the ordering out of troops. His message read:

> The street railway men of Buffalo have been forced to strike to secure their American rights to organize for a living wage and humane treatment.
> We have just been informed that the State troops are ordered out this morning. If this is true, it is for the sole purpose of assisting this arrogant company and to intimidate these working men.
>
> We have been and still are willing to submit our contentions to arbitration. This the company has absolutely refused. In the name of labor, we appeal to you against unfair and unwarranted discrimination.

Explosions Startle City.

A rapid series of explosions aroused dwellers in the northern part of the city and in Tonawanda early to-day. A rumor spread that one of the International Railway's trestles on the Niagara Falls line had been blown up. Men sent over the line for five miles north of Tonawanda reported no damage to the tracks or bridges. No explanation of the explosions was obtained.

One of the day's earlier acts of violence occurred when a special detail of mounted scouts of the Seventy-fourth Regiment, under the command of Sergt. R. Ward Ruhl was fired on at Niagara and Tonawanda Streets. The militiamen charged the crowd, but did not capture the men who fired the shots. No one was injured in that skirmish.

At Main and Seneca Streets, where bricks had been thrown from the top of a new seventeen-story building, a large crowd gathered. When heads appeared above the cornice of the structure guardsmen took aim, but no missile was thrown and no shot was fired. Sharpshooters were stationed on the Chamber of Commerce building opposite, under orders to shoot to kill at the first sign of an attack on the troops in the street.

Hopedale Strike Sympathizers Riot.

MILFORD, Mass., April 9.—Rioting by strike sympathizers who stoned trolley cars filled with workmen marked the close of the day at the Draper Company's machine shops in Hopedale, where 800 foundrymen were on strike for increased wages. Deputy Sheriff Warren F. Gove arrested a man in the midst of a shower of stones. The mob surrounded him, but the Deputy, aided by other officers, got his prisoner aboard the car, which was run into a barn until a squad of metropolitan police arrived. The prisoner was brought here and locked up. The police station was surrounded by 2,000 men, who shouted threats, but gradually dispersed.

RECALL OF TROOPS ASKED.

Governor Says Order Must Be Maintained in Buffalo.

ALBANY, April 9.—The Buffalo street railway strike was discussed to-night by Gov. Sulzer, Adjt. Gen. Hamilton, John Williams, State Labor Commissioner, and P. J. Downey of the State Board of Arbitration and Mediation. Mr. Downey returned to-day from Buffalo. He explained the situation to the Governor. The following telegram, signed by W. J. Killeen of Buffalo, was received by Mr. Sulzer this evening:

> The presence of armed men patroling the streets of this city is a needless affliction to the community and a reflection on the local officials. The ordering out of the National Guard by a Judge over the heads of Mayor and Sheriff is a flagrant example of abuse of judicial power. The Commander in Chief can send the guardsmen home. He ought to do it.

> The State stands for law and order and the protection of life and property. No man must forget this. I sincerely hope the local authorities in Buffalo and the County of Erie will do everything in their power for peace and harmony and the enforcement of law and order.

Mr. Sulzer received the following telegram from Harry F. Flynn, President of the Philadelphia Local Street Railway Employes' Association:

> After carefully investigating the recruiting of motormen in this city for strike duty in Buffalo, will inform you that every thug, gunman, tenderloin lounger, wharf-rat and ex-convict that can be found here is being engaged and shipped by strikebreaking agencies for that work in that city.

A protest was filed with the Governor by representatives of the New York State Association of Street Railway Employes against the calling out of troops.

"I have done everything to see that law, order, and peace are maintained," said the Governor, "and don't propose to do anything further unless the officials of Erie County request me to act."

AUBURN NEEDS ITS TROOPS.

Sheriff Decides He Cannot Spare Guardsmen for Buffalo.

AUBURN, April 9.—The gloomy outlook in labor conditions here to-day caused Sheriff Bancroft to decide that the presence of both C and M Companies of the Third Brigade was necessary, so they will not be sent to Buffalo. W. C. Rogers, State Mediator, continued to work in private conferences with strikers and employers. The International Harvester Company's mill is empty. It was said dismantling of the factory was about to be begun preparatory to moving the plant to Europe.

In the Polish colony a meeting of foreign employes of No. 1 and No. 2 plants of the International was held. Two hundred persons formed an organization. The Auburn Button Workers' employes made demands for increased pay, which the company declined to grant.

Gen. Dyer Designates Those Regiments for Buffalo Service.

Brig. Gen. George R. Dyer, commanding the First Brigade, named the Seventh and Seventy-first Regiments early yesterday for service in Buffalo, in case more militiamen are required there.

"I named those two regiments in response to a telegram from Adj. Gen. Hamilton in Buffalo," he explained. "They are the two senior regiments of the brigade. If one regiment is required the Seventh will be selected, as it is the oldest regiment.

"In case either regiment is to be sent to Buffalo, the order will come through Major Gen. O'Ryan. I have given no order to the Colonels of the two regiments. The National Guard always is in readiness to respond to orders on almost instant notice. There are approximately 900 men in each regiment.

Rochester Sends Guardsmen.

UNIONS BACK HELLO GIRLS.

Waiters Won't Serve Boston Strikebreakers—Linemen May Quit.

BOSTON, April 9.—A new element was projected into the telephone strike situation late to-day when the Waiters' Union, Local No. 80, met and debated whether its 750 members should serve food to the 1,200 or 1,500 "emergency operators" whom the company has brought here from other cities, and who are regarded by the local operators as strikebreakers. The upshot of the meeting was a decision to call out all union waiters at hotels sheltering strikebreakers if the telephone operators declared a strike.

Meetings were held also to-night by the linemen, cable splicers, and other men employes of the telephone company, who have promised to strike in sympathy if the operators go out. The Telephone Operators' Union is a local of the National Electrical Workers' Union and has the moral support of the Boston Central Labor Union, which is considered one of the strongest labor organizations in the country.

Nearly all the peacemaking machinery of the State was in motion today in an effort to prevent the threatened strike.

The Legislature was the last to get into action. After a heated debate in the House that occupied most of the afternoon, the two branches concurred in an order to appoint a joint committee to consider the situation brought about by the threatened strike and make such recommendations as the committee deemed expedient.

The State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration has been at work for three days trying to bring together the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company and its 2,200 dissatisfied operators. A committee of the Chamber of Commerce interposed yesterday, and has been hard at work since. Mayor Fitzgerald this morning added the resources of the Municipal Government to the cause of industrial peace.

It had been agreed that President Spalding of the telephone company should reply to the demands of the operators for increased wages at a meeting of the two parties with the Board of Arbitration this afternoon but the board adjourned at 5.30 P. M. until 10 o'clock to-morrow morning, and if the company's answer had been received, it was not given out.

Commissioner Wood of the board said, however, that he thought the situation had been clarified, and that the prospect of a settlement was more favorable. At the same time he expressed the hope that the Legislature would not pursue its inquiry, as he believed that about all who could work with advantage were already involved in the controversy.

The girls at union headquarters today found some satisfaction in their estimate that it was costing the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company $9,000 a day to entertain the strikebreakers at Back Bay hotels. The company figures that granting the increases demanded would add $800,000 to its annual expenses.

State Capitol Repairs Suspended.

ALBANY, April 9.—The State Trustees of Public Buildings have ordered suspension of all work for the reconstruction of the burned section of the Capitol. The contracts cancelled include that of Callanan & Prescott, who have been doing the bulk of the work on a percentage basis. Since they began the work in 1911 they have received $1,214,319. The Trustees, consisting of Gov. Sulzer, Lieut. Gov. Glynn, and Speaker Smith, of the Assembly, acted upon a report submitted by John A. Hennessy, State Executive Auditor. Mr. Hennessy recommends that the State advertise for bids for completing the work under contract.

Would Repeal Stock Transfer Tax.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 9.—The Senate Committee on Taxation listened to arguments to-day in favor of Senator Hefferman's bill repealing the stock transfer tax. The measure was supported by representatives of the Consolidated Exchange. M. E. Deaguero, Ogden D. Budd, F. A. Farnsworth, Prof. J. W. Jenks, and Robert McC. Marsh urged that the tax be repealed or limited to transfers of stock at the offices of the corporations.

Lingley Must Die for Murder.

ALBANY, April 9.—Gov. Sulzer has decided not to interfere in the case of William Lingley, who is sentenced to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing next week for the murder of Patrick Burns, a New York saloonkeeper. The Governor made the announcement to-day, after having examined the evidence in Lingley's case.

FIELD BACKS BRIBE STORY OF KENDALL

ALIENIST ANGERS SULZER

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 9.—At the end of a sharp cross-examination George H. Kendall, President of the New York Bank Note Company, the principal witness against Senator Stephen J. Stilwell of the Bronx in the investigation conducted by the Senate Judiciary Committee on the charge of attempted extortion, left the stand late this afternoon. The story which he told on direct examination yesterday was unshaken in all of its essential details.

George A. Field, Vice President of the New York Bank Note Company and familiar with the negotiations between Mr. Kendall and Senator Stilwell, which form the basis for the bribery charges, at once was called to the stand by Attorney General Carmody. His direct examination had not been ended when the committee adjourned for the day, and Mr. Field will continue his testimony tomorrow. Mr. Field testified regarding telephone conversations between Mr. Kendall and Senator Stilwell which he overheard in the office of the New York Bank Note Company. Senator Stilwell was talking from a booth in the Capitol Building here. Mr. Field, consulting notes which he had made while the conversation was in progress corroborated the testimony given by Mr. Kendall in reference to a telephone talk he had with Stilwell on March 26, in which he threatened to expose the alleged attempt at extortion unless the Senator obtained favorable reports in both Houses of the Legislature on a bill which sought to prevent discrimination against Kendall's company by the New York Stock Exchange in the matter of printing stock certificates and bonds.

The direct charge made by Mr. Kendall is that Senator Stilwell demanded $3,500 for a favorable report of the bill in both houses. Stilwell, according to Kendall, said that of the above amount $2,000 was to be given to four members of the Senate Codes Committee, of which he was Chairman, and $1,500 was to go to members of the Assembly Committee on Codes.

Alienist Arouses Gov. Sulzer.

Gov. Sulzer to-day strongly denounced the presence of Dr. Charles L. Bailey, an Albany alienist, at the hearing. Dr. Bailey, who has been retained by Senator Stilwell, has been sitting at the counsel table of the defense since the hearing began watching the conduct of Mr. Kendall on the stand and at the same time taking notes. It is not denied by the defense that an attempt maye be made to put Dr. Bailey on the stand in an attempt to prove that Kendall's testimony should not receive the usual consideration. An inkling of this purpose was given when Edgar M. Wilson, counsel for Senator Stilwell, at the opening of the hearing to-day asked Mr. Kendall a question which Senator Murtaugh ordered stricken from the record.

"The presence of Dr. Bailey at the hearing is nothing short of a disgrace," said Gov. Sulzer to-day. "It is a deliberate attempt on the part of the defense to intimidate the principal witness for the State."

Counsel for Senator Stilwell failed to break down the testimony of Kendall despite the fact that the cross-examination, for ferocity and adroitness, rivaled anything ever heard in a courtroom. Kendall in anger again and again appealed to Chairman Murtaugh for protection against the attacks of Mr. Wilson, the examiner. Senator Murtaugh was compelled to caution Senator Stilwell's lawyers.

In many instances, Mr. Kendall replied to the cross-examiner with great vigor. On one occasion he denounced Senator Stilwell as a "liar and a thief." Senator Stilwell sat through the hearing in the Assembly parlor and suggested many questions.

Mr. Kendall admitted under cross-examination to-day the truth of a published statement to the effect that in his telephone talk with Senator Stilwell on March 26 he had threatened to "rip the whole thing wide open"; that he was fighting the fight of his life and would not "be thrown down either by Stilwell or any other legislator." Counsel for Senator Stilwell sought to have it appear that this would bring the witness under the provisions of the Penal Code forbidding the influencing of a lawmaker by threats and menace in the exercise of his duty.

"Don't you know that you could be sent to jail for ten years for such conduct?" asked the counsel for Senator Stilwell.

Mr. Kendall laughed in the face of his cross-examiner and replied: "I am not interested in what you are saying. I am not up for sentence. I am not on trial here."

"Are you here recanting, regretting anything you have said or done?" asked the lawyer.

"I am here as a noble act with everything to lose and nothing to gain," replied the witness.

"Have you been promised immunity for testifying here?"

"I have not been promised, nor do I want immunity, and if I did you are not the dispenser of it. You are about the last man I would come to," replied Kendall angrily.

At one point when the witness had appealed to Chairman Murtaugh and had been told that he must answer he said to the Chairman:

"Under the ruling made by your Honor, the only charges to be investigated here are the charges signed by me. It seems to me that I should have some standing, that I should have a right to be heard."

"This is cross-examination," said Senator Murtaugh, "and counsel has a right to go into some matters."

"There is no limit to unfairness," replied the witness.

Mr. Wilson took the witness over much of the gorund he had covered in his direct examination, for the purpose, he said, of ascertaining his frame of mind while the alleged negotiations were in progress.

"You understood Senator Stilwell to intimate that while he did not want any money from you, it would take $1,500 to fix the Assembly Codes Committee?" asked Mr. Wilson.

"He sent me a telegram to that effect," replied Kendall. "It read 'Fifteen is the correct number,' but I did not infer from that that the Assembly Committee really wanted the money. I think he wanted it all for his own pocket."

"You threatened Senator Stilwell with exposure?" asked Mr. Wilson.

"I did," said the witness. "He had demanded a bribe for reporting my bill from the Codes Committee. Would you disapprove of it?"

"Did you say to Mr. Stilwell that you had been thrown down, that you were going to rip everything open and see if you could not get justice?"

"I did."

Repeats His Accusations.

The examination then continued in this wise:

Q.—Do you say Senator Stilwell attempted to extort money from you for legislation? A.—For reporting my bill out of committee. Call it legislation or not, Sir; whatever you please. I don't know your terms.

Q.—You found that unless you conformed to certain conditions that he made that you could not get your bill reported? A.—He said so.

Q.—So you made up your mind that you would denounce him? A.—I had not at that time come to the conclusion to denounce him at all, as I thought that the matter had probably better be suppressed, even if it hurt me and my own interests. It was later that I came to the conclusion that I ought to make the matter public.

Q.—What influence did you think Senator Stilwell had with the Assembly Codes Committee, of which he was not even a member? A.—The same friendliness that exists among men that know each other.

Q.—When Senator Stilwell told you over the telephone that he had done all he could to advance your bill in the Senate committee, did you believe what he said? A.—I knew it was the truth.

Q.—Then why did you threaten to disgrace and degrade him and ruin his family unless he was able to control the Assembly Codes Committee? A.—Because I would not stand for being held up for a bribe after having gone that far and having come to the conclusion that when he took $250 from me, after the Governor had sent me to him, that he was no better than a bribe-taker and a thief.

Q.—Why did you think he wanted the check for draft the bill sent to Mr. Lewis? A.—Well, I don't know. It didn't look right to me. But it was not until after he had made a demand for $500 each for four of his committeemen that I felt something was wrong.

The witness was asked why he had called Senator Stilwell on the telephone and threatened him before he did make his public accusations.

"Because I hated to put this man in a hole with existing confessions out against him which do not as yet appear on record in this court," replied Kendall.

Q.—What you wanted was for Stilwell to see to it, on the peril of his life, that not only his own committee, but the committee in the Assembly reported out the bill? A.—Yes, Sir. If he had not reported out that bill the same day I would have let all the information out broadcast because I would not stand for his attempting to sell me his committeemen at $500 apiece.

Q.—Even if it had sent you to State prison? A.—I don't care where I go. I am telling the truth, and I am not afraid of you nor any one else.

Q.—You don't care what you do as long as you get your revenge? A.—Provided I do right.

Q.—You thought it was right to compel a Senator of the great State of New York, upon peril of being disgraced and his family ruined, to get your bill out of a committee in a house to which he did not belong? A.—Yes; after he had set a price of $500 apiece on his own men and $1,500 for a committee with which he was not connected.

Q.—You believe that you at last had placed Senator Stilwell in a position where you would either have your own way with the Legislature or you would destroy and degrade him? A.—I was not trying to run the Legislature. It is simply a member of this body that is as well known to you as to me as a criminal.

Attorney General Carmody sought to have the answer stricken from the records. The witness denied having made it as it appeared on the stenographer's minutes, but Chairman Murtaugh ruled that it should stand.

A clerk of the Appellate Division in Brooklyn at the close of the hearing today left with the committee a bundle of documents relating to the disbarment proceedings at one time taken against Senator Stilwell, which will be introduced in evidence. It is expected that the investigation will drag into next week before the case is finally decided by the Senate.

AGAINST STILWELL BILL.

Bronx Meeting Opposes Plan to Copy Real Estate Records.

By an overwhelming vote the Bronx County Committee, an organization formed for the advocacy of the Bronx as a county, at a meeting last night at the old Court House Building, Third Avenue and 158th Street, went on record as opposing the bill recently introduced by State Senator Stephen J. Stilwell of the Bronx, providing for the appointment of a Commissioner of Records to superintend the copying and transfer of all real estate records and maps in the office of the Register of the County of New York affecting property in the new county.

The resolution, which was introduced by former Deputy Attorney General James F. Donnelly, was momentarily checked by J. Fairfax McLaughlin, a Bronx attorney, who moved that action be suspended "in view of the present trial of Senator Stilwell," and because any opposition to the bill voiced at this time by the Bronx County Committee "would be prejudicial to the Senator's interests," and serve to antagonize the "public mind toward him."

Mr. McLaughlin's motion to table the resolution was, however, defeated after a spirited debate.

About thirty members of the committee attended the meeting and about twenty-five of those present voted for the resolution.

ACCUSES INSURANCE HEAD.

McDonough Says State Paid Expenses of Speakers Against Labor Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 9.—Ex-Judge John T. McDonough of Albany, legal representative of the State Federation of Labor, made a statement to Gov. Sulzer to-day accusing the State Insurance Department of charging to the State the expenses of men from outside the State who came to Albany to favor a bill which, Mr. McDonough said, was in the interests of the casualty insurance companies.

The bill in question is the Foley-Walker workmen's compensation measure, which is favored by the Insurance Department. When the bill was discussed before the legislative committees, officials from other States appeared in its favor. At the same time the committees heard arguments on the Murtaugh-Jackson Workmen's Compensation bill, favored by the State Federation of Labor. The latter includes a form of State insurance which the Insurance Department has opposed.

Mr. McDonough says the records of the State Controller show that the Insurance Department charged to the State the traveling expenses of T. T. Dickinson, a Compensation Commissioner of New Jersey; J. E. Kinnane of the Compensation Commission of Michigan, and T. L. Drake, one of the Compensation Commissioners of Massachusetts, and the traveling expenses and services of H. B. Bradbury, a lawyer of New York. The total amount charged was $870.

"These gentlemen," Judge McDonough says in his statement to the Governor, "were all brought to Albany to speak and work in favor of the Foley-Walker bill, otherwise called the Insurance Department bill. They, with many other speakers, were introduced to the legislative committees by Mr. Hoey, one of the Deputies of the State Insurance Department. They all spoke against the Murtaugh-Jackson Compensation bill, favored by the Federation of Labor.

"The Compensation Commissioner of Ohio also spoke at the same time on the subject of compensation and in favor of the Murtaugh-Jackson bill. Not a dollar of Mr. Duffey's expenses was paid by the State, nor was the State asked to pay anything by Mr. Duffey or his friends. Why should the Insurance Department be permitted to expend and charge a large sum of money in favor of a bill, the principal advocates of which are the casualty companies?"

The legislative leaders have been unable to agree as to the details of a permissive compensation bill, and it is probable that there will be no legislation this year. A proposed amendment to the Constitution, providing for workmen's compensation, has been passed this year for the second time, and it will be submitted to the people at the election next Fall.

CALLED TAX-SHIFTING BILL.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 9.—Alexander Law, of the New York City Tenants' Union, asked the Cities Committees of the Legislature in joint session to-day to take favorable action on the Salant-Schaap bill which seeks to reduce taxes on improved property of the city and correspondingly to increase taxes on unimproved city land held for speculation.

"The city gives the monkeys in Bronx and Central Parks all the modern improvements," Mr. Law said. "There are rows of palms in front of their homes and palm gardens on the roofs, while most human beings in the city, after paying out one-third of their income in rents, get four bare walls and the chance to contract every known disease."

The bill deducts 10 per cent. from the taxes on improved property each year for five years and adds a corresponding amount to the taxes on property held for speculation. Benjamin C. Marsh, Executive Secretary of the Congestion Committee, said that in five years under the proposed law taxes on land having buildings would decrease to the extent of $19,500,000, and the taxes upon land of the city which has not been improved would increase by the same amount. Rents would decrease, he said. Several others spoke in favor of the bill.

Real estate interests in New York City sent a strong delegation to oppose the measure. Those who urged the committee to defeat the bill included Dr. Abram Korn, President of the United Real Estate Association; Dr. Henry Berg, Vice President of the same association; Allan Robinson of the Allied Real Estate Interests, and Henry Block, a real estate holder. Mr. Bloch said that Mayor Gaynor was right when he said the plan carried out Henry George's single tax plan. The result would be practically to confiscate all vacant lands. The bill provides for a submission of the question to a vote of the people of New York City.

sewers, water supply, lighting systems, parks, playgrounds, &c.; to control and administer the water front; to establish, maintain, and regulate docks and piers, wharves, and warehouses; to establish, construct, and maintain, alter and discontinue bridges, tunnels, and ferries; to grant franchises or rights to use the streets, waters, water front, public ways, and public places of the city; to construct and maintain public buildings and public works; to prevent and extinguish fires; to maintain order; enforce laws to protect property and preserve and care for the safety, health, comfort, and general welfare of the inhabitants of the city; to establish and maintain hospitals, almshouses, workhouses, &c., reformatories and jails. Also to establish and maintain such institutions and instrumentalities for the instruction, enlightenment, improvement, entertainment, recreation, and welfare of its inhabitants as it may deem appropriate; to determine and regulate the number, mode of selection, terms of employment, qualifications, powers, and duties and compensation of all employes of the city and the relations of all officers and employes of the city to each other, to the city and to the inhabitants; to create a municipal civil service; to regulate the manner of transacting the city's business and affairs; to provide methods and administer funds for pensions and annuities for officers and employes; to investigate and inquire into all matters concerning the city and its inhabitants; to regulate by ordinance any matter within the powers of the city.

Scope Is Unlimited.

"We thus have a general grant not limited by the grant and enumerated powers, the enumeration of powers contained in subdivisions of Section 20, and a definition of the terms of public or municipal purpose and general welfare, so as to make them include 'education, art, beauty, charity, amusement, recreation, health, safety, comfort, and convenience.' And then the provision that these specifically enumerated powers are in addition to and not in substitution for any of the existing powers. Precisely how this last phrase might be construed it is impossible to tell.

"There is a desire not only to grant enlarged powers, but to save all existing ones. It will be noticed that this provision, however, refers only to the matter of the powers of the city, namely, that it is not intended to repeal any existing powers. All this, however, has nothing whatever to do with the great and fundamental question as to how these tremendous powers are to be exercised.

"The bill strives to cope with this last difficulty by providing that the powers granted by this act are to be exercised by the officer or official body vested with such powers by other provisions of law, but who is the officer in respect of the new and additional powers? But whoever the officer may be, the section continues to the effect that the power must be executed, 'subject to the conditions presented by law or ordinance,' but no provision of any special or local law shall operate to defeat or limit the extent of the grant of powers contained in this act; and any provision of any special or local law which in any city operates, in terms or in effect, to prevent the exercise or limits the extent of any power granted by this article, shall be superseded.'

"If the bill means anything whatever it means a fundamental and radical change from the existing system, particularly in this city. According to well-known rules of construction, the courts will have to construe it so as to give it a meaning instead of to render it meaningless.

"It is certain that, according to the last paragraph quoted, any existing local law which prevents the exercise or limits the extent of any power granted is superseded. The result is that all existing law is superseded, because not only of the new unlimited general powers in cities, but of the new enumerated powers. The bill then provides that where any such provision of law is superseded 'such power, freed from the limitations imposed by such provisions, shall be exercised by the same officer * * * that would be vested with the same under the provisions of this subdivision.' Now, is it possible for anything to be more obscure than this?

Council Uncontrolled.

"Turning back, however, we discover that one of the enumerated powers it 'to regulate by ordinance any matters within the powers of the city.' Now, going forward to the next provision of this remarkable bill we find that 'in the absence of any provision of law or ordinance determining by whom * * * any power granted by this act shall be exercised, the Common Council or Board of Aldermen, or corresponding legislative body of the city,' shall have the power.

"It appears, therefore, that these unlimited powers are to be regulated by ordinances, and that so far as these powers are new they shall be executed as the Common Council may provide, and it also seems from the first subdivision of Section 23 that even where certain functions are now vested in an officer or official body by the by-laws or ordinances the city, through the Common Council, would have the right to repeal such law or ordinance.

"It is a virtual repeal of the existing charter, because if its provisions mean anything it means that the Common Council shall have all the powers now vested in the Legislature of the State, to deal with all matters concerning the Government of the city in precisely the same way in which the Legislature of the State might do, i. e., the Common Council may itself entirely reconstruct our charter.

"One of the things which the bill specifically provides is that the Common Council shall hereafter be the body which shall have control of all grants and franchises. The effect of this is to oust the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of this function and to introduce endless confusion in respect of the powers relatively of the Common Council and the Public Service Commission. But the Board of Aldermen will also have the right to oust the Board of Estimate of practically all of their functions and to take over, by way of ordinances enacted by itself, or to vest in some newly created body provided by such ordinance, all control over the budget.

"Another effect of the bill on its face is to repeal all of the legislation fixing the salary of public employes and then clearly under the terms of the bill the power to fix such salaries is vested in the Board of Aldermen and not in the Board of Estimate.

"The Board of Aldermen is thus also given practically unlimited control of everything included in the definition of public welfare, with the result, among other things, that our entire educational system would fall under the control of the Board of Aldermen. In the same way the entire Civil Service system would fall under the control of the Board of Aldermen.

Calls It Most Mischievous.

So far as borough government is concerned the bill means, and only can mean, that the Common Council shall have the same powers in respect of the distribution of public functions that the Legislature has now, with the result that the Common Council might entirely recreate the whole borough system at its own uncontrolled will.

"The statute is probably the most mischievous one so far as concerns welfare of this city that has been introduced in the Legislature since the day of Tweed. The most remarkable feature of it is that it is the work of a volunteer body of reformers whose open and avowed purpose is to have the Legislature transfer to the city all legislative power over city affairs, to permit the Board of Aldermen to exercise this legislative power at will, continuing the existing system, however, until the Board of Aldermen shall exercise their power.

"At first reading the draft would seem to be the work of a madman, but now, knowing its authors, it has to be accepted as a monumental stroke of genius, which, nevertheless, does not prevent its being the genius of madness. Desirable as local self-government may be, it should not be acquired at such a price, and it cannot be acquired in disregard of all existing charter legislation and of the actual experience of the city during the last half century. This, however, is precisely what the proposed bill looks to do."

IVINS WRONG, SAYS TANZER.

One of the Authors of Home Rule Bill Explains Its Provisions.

Lawrence A. Tanzer, who with the assistance of J. Hampden Dougherty and others drew the Cullen-Levy bill for the Municipal Government Association, replied to the criticisms of Mr. Ivins and Judge McCall last night. He said:

"Mr. Ivins's criticisms are quite groundless and absurd. They are arrived at by considering single provisions of the bill apart from their context. Reading the bill, as a whole, it shows plainly an intent, first, to grant broad additional powers to cities; second, to preserve all existing powers; third, to keep in force all provisions of existing city charters, excepting only such as defeat the very powers granted by the bill.

"The bill expressly maintains in force all existing provisions of law, excepting only provisions of special or local law which prevent the exercise or limit the extent of the new powers granted by the act:

"First—As the Governor pointed out on the hearing, the bill contains no repeal of any law.

"Second—All provisions of general law are expressly maintained in force. The grant of powers is expressly made subject to the Constitution and general laws of this State, Page 2, Lines 10 and 11.

"Third—All provisions of special or local laws are likewise kept in force so far as they regulate the exercise of powers by any city.

"(A) At Page 6, Line 16: 'The powers granted by this article shall be in addition to and not in substitution for all the powers, rights, privileges, and functions existing in any city pursuant to any other provision of law,' so that all existing powers continue as they are to-day.

"(B) The bill further provides at Page 6, Line 20: 'The powers granted by this act are to be exercised by the officer, officers, or official body vested with such powers by any other provision of law or ordinance, (subject to amendment or repeal of any such ordinance,) and in the manner and subject to the conditions prescribed by law or ordinance, (subject to amendment or repeal of any such ordinance)' so that all provisions regulating the exercise of any existing power continue in force.

"Fourth—The only provisions of special or local law which are affected by the bill are such as defeat its purpose of granting increased powers by preventing the exercise or limiting the extent of the powers granted, as distinguished from provisions which merely regulate the exercise of the power. Immediately following and in the same sentence with the last quotation is the following, (Page 6, line 26:) 'but no provision of any special or local law shall operate to defeat or limit in extent the grant of powers contained in this act; and any provision of any special or local law which in any city operates, in terms or in effect, to prevent the exercise, or limits the extent of any power granted by this article, shall be superseded.'

"The distinction is between provisions of law regulating the exercise of a power on the one hand and provisions of law preventing its exercise or limiting its extent on the other. The former are retained in force; the latter alone are superseded.

"Fifth—When limitations on the extent of power are superseded, the power as broadened remains in the same hands which now exercise the limited power—there is no transfer of powers, (Page 7, lines 6 to 12.)

"Sixth—Where the power granted is new, so that its exercise is not regulated by existing law, in such cases only the local legislative body is to adopt ordinances regulating the exercise of such power, (Page 7, lines [illegible] to 19.)

"Seventh—In a city which has not now the power of issuing bonds, disposing of its real estate, or granting franchises, or in a city where these powers are so limited in extent as to defeat the grant of power, so that the power is in effect a new power, the bill imposes certain restrictions on the power so granted (page 7, line 24, to page 10, line 21.) These limitations have no application whatever to a city which now has such power (page 7, lines 19 to 23; page 10, line 22, to page 11, line 2.) This is expressly declared as follows, at page 10, line 22: 'The foregoing limitations shall not apply to the exercise by any city of any power now vested in it, where the existing provisions of law determining by whom or in what manner or subject to what conditions such power shall be exercised are not superceded by the provisions of subdivision 1 of this section (i. e., where the existing provisions regulate the exercise of the power as distinguished from preventing its exercise or limiting its extent,) but in such case the exercise of such power shall be subject only to such existing provisions of law, and shall not be limited or restricted by any provision of this section.'

"To sum up the provisions of the bill as to existing laws, it maintains in force all provisions of general law and all provisions of special or local laws which regulate the exercise of powers granted and supersedes only those provisions of special or local law which prevent the exercise or limit the extent of such powers.

"This shows how groundless are Mr. Ivins's fears that powers will be transferred to the Board of Aldermen. He instances the educational system; but that is now in the hands of the Board of Education, and under this bill will remain there. He also mentions the civil service system, which is now in the hands of the Municipal Civil Service Commission, subject to the supervision of the State Civil Service Commission, under the provisions of the civil service law, which is continued in force.

"Mr. Ivins's statement that the bill will 'repeal all of the legislation fixing the salary of public employes' shows a failure to read the bill carefully. Not only is no such legislation repealed, but care has been taken to avoid any interference with local charter provisions by withholding all power to regulate the salaries of city officers. At page five, line 12, the bill empowers a city 'to determine and regulate the number, mode of selection, terms of employment, qualifications, powers, and duties and compensation of all employees of the city and the relations of all officers and employees of the city to each other, to the city and to the inhabitants.'

"Every lawyer knows that every person serving the city, who has a regular position and salary, is in law an officer, not an employe, and that an employe, as distinguished from an officer, is a casual employe, not having a regular position and salary. This bill gives power to regulate the salaries of employes, but it gives no power to interfere with the salaries of city officers as fixed by law, and the power to fix the salaries of employes will, as explained above, remain where it is now.

"Mr. Ivins's apprehension that the grant to the city of a general ordinance-making power will operate to transfer to the Board of Aldermen all the powers now possessed by the Legislature of the State and by all city officials has as little basis as his other fears. That grant must be read, as every statutory grant must be read, together with what precedes and follows. This power, like all the other powers granted, is regulated by existing provisions of law, and by the other provisions of this very bill. Read in its context it is simply the grant of the general ordinance-making power which every city should have, governed by other provisions of law.

"As to the general grant of powers contained in Section 19, Mr Ivins is inconsistent in attacking this grant for indefiniteness, and then criticising as unnecessary the definite enumeration which follows in Section 20. In point of fact, the only definite and specific grant of powers in the bill is that contained in Section 20. What the general provision of Section 19 does is merely to declare the principle that a city is deemed to have all powers requisite to its own self-government. This will operate not so much as a grant of any particular power, as to change the existing presumption of law that a city has no powers which are not expressly granted, into a presumption that a city has every power of self-government not expressly denied to it. This alone will be a decided step in the direction of home rule."

Mr Tanzer said the fear expressed by Chairman McCall of the Public Service Commission that the bill might supersede the provisions of the Charter and of the Rapid Transit act relating to franchises arose from a misconception similar to that which he attributed to Mr. Ivins.

"The grant of powers conferred by the bill is in express terms made subject to the general laws of the State," he said. "This includes the Rapid Transit act under which all rapid transit franchises are granted, and also the Public Service Commissions law under which the Public Service Commission derives its authority. This point has been clearly and definitely passed upon by the Court of Appeals in the case of Admiral Realty Co. vs. City of New York, reported in Volume 206, New York Reports Page 110, where the constitutionality of the Rapid Transit act was attacked on the ground that it was a private or local bill and not a general law.

"The court held that the Rapid Transit act applying to all cities of over a million inhabitants is a general law of the State, even though at the present time New York City is the only city of that description to which it can apply. Under this decision of the highest court it is settled beyond controversy that the Rapid Transit act is a general law, and consequently the franchise granting power in New York City remains under the express terms of the Cullen-Levy bill subject to the provisions of that act without change."

SULZER MAY SIGN TO-DAY.

Governor Believes Home Rule Act Repeals No General Law.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 9.—Gov. Sulzer intimated to-day that he would probably sign the Levy-Cullen Municipal Home Rule bill to-morrow. The bill, which has had the backing of many civic organizations as well as a majority of the Mayors throughout the State, was introduced, it is said here, to put an end to the mass of local legislation that has crowded the calendars of the Legislature at every session as well as to give to municipalities a measure of home rule pledged in the platforms of all the three leading parties.

The only objections advanced against the bill at the hearing before Gov. Sulzer yesterday were voiced by Oliver C. Semple, representing the Public Service Commission, who said Chairman McCall feared the bill might interfere with or modify the Rapid Transit Act, and by R. W. Belcher, Secretary of the Civil Service Reform Association, who said that the Civil Service law was endangered by the "vague and sweeping" provisions of the bill.

Gov. Sulzer then said that he had given much thought to the measure and was convinced that the bill repealed no general law. He said he felt certain that the bill would in no way affect the Civil Service law, but he was not so sure about the Rapid Transit Act. He added that he would investigate this question, and if it was found to interfere with the Rapid Transit Act he would urge its amendment before final action.

It is expected that Corporation Counsel Watson will send a brief on the bill, but at the hearing yesterday no light was thrown upon the attitude of the New York City officials concerning the provisions of the measure which has been under discussion for the last two months.

The bill is indorsed by the Citizens Union. J. O. Hammitt, Secretary of the union, says that it does not disturb present conditions in New York City.

The bill was drafted by Laurence A. Tanzer, Chairman of the Charter Committee of the Citizens' Union, and was perfected in conferences in which J. Hampden Dougherty, who is considered a charter expert, participated.

To Discuss Long Island Roads.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 9.—Regis H. Post and R. M. Cornell, the latter representing Frederic R. Coudert, called on Gov. Sulzer to-day to urge a change in the contracts for improved highways in Nassau and Suffolk Counties, which were awarded last October, and to urge a hearing on the question if there was doubt as to the desires of the residents of these counties as to the character of the new construction. The Governor directed his callers to John A. Hennessy, who is investigating conditions in the Highway Department. Mr. Hennessy said to-night that Acting Supt. Sturtevant and Chief Engineer McLeod would confer with him to-morrow in the hope of reaching a decision as to the best method of constructing roads on Long Island. He said it was probable that the contracts would be changed so that a more substantial base than Hudson River gravel would be provided for.

WILSON WILL LET CALIFORNIA ACT

Won't Interfere with the State in Passing Alien Law Aimed at Japanese.

WANTS TREATY RESPECTED

If It Is Violated by State Enactment He Will Leave It to the Courts to Decide the Issue.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The movement in California to enact an alien land law designed to prevent the Japanese from acquiring title to lands in that State, will not be opposed by the present Administration so long as no violation of treaty obligations is attempted. This attitude toward the anti-Japanese feeling in California, which has already been made the subject of an informal protest from the Japanese Government, is due to President Wilson's belief that the legislation proposed is within the rights of a sovereign State.

In an interview this afternoon with Congressman Raker of California the President made his position clear. It is now definitely known that there is no intention to include in the prohibition the disbarring of the right of the Japanese to lease land for residential or commercial purposes. The Japanese Government holds that the proposed restriction as to owning lands is discriminatory, but to this the reply is made that citizens of the United States are not allowed under the treaty of 1894, which was renewed two years ago, to hold title to real estate in Japan, but may, as the Japanese do in this country, lease lands for residences or for business purposes.

President Wilson is disposed to keep hands off, and let the California Legislature pass the proposed law. Then if the question whether a State may enact legislation in contravention of treaty provisions can be taken into the courts, a decision will be sought which will decide how far the States may go in curtailing rights extended to foreigners by treaty. Congressman Raker to-day received the following telegram from J. B. Sanford, a member of the California Legislature:

> People demand enactment of alien land law. If Legislature refuses people will resort to initiative sentiment. Five to one in favor of alien land law. Governor should not interfere with our local affairs is belief. Hands off at Washington. Japanese recorded 282 leases in March, 1909, and 319 in March of last year. Japanese have invaded practically every occupation, skilled and unskilled. Forty-one per cent. of Japanese arrivals are women.

Congressman Raker responded as follows:

> Rush by telegraphic letter at once following information: First—Number of Japanese in California from Asiatic League's latest investigation. Second—Same information from best source otherwise obtainable. Third—Same as to Chinese. Fourth—Same as to all other Asiatics, including Hindoos. Fifth—Give land holding of each above named and the increase there, within the last two years. Smith—The same as to real estate holdings and leaseholdings.

Diplomatises point out that another question, also involving treaty obligations, is pending between Japan and the United States—that of the fur seal convention. Former President Taft, just before leaving office, urged Congress to pass certain laws that the United States might not be "remiss in observing treaty obligations." Great Britain, too, has made representations on what it contends to be a non-fulfillment of the fur seal treaty. It is suggested now that any charge of a breach of treaty obligation with Japan and Great Britain on the California legislation and fur seal question might become a factor in the pending negotiations between the United States and Great Britain over the exemption of American coastwise ships from canal tolls, which Great Britain also contends to be a breach of a treaty obligation.

TOKIO, April 9.—The Executive Committee of the National Liberal Party passed a resolution to-day urging the Governments of Japan and the United States to prevent the passage of the California Land Ownership bill owing to the serious effect it will have on the interests of the two nations and on their relations.

HE'D WEIGH TRUSTS' VALUE.

Secretary of Commerce Uncertain Whether They're Profitable.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Doubt as to whether trusts were industrially efficient and whether they were national menaces or chiefly menaces to themselves and to those interested in their securities was expressed to-day by Secretary Redfield of the Department of Commerce in an address before the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association. He said he hoped the Bureau of Corporations "would be able to make from the industrial and production side, from the basis of mere manufacturing efficiency, a thorough study of this great subject."

In the formation of a trust, he continued, certain economies were obvious.

"But are the economies of centralized organization more than balanced by certain economic weaknesses, which do not arise in the smaller concerns?" he asked. "Is it or is it not true that the major motive in the forming of the trust is the profits of the promoters that organize it? There seems to come a point beyond which the increase of output is done at an increasing expense.

"We know that many of the trusts have ceased to be. They have commercially failed. We know that others are not paying profits on their securities at all commensurate with those earned by smaller private concerns. What the facts are precisely we do not know. They need to be exhaustively worked out, for we may come to find that the remorseless law of economics is working its way irrespective of legislation, and that the light of economic truth, once found and fully turned on the subject, may make clear a way which to many has seemed rough and hazardous."

The Secretary advocated the appointment of commercial attachés to all important American embassies, asserting they were as necessary as military attachés.

FIXES $9 AS MINIMUM WAGE.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Senator Chilton of West Virginia introduced a bill to-day making it unlawful for any inter-State corporation to employ a "female person" at a wage less than $9 a week, or at any wage if the person is less than 15 years old. The penalty named for violation is not less than $500, or imprisonment for not less than three months, at the discretion of the court. Each week of the illegal employment constitutes a separate offense of the bill.

In addition, the person illegally employed may recover a sum equal to five times the difference between $9 and the smaller wage actually paid.

Proposes Residence for Marshall.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—A Government residence, second in rank to the White House, is proposed for Vice President Marshall in a bill introduced in the House by Representative Cullop of Indiana, who asks authority for $5,000 immediately for designs for such a building in Washington.

McADOO WANTS NEW BLOOD.

Resignations Demanded of Customs Officers in Philadelphia.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Reorganization of the personnel of the customs service was begun to-day, when Secretary McAdoo of the Treasury Department took steps to displace all the high customs officials at the port of Philadelphia. Mr. McAdoo asked for the resignations of Collector Chester J. Hill, Surveyor Perry M. Lytle, Appraiser Fred P. Vincent and Naval Officer Walter T. Merrick, all of Philadelphia.

A formal statement issued about the matter was as follows:

"The resignations were requested not because charges have been preferred against them, but because it is deemed essential that these places shall be filled by persons who are in sympathy with the purpose and policies of the Administration, and also because it is considered vital in the interest of the public that new blood shall be brought into the service."

Treasury officers contented themselves with that brief statement, which was the first indication that a sweeping reorganization of the customs service was about to begin. It is known that Secretary McAdoo has his eyes on the Boston office, where an alleged customs scandal is under investigation.

Von Hoffman Will Move if Doctor Tries to Market His Vaccine.

ST. LOUIS, April 9.—Dr. Albert von Hoffman of St. Louis to-day directed his attorney in New York to apply for an injunction to restrain Dr. Friedmann from closing a contract with any one for the disposition of his tuberculosis vaccine in case Dr. Friedmann should attempt to put his remedy on the market.

Dr. von Hoffman says he has a prior contract with Dr. Friedmann for the commercial rights to the vaccine, and to-day gave out the alleged contract. This is dated Oct. 24. 1912, and reads:

"Dr. F. F. Friedmann has invented a new cure for tuberculosis and applied for patents in the United States for same, and Albert von Hoffman, a citizen of the United States, desires to acquire the rights and privileges of this patent. Dr. von Hoffman will pay, thirty days after such discovery is recognized by the Medical Congress of Berlin and Vienna as an absolute cure for tuberculosis the sum of $100,000, and sixty days thereafter Dr. von Hoffman agrees to pay the sum of $900,000.

"Accepted.

"Dr. F. F. FRIEDMANN."

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, April 9.—Dr. Friedrich F. Friedmann spent the afternoon to-day at the State Sanitarium at Wallum Lake putting in one of the busiest periods that he has had since arriving in this country. Three automobiles carried the party from this city to the sanitarium, which is in the northern part of the State, and in the five hours that Dr. Friedmann spent at the institution he treated sixty-nine patients. To twenty or thirty others who were there and who were eager for the treatment he gave his promise to return before he left this city.

The candidates were first examined by Dr. Strum, Dr. Friedmann's assistant, and the treatment was given in the large treatment room of the administration building in the presence of a dozen doctors. Of the patients, forty-five were men. Included in the sixty-nine cases were various phases of the disease, some patients having it only in the incipient stages, others in the more advanced, some having pulmonary tuberculosis, others diseased limbs.

While the doctor was at the sanitarium Gov. Pothier telephoned from the State House in this city and informed him that he had a telegram from the Governor of Delaware, saying that a citizen of that State was on his way here in a private car, and asking if he could be treated. Dr. Friedmann replied that he would treat the man when he arrived, and Gov. Pothier wired the answer to Delaware.

When Dr. Friedmann left the sanitarium he was cheered by the patients, all of whom met him during his stay. This evening he received several patients at the Narragansett Hotel in this city. He has appointments for more to-morrow morning.

HOMES FOR ENVOYS PROVIDED BY BILL

Bacon Presents Measure for Leasing and Furnishing Quarters at Government Expense.

TO BUY BUILDINGS LATER

Names $20,000 to be Spent for London, Paris, Berlin, and St. Petersburg Embassies Respectively.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The first sequel to President Wilson's initiation of a policy of appointing men of moderate means to high diplomatic positions came to-day when Senator Bacon of Georgia, Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, introduced a bill aimed to open the Diplomatic Service to men of the type preferred by the President. Instead of raising the diplomatic salaries, as suggested in several quarters, Mr. Bacon's bill provides for the leasing and furnishing of embassies and legations at Government expense until suitable diplomatic homes can be acquired.

The leasing provisions take effect at once. At the same time the Secretary of State is directed to investigate and report to Congress concerning the cost and advisability of the Government purchasing sites and erecting buildings for four embassies or legations a year. For the purpose of making the investigation the bill appropriates $30,000, to be immediately available.

In determining how much should be paid for the leasing and furnishing of temporary quarters Mr. Bacon's measure divides the capitals of the world into four classes. For the first class, which includes only London, Paris, Berlin, and St. Petersburg, the allowance for furnishing is $20,000 in each case, while an annual rental of $10,000 is allowed.

In the second class the allowance for furnishing is reduced to $15,000 and the annual rental to $8,000. This class includes embassies at Vienna, Rome, Mexico, and Tokio.

In the third class the cost of furnishing is limited to $12,000 and the annual rental to $7,000. This applies to our Envoys' quarters in Spain, Belgium and Luxembourg, Cuba, Argentina, and the Netherlands.

In the fourth class furnishing is limited to $8,000 and the annual rental to $4,000. In this class are the legations at the capital of Switzerland, Denmark, Sweden, Portugal, the Balkan States, Chile, Colombia, Peru, and Venezuela.

The fifth class, with a furnishing allowance of $7,000 and a rental of $3,000, includes the legations to Norway, Greece, Persia, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Salvador, Guatemala, Bolivia, Honduras, Paraguay, Uruguay, and Morocco and the Consulate General at Cettinje, the capital of Montenegro.

The United States at present owns only one embassy, that at Constantinople, and one legation, that at Peking. These buildings were acquired largely for the safety of the mission, in both cases being situated with a view to the military protection of the foreign quarter.

The general features of the bill are understood to have the President's approval. Mr. Bacon said this afternoon that, while he had not consulted his colleagues before introducing the measure, he felt sure of their hearty co-operation. He said he expected the bill to become a law at an early date.

TAFT AT UNIVERSITY CLUB.

Guest at Dinner and at Large Reception Following It.

Fifty members of the University Club, many of them classmates of ex-President William H. Taft, had him as their guest at a private dinner last night in the club, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-fourth Street. The dinner was followed by a reception which was attended by nearly 500 members and guests. Mr. Taft spoke briefly at the dinner, but neither the speech nor any information concerning the evening's events was given out.

YAQUIS START NEW REVOLT.

Take the War Path in Sonora and Kill Captives by Torture.

NOGALES, Ariz., April 9.—Yaqui Indians, partisan to neither side in the Sonora revolt, have taken the war path between Hermosilo, the State capital, and Guaymas, the gulf port. Reports reached here to-day of tortures inflicted on captives. Eighteen Mexican men, women, and children were captured by the Indians between Ortiz and Empalme, a few miles north of Guaymas, and were killed by torture.

NACO, Ariz., April 9.—Although besieged by a force three times their number, Gen. Ojeda's Federals continued to-day their aggressive fighting by brilliant sallies from Naco, Sonora. Each time the State troops attempted to attack, the Government soldiers met them outside the trenches.

Col. Calles attempted late this afternoon to rush the Federal position. Ojeda made a sortie. Calles fell back. The 300 Federals pursued until they encountered the command of Dracamonte and the Yaqui Indian division. The rebel gunners were slaughtered by a shower of shrapnel. Then Ojeda rapidly retired.

The most sensational fighting occurred when forty-five Federals were trapped outside the town. Eighteen returned to the garrison bearing their wounded Captain. Ten crossed the international line and were held by United States troops. The others were killed or injured.

The only advantage gained by the attacking forces was the construction of breastworks 300 yards from the town. The work was accomplished with great loss of life.

CALLS JUDGE A DARLING.

Divorcee Thanks Justice Giegerich for Granting Her Decree.

Yesterday was undefended divorce day in Justice Giegerich's part of the Supreme Court and many and varied were the cases before the court. One plaintiff, Mrs. Vivienne Mae Nicholay, was so happy when she received her decree that she called the Judge a darling to his face.

Attired in a blue panier gown, with a hat one of the spectators called "a futurist creation," she said that she was married to David H. Nicholay in 1906, and their life had been happy until her husband began to stay out late. Mrs. Nicholay hired detectives, who, she said, soon supplied her with the evidence to justify a divorce.

"Oh, Judge, what a darling you are!"

She became confused a moment later at the laughter her remark occasioned and bowed an apology.

The story of two manicure girls who married the same man, but did not know it for a long time, though they were both working in the same shop, was brought out in the case of Mrs. Rose Van Tassell against Walter Van Tassell. The women were employed at a Broadway and 110th Street shop, and one day when business was dull began to talk about their personal affairs and discovered how they had been deceived. Mrs. Margaret Van Tassell said that her husband had been sent to Blackwell's Island for his failure to support her and her 4-year-old boy.

PAJAMA DANCE LIKED.

Offered in Playlet Preceding Mrs. Belmont's Political Equality Ball.

A lot of little kiddies in their nighties, dancing around the stage at Terrace Garden last night, called forth enthusiastic applause from an audience in evening dress. It was Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont's big Political Equality Association ball, which was preceded by a playlet, "The Camp Fire Girls." The camp fire girls, after they had retired to their tents for the night, were seized with a desire to dance, and it was this dance in pink, blue, white, yellow—all colors of the rainbow—pajamas, with little lace caps, that the audience liked.

The audience was made up of the guests at the dance, the young men and women who patronize Mrs. Belmont's lunch room and classes. Signs on the wall announced that by order of the Bureau of Licenses the turkey trot, grizzly bear, shiver, and Boston dip dances would not be permitted. Mrs. Belmont was at the ball looking on with a party of personal friends. Miss Elizabeth Freeman acted as stage manager.

M'REYNOLDS AGAINST DISSOLUTION PLAN

He Wants Southern Pacific Stock Sold to the Stockholders of Both Roads.

FAVORS A PRO RATA BASIS

Matter Now Will Be Left to the St. Louis Court Which May Call Attorney General.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—In a communication to Robert S. Lovett, President of the Union Pacific Railroad Company, Attorney General McReynolds to-day expressed his purpose not to approve the plan for the dissolution of the Southern Pacific-Union Pacific merger. The Attorney General objects to that part of the plan which provides for the sale of $126,000,000 of Southern Pacific stock held by the Union Pacific. The plan received the approval of Mr. McReynolds's predecessor, G. W. Wickersham, who presented it to the United States Court at St. Louis on Feb. 24.

An objection was made at that time by the California Railway Commission in regard to the provisions for the use of the short line in the State of California and the terminals of the Southern Pacific, and the decree was withheld. The main plan, however, stood unopposed until the new Attorney General came into office.

The Wickersham plan for the disposition of the Southern Pacific stock held by the Union Pacific provided that it should pass into the hands of a Trustee to be sold to the general public, and that Union Pacific shareholders should be permitted to buy only a small minority of the stock not to exceed 1,000 shares each. Attorney General McReynolds, it is understood, took the view that this stock should be sold pro rata among the holders of the stock of both roads. The difficulties as to the California terminals and the short line have been met, and are no longer a part of the controverted parts of the plan for dissolution.

Mr. McReynolds, it is understood, believes that the decision of the Supreme Court requires a pro rata sale of the stock. In consequence of the Attorney General's conclusion the plan will be presented to the court at St. Louis as it stands and the Attorney General will offer no opposition to it. He reserves the right to give the plan further study and to oppose the execution of it if the decree of the court is unsatisfactory to the Government.

There is much speculation as to the course that may be required to carry out the dissolution plan if the court should not agree with the views of Mr. McReynolds. The limit of time as extended by the Supreme Court within which the plan may be perfected and submitted to the court below expires on May 10. Should the court refuse to approve, it will be necessary to place the Southern Pacific in the hands of a receiver and the Attorney General may decide to go to the Supreme Court again and ask for further directions as to the specific method to be adopted to effect the complete and adequate dissolution of the merger.

It may also happen that in view of the perplexities in the situation the court may call on the Attorney General to appear and explain his views.

The decision communicated to-day to Judge Lovett is the second announcement that Attorney General McReynolds has made in regard to the dissolution plan. Both were adverse to the plans devised by the counsel for the two roads.

Southern Pacific Election.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 9.—In conformity with the decree of the Supreme Court of the United States dissolving the Union and Southern Pacific merger, the Southern Pacific stock held by the Union Pacific was not voted today at the annual meeting here of stockholders of the Southern Pacific Company. The names of Robert S. Lovett and others conspicuous in the old board do not appear in the list of Directors elected to-day. These were: L. F. Loree, Ogden Mills, L. J. Spence, William Sproule, E. P. Swenson, J. N. Wallace, Julius Kruttschnitt, C. M. Bliss, Walter P. Bliss, Henry G. Forest, Robert Goelet, J. H. Harding, Charles W. Harkness, H. E. Huntington and J. M. Jardine.

Before Directors were elected to-day it was necessary to authorize a change in the by-laws permitting the majority of the stockholders not disfranchised by the Supreme Court's ruling to constitute a quorum.

WOMEN INVADE WALL ST.

Drawn by Donkeys, They Talk Suffrage to the Brokers.

Wall Street was honored with another suffragette demonstration yesterday. It was the first that had occurred for months, and was staged in such a novel form that it attracted a crowd composed only in small part of the omnipresent messenger boys.

Four young suffragettes, Miss Elizabeth McGowan, Miss Myra Cordes, Miss Dorothy Lee, and Miss Katharine Morris, rode downtown from Thirty-eighth Street and Fifth Avenue in a carriage drawn by four diminutive donkeys. At the start the animals were made up after the symbols used by the Republican, Democratic, Progressive, and Socialist parties, but as the carriage pushed through the crowds its motive power resumed its wonted appearance.

At the corner of Wall and Broad Streets a halt was made, while Miss Mary Donnelly, John W. Batdorf, and Jack McGee instructed the populace on women's rights. Twelve policemen from Old Slip had been detailed as a body guard, but the crowd was respectful and needed no prodding.

TOLLS BILL COMING UP.

Committee to Vote on Barring Canal Privileges to Our Ships.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Senator Root's amendment to the Panama Canal act, which would remove the exemption of American ships from toll payment, will be brought up before the Interoceanic Canals Committee again in the present session. Senator O'Gorman, Chairman of the committee, said to-day that he expected to call a meeting next week.

The Root amendment may not be taken up at once, but will be disposed of probably before the Tariff bill comes from the House. Senator O'Gorman said he was just as much opposed to the bill as he ever had been, and expressed the belief that it would fail to be reported to the Senate by a vote close to that by which it was defeated at the last session, 10 to 3.

Servants in McCrea Will.

PHILADELPHIA, April 9.—The will of James McCrea, former President of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, was admitted to probate at Norristown to-day. Nearly all of the estate of $50 and upwards was left to the McCrea family. Two servants "are to be kept in comfort as long as they live."

OLYMPIC, DONE OVER, ONCE MORE IN PORT

$1,250,000 FOR REPAIRS

New Parisian Restaurant—English Commissioners for Anglo-American Exposition Aboard.

After more than six months in Harland & Wolff's shipyard, in Belfast, getting fitted with an inner skin and longitudinal bulkheads at a cost of $1,250,000, the White Sar-liner Olympic arrived in port yesterday from Southampton again in command of Capt. H. J. Haddock. She carried 1,553 passengers. Of this number, 242 were first, 231 second, and 1,080 third class passengers.

The passengers spoke well of the steadiness of the Olympic, and the Surgeon, J. C. H. Beaumont, who is known as the "Caruso" of the Atlantic, said that a great deal was due to the extra weight of the additional bulkheads and double skin, which increased the tonnage from 45,324 to 46,358.

In addition to the alterations below decks the Olympic has a new Parisian restaurant, where epicures can eat at moderate prices, and also a Winter garden, which can be used on the finest day in mid-Summer, or the stormiest in Winter.

This does not in any way interfere with the veranda cafe on the after part of the upper promenade deck. The inconvenience of carrying up dishes from the saloon galley to the Parisian restaurant, which was the cause of dishes being cold before the Olympic went to Belfast, in the Fall, has been obviated by the construction of a galley on the forepart of the restaurant, so that the dishes can be handed in from the stove.

Two of the oldest employes of the White Star Line made the trip on the Olympic from Southampton, and enjoyed the experience, Thomas R. Thorne, head of the Mediterranean service in the first cabin department, and John N. Smith, gateman. Both have been in the service of the company for 35 years. Mr. Smith, who made his first trip to his native land in 40 years, was received at the pier by all the old employes of the line. They gave him a parting serenade with the firemen's kettle and bones band.

The Olympic is still the largest passenger liner afloat, and gives the idea of her immensity to those who go on board and try to find some one without knowing exactly where to look. She is so big that passengers crossing on her rarely explore all the decks in the first cabin. Two old friends, both from Chicago, met at the pier yesterday for the first time in two years without being aware that they had been fellow voyagers from Cherbourg to New York.

Among the passengers was William Church Osborne, an old friend of President Wilson, who has been spending some time in Spain studying its municipal market systems. Mr. Osborne said that he found the Spanish methods of public markets to be much better than those employed in New York.

Another passenger was Mrs. Margaret S. Blood, whose husband is a Director of the Berwind-White Coal Company, and in consequence several tugs belonging to the company met the Olympic at Quarantine and escorted her up the harbor, emitting joyous toots. John Bartholomew, victualling superintendent of the White Star Line at Southampton, who was chief steward of the Oceanic years ago when she was the late J. Pierpont Morgan's favorite ship, arrived on the Olympic. W. Jones from the Adriatic is now the chief steward of the Olympic.

Albert and Charles Kiralfy, Deputy Commissioners of the Anglo-American Exposition, which is to be held in London from May to October in 1914, in celebration of the hundred years' peace between English-speaking nations since the treaty of Ghent in 1814, were also on the Olympic. They are stopping at the Plaza, as advance guards of a further deputation of the English Committee which will arrive next week under the Earl of Kintore, former Australian Governor and Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Exposition.

The English deputation, the two Deputy Commissioner Generals said, was coming here at the suggestion of the Lord Mayor of London, to confer with the American Committee.

ROZSIKA DOLLY MARRIED.

Dancer Goes to Greenwich and Weds Jean Schwartz.

Miss Rozsika Dolly, one of the Dolly twins, who have danced through several Broadway successes to popular approval since they came here hand in hand with their parents six years ago from the Hungarian capital, was a little late for her cue at the matinée of "The Beggar Student" in the Casino yesterday, because she had celebrated her twenty-first birthday a few hours previously by going to another State to marry the composer of the music of "The Honeymoon Express," Jean Schwartz. She leaped from the honeymoon car, a dusty, mud-spattered automobile, in which they returned, and dashed for her dressing room. And the wedding breakfast consisted of a cold lunch served in the car during the run from Greenwich, Conn., where they were married at noon in the City Hall by Justice of the Peace Stephen L. Radford.

While the bride was dancing the groom returned to his work in his office in West Forty-sixth Street. There he was busily engaged when asked about the wedding.

"Well, we didn't want our friends to know about it just yet, as I have to leave for Chicago in a few days, and hoped to keep the marriage secret for a couple of weeks and announce it on my return," he said. "Now we will have to tell my wife's parents, too."

The composer and his bride did not know whether her parents objected to their marriage, for the simple reason that they did not ask them. But the former hastened to make amends by giving a dinner to Mr. and Mrs. Dolly in Rector's last evening, where they were told all about it, and accepted the explanation gracefully, though protesting their disappointment at not being invited to the ceremony.

Only two friends of the couple were present at the wedding, Harry Fox, comedian in "The Honeymoon Express," and Miss Yanesi Dolly, the twin sister of the bride. The remarkable resemblance of the sisters was a source of embarrassment to the Justice who married them. After signing the marriage certificate he handed the document to Miss Yanesi Dolly.

MOSS'S FIRST SERMON.

Son of Frank Moss to Preach as Pastor of Metropolitan Temple.

Arthur Moss, son of Assistant District Attorney Frank Moss, has been appointed pastor of the Metropolitan Temple, Seventh Avenue and Fourteenth Street, and will preach his first sermon to-night.

Arthur Moss was just admitted to the Methodist Episcopal ministry at the conference last week and was appointed pastor of the Metropolitan Temple yesterday.

The Metropolitan Temple, which was formerly the Central Methodist Church, was the home church of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant. There is a mortgage on the building for $50,000, which will shortly be due, and one of the first things the Rev. Arthur Moss will do is to try to lift this mortgage.

¶ The importance of dress in your daily life is evident from the fact that you spend about sixteen hours a day in clothes.

¶ And any man who spends that length of time in clothes can afford to find out once and for all just whether or not Saks clothes actually are all that they are reputed to be.

¶ To spend two-thirds of your life in clothes that do not compensate you for wearing them is as though you should work solely for love and not for the reward that goes with it.

¶ The beauty of toil in this commercial age is expressed by the dollar sign, and clothes are not so scarce that a man must dispense with the compensations of fit and style.

¶ There are so many clothes in the world and so many people making them, that you are in a position to demand something better than the average, and we are in a position to give it to you.

in session when the hour set by the President drew near. All the members except Senator Gore and Senator Shively, both of whom were a little late, then assembled in the President's room. Exactly on the stroke of 3 the President appeared in the corridor flanking the marble room, walking in the direction of the President's chamber.

Simple Greeting for Wilson.

Mr. Wilson had come to the Capitol as simply as he had yesterday. There was, of course, no committee to meet him, and as he alighted from his automobile he was greeted simply by the Sergeant at Arms, Mr. Higgins, and Secretary of the Senate Mr. Baker. They placed themselves at either side of the President and walked with him through the corridors. Two of the Secret Service men opened the way through the crowd, which was very small, and the other two brought up the rear. Mr. Tumulty walked behind the President, but withdrew as soon as the party reached the President's room. The doors were then closed.

The conference was entirely informal. Even before the President's arrival the Senators on entering his room had tossed their unfinished cigars into a receptacle. But when the doors were opened it was evident that the President had induced them to resume the weed. The room was thick with smoke and Senators were puffing placidly when they sauntered out behind the President into the corridor.

The conference was conducted simply in the form of a round table conversation between eleven men. The President intimated that he was particularly anxious for the bill to go through the Senate, as through the House, intact, with the exception of the few amendments already indicated and some others like them. The Senators assured him that they were most sympathetic to the bill, and they felt that as it would pass the Senate it would be substantially the Democratic bill now commonly referred to as the Administration measure. But the right of amendment in the Senate, they said, had never been curtailed, and it would not be curtailed now. This point of view the President seemed in the end to accept, though he has undoubtedly set his heart upon a measure with sufficient momentum to carry it unamended through the gantlet both of the Senate and the House.

It was learned afterward that the Senators have in no way changed their position of a few days ago that the safety of the bill demands that it be divided into three parts. When questioned as to the possibility of bringing further pressure to bear on the Democratic caucus of the House to induce a division of the measure there, Senators replied that it seemed scarcely worth while, as everything had been said on that subject, and Mr. Underwood was in full touch with the situation in the Senate. When questioned further as to the possibility of passing the measure as a single bill, should the House adopt that form, they replied dubiously that they supposed it could be done. They made no secret of the fact, however, that they were dubious, and their chief hopefulness as well as their obvious good humor seemed to come from the tactful way in which the President had borne himself at the conference, and that in the end either the House would consent to divide the bill or that some compromise would be effected to continue Democratic harmony in the Senate.

CAUCUS MAKES NO CHANGES.

Chemical Schedule and Part of Earthenware Rates Agreed To.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—In caucus behind closed doors, the Democratic members of the House began consideration of the tariff bill. The caucus disclosed the complete mastery of Chairman Underwood and the House leaders over the situation. This was demonstrated at the start, when the caucus howled down an attempt to force the Ways and Means Committee to proceed with the nomination of all the House committees at this time. Some of the new members and a few of the old ones had been complaining because the committee and the leaders had decided upon the election of only four House committees at this time, these being necessary for the passage of the tariff bill.

Chairman Underwood rose and said he understood certain gentlemen wanted the committees appointed at once. Mr. Underwood added that if this was the case now was "the time to settle the matter." Whereupon Representative Saunders, a hold-over member from Virginia, at once offered a resolution calling for the immediate organization of all the committees. The caucus shouted its disapproval, and the Virginian quickly withdrew the resolution. This outburst of sentiment in support of the position of Chairman Underwood was significant.

Again, when Representative Thompson, a new member from Oklahoma, suggested in the course of the reference to the committee organization that this was "a very fine time to take from the Ways and Means Committee the power to nominate committees," Representative Underwood responded suavely:

"All right. Now is the time to offer the resolution."

Representative A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania, Chairman of the caucus, recognized Mr. Thompson, thereby affording him the opportunity to offer such a motion. But the Oklahoma member took his seat without seeking a test on the proposal, which would have been overwhelmingly defeated.

No Changes Made.

All this preceded the discussion of the tariff bill, which was taken up under the five-minute rule, as if it were before the House of Representatives in committee of the whole, and was debated item by item. The net result of a caucus session that lasted nearly six hours was the indorsement of the Underwood committee and the adoption of schedule A, covering duties on chemicals, oils, and paints, and the approval of the first six paragraphs of schedule B, which embraces earths, earthenware, and glassware.

There are 218 pages in the Underwood bill. The caucus to-day approved 17 pages and was debating fluorspar on the 18th page when a recess was taken until to-morrow. While the House is to meet at noon then, it will adjourn at once to make way for the continuation of the caucus.

The leaders say that with less than one-twelfth of the bill completed in caucus it will require about ten days' consideration of the bill in caucus to complete party action on the measure in the lower branch of Congress. This would run the caucus into next week, probably until Saturday night, April 19, in which event the tariff cannot be taken up for consideration and action by the House itself until about April 21.

Many amendments were offered in the caucus. But not a single change was made. It was evident that Chairman Underwood and his colleague were in complete control. None of the votes, however, involved any real test of strength. It is too early to predict what the final result will be in the caucus, which contains about 102 new and untried Democratic members, but the success with which the chemical schedule was put through greatly encouraged Chairman Underwood and his colleagues. The real fight will come when the wool and sugar schedules are reached.

Louisiana, Ohio, and certain Far Western members will attack the sugar schedule. The Ohioans are interested in both sugar and wool, because Ohio is the greatest merino wool-raising State and has some of the largest beet sugar factories in the country. Both these industries are dissatisfied with the proposal to remove the duty from raw wool at once and to make sugar free of duty in 1916. While the Ohioans will seek to have the sugar and wool schedules changed, it is understood that they will not oppose the bill in its entirety if they fail to get what they want for their State on these items.

Indigo and Linseed Rates Stand.

A number of amendments were offered to the chemical schedule, but those that caused the most discussion related to indigo and linseed oil. Representative H. A. Metz, former Controller of New York City, who is a new member, moved to amend the indigo paragraph so as to place that product on the free list. Paragraph 39 of the Underwood bill proposes to apply a duty of 10 per cent. on indigo, which has been on the free list for the past twenty years. The Wilson Tariff bill of 1896, the Dingley bill of 1905, the Payne Tariff bill of 1909, all made indigo free.

In 1912 there were 7,697,482 pounds of indigo imported, worth $1,160,473. Expecting that at least $1,000,000 worth of the product will come in the first twelve months of the operation of the proposed Underwood bill, the Ways and Means Committee decided to apply a 10 per cent. rate of duty on indigo for purely revenue purposes. On this basis of importation and taxation the Government would get about $100,000 revenue annually. The Metz amendment was defeated by a decisive vote.

Another amendment that caused extended debate was offered by Representative Fowler of Illinois. It proposed to reduce the duty on linseed oil to 5 cents a gallon. The Underwood bill would make it 12 cents a gallon. In 1912 790,000 gallons of this oil were imported, paying duty aggregating $118,544. Chairman Underwood believes the reduction to 12 cents a gallon will suffice. At this rate it would involve loss of about $22,000 revenue annually. The Fowler amendment was defeated.

son and Dingley laws was 20 cents a gallon. Under the Payne law it is 15 cents a gallon. In 1912 790,000 gallons of this oil were imported, paying duty aggregating $118,514. Chairman Underwood believes the reduction to 12 cents a gallon will suffice. At this rate it would involve loss of about $22,000 revenue annually. The Fowler amendment was defeated.

Representative Raker of California moved to amend Paragraph 73 of the bill so as to leave vanilla beans on the free list. The Underwood bill proposes to tax them 50 cents a pound. No duty has been imposed on vanilla beans for years. The Underwood Committee thinks 1,000,000 pounds of these beans will be imported in 1914, worth $2,000,000, and that $500,000 revenue can be collected from a 50 per cent. duty. The amendment was passed over to be voted on later.

Representative Claude L. Engle, a new member from Florida, offered a novel amendment at the end of the chemical schedule. He proposed that the Government levy an internal revenue tax, to be paid by all manufacturers importing chemical products who employ child labor, force women to work over hours, and refuse to pay an "American wage scale." Chairman A. Mitchell Palmer ruled the amendment out of order. He held that it was not germane, because it related to internal revenue. The section under consideration related only to customs duties.

The pottery, glassware, and iron and steel items will be reached in to-morrow's session of the caucus.

ISSUE ON CUBAN SUGAR.

Question Raised Whether Changed Duties Violate Treaty with Island.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—It is already apparent that several changes must be made in the terms of the Underwood Tariff bill. One of the questions raised is whether the changed sugar schedule does not violate the terms of the treaty with Cuba, the main feature of which provided that Cuban raw sugar be admitted to the United States at a preferential rate.

The point involved is rather finely drawn, but it may form the basis for considerable worry to President Wilson, Chairman Underwood, and the Senate and House leaders. It is involved in the language of a proviso of the act of Congress of Dec. 7, 1903, which was regarded as necessary to make the treaty operative. After the negotiation of the Cuban treaty, and while it was pending in the Senate, the issue was raised in the House that under its constitutional right that body must sanction any changes affecting the revenues of the United States. This contention was conceded ultimately by the Senate, and a bill was passed by both houses to carry out the purposes of the treaty.

When the Cuban treaty bill was in the Senate it was amended by the insertion of the proviso mentioned, which even at that time was criticised as a "joker." Senator Lodge of Massachusetts was the author of this provision. The proviso is as follows:

> Provided that while this treaty is in force no sugar imported from the Republic of Cuba, and being the product of the soil or industry of the Republic of Cuba, shall be admitted into the United States at a reduction of duty greater than 20 per centum of the rates of duty thereon as provided by the tariff act of the United States approved July 24, 1897, and no sugar, the product of any other foreign country, shall be admitted by treaty or convention into the United States while this convention is in force at a lower rate of duty than that provided by the tariff act of the United States approved July 24, 1897.

The Tariff act of July 24, 1897, is the Dingley law. The Underwood bill fixes a rate on raw sugar of one cent per pound for three years, after which it is to be free. With a reduction of 20 per cent. from the Dingley rates Cuban sugar pays $1.32 per 100 pounds. The Payne Tariff act of 1909 made little change in the sugar tariff, and Cuba continued to take the 20 per cent. reduction from the rates of the tariff act of 1897.

On the face of the evidence at hand Cuba, instead of being a specially favored nation, will be discriminated against when the Underwood sugar rates become effective. Under the terms of the treaty the arrangement cannot be abrogated in less than six months from the date of formal notice, no matter what reductions are made in the sugar rates of this country by legislation. Article 10 of the treaty provides that in case changes in the tariff of either country deprive either of the advantage represented by the percentages agreed upon "on the actual rates of the tariffs now in force," the country so deprived has the right to terminate its obligations on six months' notice. While the Dingley rates remained in force Cuba could have no cause of complaint and they were virtually unchanged by the Payne law.

A further clause of Article 10 provides that if at any time after the first year tariff changes caused Cuba to regard the duties levied by the United States as affording excessive protection, Cuba could reopen negotiations with a view to obtaining modifications.

The Underwood bill repeats, in the language of the Payne bill, a provision that nothing in the measure shall be construed to "abrogate or impair" the provisions of the treaty with Cuba. But it is contended here that this provision, while obviously intended by Chairman Underwood and his colleagues to continue the preference to Cuban sugar, misses the point. If Cuba is to have a 20 per cent. reduction from the raw sugar rate of the Dingley act of 1897, amounting to a net rate of $1.32 per hundred pounds, the preference will be to other nations whose sugar will be admitted at the rate of $1 per hundred pounds. Furthermore, a construction that would give Cuba the benefit of the Underwood rate of $1 per hundred would place Cuba on an equality with other nations, and would thus violate the provisions of the Cuban treaty, which gave Cuba 20 per cent. preferential. The question is, therefore, does the Underwood bill violate the treaty with Cuba, and also the law to make that treaty effective?

The proviso quoted gave a great advantage to American cane sugar and beet sugar growers. Cuban sugar was held strictly to a 20 per cent. reduction of the high Dingley rates, no matter what changes might be made by the United States in its tariff rates on sugar, and the United States was debarred from making any treaties that would give preference to sugar from other countries than Cuba.

ITALIANS ARE PLEASED.

Believe Exports from Their Country to America Will Increase.

ROME, April 9.—President Wilson's message to Congress has caused an excellent impression here, not only because reductions in the tariff will prove advantageous to Italy, whose exportations to the United States are constantly increasing, but because of general satisfaction over the fact that the United States is ready to accept the competition of European countries in matters of commerce.

All the newspapers publish the message extensively and point out that Italy will gain particularly in the export of oils, fruits, chemicals, medicines, cotton, wool, silk, leather, and cheese.

SEE CUT IN SHOE WAGES.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., April 9.—A general scaling down of wages in the boot and shoe industry will follow the enactment of the Underwood tariff if representative men in the trade see the outcome correctly.

Ezra S. Grover, editor of The Shoe and Leather Reporter, said to-day:

"If other necessaries of living were cheapened by the bill so that the shoe worker could buy more with his dollar, and afford to work for less money, and then come out with more money in the bank than he has now, all would be well. But my impression is that the wages in the industries affected cannot be reduced in proportion to the reductions made by the new tariff.

"These wage earners have been educated up to a higher wage and a higher standard of living, and will not welcome lower pay or longer hours. In view of this, if the shoe industry, by reason of having the duty removed, has got to meet European competition, which it is feared might undersell us, it will be necessary to lower manufacturing costs at some point. It is the expressed opinion of the leaders of the trade that this reduction will have to come out of labor."

Former Gov. William L. Douglas, well known as a manufacturer, declines to discuss the pending bill. He has been quoted in the past as an advocate of free shoes.

CALLS TEXTILE RATES "FATAL"

John R. Hinchliffe Says Proposed Tariff Will Cause Distress.

By Telegraph to the Editor of The New York Times.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., April 9.—If the proposed tariff bill becomes a law, it will undoubtedly create much suffering and distress in the textile centres, both with the manufacturers and operatives. The briefs submitted by our association gave positive facts and figures, showing the minimum rates required to do business on the smallest possible profit in competition with foreign manufacturers, and we are hoping that our legislators will very carefully read over the evidence, submitted before the Ways and Means Committee, and the Tariff Board's report, before making the fatal mistake invited by the new tariff bill. Our members are only asking for sufficient protection to make it possible to run their machinery, and we hope that their expert opinion will have serious consideration.

JOHN R. HINCHLIFFE,

WANAMAKER APPROVES.

Says Wilson Is Sincerely Trying to Carry Out Tariff Pledges.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., April 9.—John Wanamaker expressed satisfaction to-day with the address of President Wilson to Congress, because the Chief Executive was explicit on his tariff policy. The country, he said, could see precisely in what direction the President was heading, and the business world, therefore, knew more about his intentions. He said it was too soon to venture an opinion on the general effect upon trade of the reductions in the Underwood bill.

"Whatever men may say of the Administration's course," said Mr. Wanamaker, "all will admit the sincerity of the tone of the President's address to Congress. He is trying to fulfill, of course, the pledges on which he was elected, and the country believes he will keep his word.

"We must wait until Congress has finished its cutting and carving, and se what the finished product is; then we will have to wait again to see what the effect will be."

FORCIBLE FEEDING BROKE GIRL'S NOSE

Miss Emerson, Suffragettes Assert, May Never Completely Regain Health.

MRS. PANKHURST IS WEAKER

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 9.—Miss Zelie Emerson, the American suffragette who was released from prison yesterday and is now in a nursing home, is reported to be in a serious condition as a result of the forcible feeding to which she was subjected. It is asserted that she may never completely recover her health. The doctors do not allow any visitors except her mother, and she spends only five minutes with her daily.

Members of the Suffragette Jail Committee who saw the girl when she was released from Holloway Prison say the results of the treatment will leave a facial disfigurement. Several bones of the nose were broken.

Mrs. Emerson, who is now living at the Dysart Hotel, visited her daughter this morning accompanied by Miss Helen Scott Troy, who said she believed that, while Miss Emerson's condition was serious, she thought she would be able to give out a statement in about a week.

According to the prison doctor's report late to-night, Mrs. Pankhurst is beginning to show the effects of her refusal of food, and her strength has slightly failed. Although her release on license is thus brought appreciably nearer, it is not likely to be to-morrow, especially in view of the great suffragette demonstration planned for that evening in the Albert Hall, which she promised to attend. The doctors, however, may consider it inadvisable to keep her in prison later than Friday morning. It is not improbable that when she is released a police guard will be placed outside the house to which she is taken.

Replying to a question by James Keir Hardie in the House of Commons this afternoon, Home Secretary McKenna stated that Mrs. Pankhurst was refusing food but was not being forcibly fed. The prison doctor had not advised her release. Her own doctor was not allowed to visit her.

A crowd of 10,000 persons gathered this evening outside the jail in expectation of Mrs. Pankhurst's release. Two suffragettes who attempted to speak from a wagonette were howled down, and cries were raised of "Who burn houses?" and "Burn the Suffragettes!"

A man who attempted to address the crowd was pulled off the vehicle and roughly handled. Police escorted the women to a place of safety. A suffragette, who was found to possess a loaded revolver, was arrested.

It is stated on what is said to be "first-hand authority" that the Government is considering the question of proceeding against the Women's Social and Political Union in connection with the militant campaign, and is ascertaining if the law empowers the authorities to attach the funds of the organization.

LONDON, April 9.—The suffragettes continue their campaign of destruction. An empty passenger car on a train proceeding from Waterloo to Kingston-on-Thames was entirely destroyed by fire to-night. The other cars on the train were filled with passengers, who were greatly alarmed and indignant at the danger to which they were exposed. Among the débris a cannister such as was used by the women in a recent bomb outrage was found. Just before the train reached Kingston a loud explosion occurred.

Last evening a workman passing through an empty car attached to a train carrying passengers, discovered a bomb to which was attached a lighted fuse. All but an inch of the fuse was burned. He extinguished it. The bomb consisted of a cannister inclosed in a box in which were sixteen loaded gun cartridges, pieces of jagged steel, bullets, and scraps of lead. On the box was painted: "More to come. Votes for Women. Give us the Vote."

Militant suffragettes are again active around Nottingham. A haystack belonging to a widow was destroyed by fire to-day. Suffragette literature was left near by.

In view of the recent threats of the suffragettes, close guard is being kept on Nottingham Castle and other public buildings.

Miss Annie Kenney, the temporary head of the militant suffragettes, appeared at Bow Street Police Court today under a statute dating from the reign of Edward III. providing for preventive justice. She had been arrested yesterday and later released on bail on a warrant charging her with being a disturber of the peace and an inciter of others to commit crime, and also as being likely to persevere in such unlawful conduct, "which is likely to lead divers other women to commit further disturbances of the peace."

Fashionably dressed suffragettes crowded the police court when Miss Kenney appeared. She was remanded till April 22 on giving an undertaking to refrain from direct or indirect participation in militancy in the meantime.

The suffragettes declare that they are not responsible for an anonymous letter received by Sir Charles Montague Lush, the Judge who sentenced Mrs Emmeline Pankhurst to three years imprisonment. The letter threatened him with death.

The Secretary of the Women's Social and Political Union said to-day:

"Human life is sacred to us, as much so now as before the sentence on Mrs. Pankhurst."

NEW ROUTE FOR LINERS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 9.—As a result of the meeting in Brussels last month all the North Atlantic passenger lines forming the Conference have agreed to adopt a change of route from April 15, the anniversary of the sinking of the Titanic.

The present change means that liners will go even further south than the new Summer route. A system is also being arranged for modifying the route further in the event of abnormal circumstances.

GENERAL STRIKE IN BELGIUM MONDAY

SENDING FAMILIES ABROAD

BRUSSELS, April 9.—The last hope of the Socialists of intervention by the King to prevent the great general strike, called to enforce the granting by the Government of manhood suffrage, now appears to have disappeared. It is pointed out that such action in the existing circumstances would be unconstitutional and would be regarded by the Clericals as a coup d'état.

That the Government will now accept a compromise is also highly improbable, judging from the active military preparations which are going on. The orders for the departure of a large body of troops for camp have been countermanded and the troops will be distributed among the various industrial centres to safeguard the gas and electric plants, the railroads, tunnels, and bridges. Large forces of gendarmes also have been drafted and will be stationed in places regarded by the Government as danger points.

The Socialists are optimistic regarding their position. They say that contributions to the strike fund are pouring in from many outside sources and they now estimate that they can maintain the strike for at least four weeks, and perhaps for six weeks.

Rumors of a Ministerial crisis and of plots against prominent Clericals have been in circulation, but they are generally regarded as mendacious.

The first active move in preparation for the great general strike is being made by the sending out of the country of many families of the 300,000 or 400,000 workers who are to lay down their tools next Monday at the bidding of the Socialist Party.

It is expected that the train service will cease or be greatly impeded after Sunday, and the wives and children of hundreds of workmen are crossing the frontiers on every train. Offers of provisional homes abroad have arrived this week at the rate of 1,000 daily, and the directing committee of the strike has received 11,000 offers thus far—6,000 from France, 4,000 from Holland, and 1,000 from Germany.

Trade has increased in all kinds of preserved foods, and the sales of illuminating oils and candles have tripled.

The strike has been decided on by the Socialist Party as the last desperate measure to make the Government give Belgium a system of manhood suffrage instead of the system of plural voting now in practice. Its success or nonsuccess will be of consequence to the world at large, for if it succeeds it will demonstrate the practicability of the strike as a political weapon.

The movement appears to have been planned with extraordinary skill and care. Many Belgiums believe that the strike will result in political changes of incalculable importance, and some even predict a revolution, the separation of the Walloon and Flemish provinces, or a dynastic crisis.

The Socialist leaders are determined that the strike shall be peaceful. They affirm that any violence which may occur will be provoked by the Government and not by them.

MONS, April 9.—All the employes of the great electric plant at Patarages, four miles from Mons, have been notified to cease work on Monday. This will entail the complete stoppage of all industries in this district which depend on the plant for motive power.

M. Vandervelde, the Socialist leader in the Chamber of Deputies, and other prominent Socialists will address a big meeting here on Sunday.

TO CURB SECESSION TALK.

Cuban Government Agents to Report on Isle of Pines Conditions.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, April 9.—The Cuban Government has sent two secret agents to the Isle of Pines to investigate the movement for separation started by Americans, and to report regarding the allegations made in a petition to the United States Congress asking for separation from Cuba. The Government expects the investigation to show that Cubans and not Americans are paying practically all the taxes in the island, as Americans are exempt owing to the fact that they do not improve their properties. Unimproved properties are not taxed.

The Government, according to the authorities, will also show that a majority of the actual residents of the Isle of Pines are Cubans and not Americans, as the American petition asserts.

It is understood that these facts, when properly substantiated, will be forwarded to Minister Rivero in Washington for use in representations to the United States Government if the question comes up.

PIER CLOSED FOR MORGAN.

Police to Clear Street — Exchange Closes for Funeral.

Police Commissioner Waldo has completed the arrangements for the policing of Eleventh Avenue, in front of the French Line Pier, on the arrival of the liner France to-morrow with the body of J. Pierpont Morgan. Inspector Titus will be in command of the police, and only those persons bearing credentials from the Customs authorities will be permitted within the police lines, or on the pier.

Collector Loeb has issued orders that no cameras shall be taken on the pier, nor will any photographer be permitted on board the revenue cutter that will meet the France at Quarantine. It is understood that arrangements have been made for the immediate passing by the Customs Inspectors of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Satterlee, the latter of whom is a daughter of Mr. Morgan. Mr. and Mrs. Satterlee and their little niece, Miss Hamilton, are passengers on the France.

Police Commissioner Waldo has also arranged to have an adequate police guard placed in front of the Morgan home after the arrival there of the coffin and until the funeral, on Monday. Inspector Titus will be in charge of the police until the body is placed on board the special train, on which it will be taken to Hartford, Conn., for burial next Monday.

Directors of the International Mercantile Marine Company met yesterday and adopted resolutions expressing profound sorrow at Mr. Morgan's death, and saying it was a privilege of the greatest value to have been associated with him in his efforts to develop the transoceanic trade of the country.

Resolutions were adopted by the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees of the American Academy in Rome, at a meeting held here on Tuesday, saying, Mr. Morgan's "convictions and broad views as to the importance and scope of the academy, as an American institution representing both fine arts and classical studies in classic fields, have greatly contributed to the development of the institution and to its enlarged and permanent establishment, and while it is a cause of profound regret that he was unable to witness the completion of the future home of the academy upon the land which he had given for this purpose, it is nevertheless gratifying to know that the great pleasure of the last few days of his life was to visit the Janiculum and watch the progress of the academy which he had done so much to create."

Governors of the New York Stock Exchange voted yesterday to defer the opening of the Exchange next Monday until noon, out of respect to the late J. P. Morgan, whose funeral is to be held at that time.

SIMPLE MORGAN BURIAL.

Escort of Governor's Footguard Is Declined by Financier's Son.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 9.—Mayor Cheney received a letter from J. P. Morgan, Jr., this afternoon in which he declined the services of the First Company, Governor's Footguard, as an escort to the body of his father when it is brought here from New York for burial on Monday next. He said it was his father's expressed wish that everything about the ceremonies should be as simple as possible. The body would, he said, be taken direct from the train to Cedar Hill Cemetery and there only the committal service would be read. He thanked the Mayor and the people of Hartford for the interest and sympathy shown.

London Memorial Service Monday.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 9.—A memorial service for J. Pierpont Morgan will be held in Westminster Abbey at 12:30 P. M. next Monday. The Archbishop of Canterbury, the Dean of Westminster, and Bishop Boyd-Carpenter will be present. No invitations will be issued, the Abbey being open to those wishing to attend the service.

$20,000 FOR AMUNDSEN TRIP

WASHINGTON, April 9. — The National Geographic Society announced today that it had voted $20,000 toward the cost of the Norwegian polar expedition, which will leave the Pacific Coast under command of Capt. Roald Amundsen, in June, 1914, to explore the polar basin.

The vast tract lying between the Northern shores of Canada and Alaska and the Asiatic coast is Capt. Amundsen's objective territory, but he expects also to attain the North Pole.

The voyage, it is calculated, will involve four years' drifting in the polar ice.

THE PLODDER

The eternal plodder is absurdly overrated.

It is conceivable, of course, that men and business organizations must pass through a period when plodding is necessary, but they are only waiting for an opportunity to increase their pace.

We ourselves went through the plodding stage years ago, when we were creating new standards of efficiency in building construction and seeking opportunities to put them into practice.

To-day those standards of efficiency are in operation and it costs an Owner less to use those standards than it does to do without them.

FERRARA DEFENDS WARREN KILLING

MESA HERE; NOT DETAINED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, April 9.—The editor of one of the Havana papers having condemned his action in the Mesa-Warren duel, Dr. Orestes Ferrara has written to the paper a letter in which he presents his defense.

As to the charge that Mesa is an expert shot, while Warren not only knew nothing about pistols, but was nearsighted as well, he says he was Mesa's second, and that the duel was regular in every way. Notwithstanding the fact that dueling is against the law, Dr. Ferrara says he purposes to give the courts full details of the fight.

"I was Mesa's second," he says, "and my name, as well as my companion's and those of the distinguished seconds of his adversary, is a guarantee of the complete correctness and honor of the affair. In view of the gossip which has reached the newspapers, we have decided to tell the Judge everything. Why should we not do this, when we are being denounced as felons, though all we did was to take the trouble to assist two gentlemen?

"Remember that one day I acted as your second and, had it not been for the religious beliefs of your adversary, I would have gone with you to the field, defending your rights and guarding your honor. The evil is in our social organization. You oppose the duel, but please defend our attitude, which, I assure you, could not have been more correct nor more gentlemanly, and bear in mind that, next to the afflicted parents, our sorrow is greater than that of any one else. It is not right that any friend should be less generous than Mr. Warren, who, while dying, pardoned his adversary."

The duel was fought with the combatants at a distance of twenty-five paces. When the field judge counted "One, two, three!" Mesa shot at the sound of "One," while Warren fell without firing. Two Congressmen and two army officers were witnesses.

The courts have not yet acted. At least four other duels are imminent, growing out of the Mesa-Warren fight, as all the seconds have been challenged.

The duel was not over a woman, as at first reported. Warren invited Mesa to dine with him on Friday night. Mesa accepted, but did not appear and gave no explanation. He also refused to explain when he met Warren later in the evening, whereupon Warren caned him. Both drew their revolvers, but were separated, and a duel was arranged for the following morning.

CUBAN DUELIST ARRIVES.

Killed Rudolph Warren in Fair Fight, He Says—Not Detained.

Hannibal Mesa, the young Cuban who killed Rudolph Warren, son of a prominent American sugar planter, in a duel in Havana on April 5, arrived yesterday in New York on the Ward liner Havana. It had been reported by cable that the Cuban Government was taking steps to have the young man arrested on his arrival here, but no one molested him.

Mr. Mesa declined to make any statement, except to say that Mr. Warren had insulted him, and that he had killed him in a fair fight after receiving a challenge.

According to the officers of the Havana, Mr. Mesa boarded the ship on Saturday afternoon without a ticket, with several pieces of baggage which had been checked by his valet, William Hourant, in his own name. On Sunday morning a wireless message was recieved by the young Cuban asking for his account of the duel, to which he sent a reply. He is 26 years old.

BOSCOBEL AT AUCTION.

House That Sheltered Charles II. to be Sold Next June.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 9.—Boscobel, the historic estate on the border of Staffordshire and Shropshire, where Charles II hid in an oak tree after his defeat at the battle of Worcester, will be sold at auction in June.

The house itself, which sheltered many Roman Catholic priests and political refugees before Charles took refuge there in September, 1651, is well preserved, and the principal parts remain as they were in the days of the Civil War.

An oak, which is shown as the one into which the royal fugitive climbed when surprised by Cromwell's horsemen, stands, protected by iron railings, in a paddock adjoining the estate.

BOY KILLED BY BURGLAR.

Supposed Suicide in Germany Was Really a Murder.

BERLIN, April 9.—What was supposed to be one of the frequent suicides of German schoolboys has turned out in the case of Ernst Tiemann, a lad of 15, to have been a brutal murder by a servant girl's lover who was bent on plunder.

The lad was found hanged in his home last October during the absence of his parents. The police came to the conclusion that he had followed the example of so many other boys in Germany and had committed suicide.

The mother, however, was not satisfied with this explanation and employed private detectives to watch the maid, who to-day confessed that the boy was murdered by her lover, a burglar.

Turkish Jews Appeal to Spain.

MADRID, April 9.—Eight thousand Jews of Spanish origin, who live in the Turkish provinces now in possession of the allies, have expressed their intention of becoming Spanish subjects, and have asked the protection of the Spanish Government. Premier Romanones said to-day that the Government had the matter under consideration.

ACCUSER CONFRONTS ARANA

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 9.—There was a dramatic scene at the Putumayo inquiry when Arana was confronted with the American engineer Hardenberg, who first drew attention to the methods of Arana's company. Arana had charged Hardenberg with attempted blackmail and forgery, but when he was pressed to-day he was forced to withdraw the charges.

"Has Hardenberg attempted to get money from you on the promise of withholding information?" he was asked.

"Directly he did not," Arana replied, "but I was told that he was obtaining declarations in order to write a book against the company, and that if the company paid him the value of his lost luggage he would do nothing."

Arana had previously mentioned the fact that Hardenberg had lost some baggage in the company's territory. Asked what he considered the value of the lost baggage, Arana said he had heard it contained engineering plans and papers which Hardenberg estimated as worth £7,000 ($35,000).

The accusation of forgery was then taken up.

"Do you say that Hardenberg negotiated a bill wrongly?" he was asked.

"Yes," was the reply, "and the bill is in my possession."

"Do you say that it was forged by Hardenberg?"

REPRESSION IN RUSSIA.

Meetings of All Kinds Prohibited in St. Petersburg.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 9.—The Prefect of Police to-day issued an order prohibiting meetings of all kinds and also street demonstrations likely to disturb public tranquillity.

The Prefect declares that this regulation is binding on the whole population of the capital, and warns the people not to participate in such demonstrations, but to obey the orders of the police. Otherwise, he says, the most rigid measures will be taken to prevent disorder.

The Novoe Vremya, commenting on the action of the police, says:

"After the events of the past few days it would be hopeless to attempt a logical explanation of the police Prefect's order, which shows a complete absence of sequence and stability in the policy of the Government."

The Constitutional Democratic Rech, while continuing to charge the Nationalists with speculating on the lower instincts of the crowd, deplores the employment of retaliatory methods.

COURT HOUSE SITE REPORT.

$6,000,000 Award to Realty Owners Expected from Commissioners.

The summing up of evidence taken in the Court House site condemnation proceedings will be concluded to-day, and the property owners and the city will have until April 23 to file briefs. The preliminary report of the commission should be rendered about the first week in May, and then both sides will have an opportunity of asking a reconsideration of its findings. It is not believed that the final report of the Commissioners will be rendered before the beginning of June. As soon as that is confirmed by the Board of Estimate title to the property will pass to the city, though the board may take title at any time by resolution.

The claims put in by the property owners amount to about $10,000,000, but the city contends that $5,600,000 should be ample to satisfy all just claims. It is expected that the Commissioners will award a sum of between $6,000,000 and $6,500,000 to the owners.

Kaiser May Visit the Canaries.

MADRID, April 9.—From reliable sources it is reported that the Kaiser will visit the Canary Islands next May. The visit is considered as very important on account of the intentions attributed to the German Government of purchasing the islands from Spain.

POWERS GIVE WAY AGAIN TO ALLIES

FIRM REGARDING ALBANIA

Powers Insist That They Fix New State's Boundaries—Servia and Montenegro May Combine.

LONDON, Thursday, April 10.—The great powers will make certain concessions to the Balkan allies in an endeavor to bring about peace. They have agreed on the reply that is to be made to the objections of the allies offered to the bases for mediation as proposed by the powers.

The concession to Bulgaria is acceptance of her proposal that the frontier of the Ottoman Empire shall be a straight line between Enos and Midia, instead of following the courses of the Ergene and Maritza Rivers, as the powers first suggested.

While reserving the status of the Aegean Islands for future determination by the powers, they seek to placate Greece by giving assurances that a majority of them will be ceded to her.

The powers also reserve the question of a war indemnity for settlement by a financial commission to meet in Paris. They insist that they themselves will fix the boundaries of Albania.

King Nicholas of Montegegro has definitely arranged plans for his abdication if force should be employed by the European powers against his little kingdom to prevent it from obtaining the territory it considers necessary for its independence, according to information obtained in official Montenegrin circles in London.

The arrangements for this action were made by King Nicholas in consultation with King Peter of Servia, the agreement being that King Nicholas should abdicate and with his family quit the country. Montenegro would then effect a union with Servia, while King Nicholas and his family would receive an appropriate provision from the civil list and would reserve the right of succession to the Serbo-Montenegrin throne.

A dispatch from Vienna to The Daily Chronicle says that King Nicholas of Montenegro has been sounded by the powers as to whether he would accept financial compensation to the amount of $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 and an additional strip of coast territory in consideration of his giving up all claim to Scutari.

Austria, the dispatch adds, will object to the granting of more territory, and will not participate in any compensation allowed. It is also learned that the allies, who have financed Montenegro since the beginning of the war, will refuse to advance any more money. Servia will decline to send any more troops, and Greece will refuse to lend transports.

Meanwhile the powers are endeavoring to induce Turkey and Bulgaria to agree to a virtual truce, pending negotiations for peace.

THE TENSION NOW LESS.

Vienna Believes the International Situation Has Improved.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, April 10.—The Times's correspondent at Vienna wires:

"The situation is beginning to lose its acutely critical character. The reluctance of a great majority of the powers to force on a rapid solution of the Montenegrin difficulty has slackened the tension by compromise. The best-informed European Ambassadors consequently regard the outlook more hopefully and believe they see daylight ahead.

"The landing of Servian troops from transports at Salonika is attributed here both to the decision of Servia not to send further reinforcements to Scutari by land or sea, and to the wish of Greece not to risk the seizure of her transports by the international squadron.

"As to the evacuation of the Albanian littoral by the Servian troops it is stated that the powers will comply with the Servian wish to know what the boundaries of Albania are, on the assumption that Servia will then withdraw her forces from all the districts within the boundaries fixed by the powers."

In reference to the suggestion that King Nicholas of Montenegro should receive pecuniary compensation for the surrender of his claim to Scutari, The Daily Chronicle's Vienna correspondent says it is stated that King Nicholas is to receive £800,000, ($4,000,000,) probably from a loan guaranteed by several powers, and in addition a further strip of territory on the Albanian Coast if he abstains from further attacking Scutari.

The Russian and Italian Ministers at Cettinje are said to be negotiating with King Nicholas on the subject. Austria, in addition to refusing to take part in guaranteeing the loan, will absolutely refuse to allow any territorial compensation at the expense of Albania.

CASTRO AT PANAMA.

Said to Have Registered Under False Name—Venezuelan Refugees There.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, April 9.—Gen. Castro has been here for several days and registered at the Central Hotel under an assumed name, according to men who know him well. He could not be located there, and it was said that he had left for Colon this morning.

Two boats sailed from here this week for Venezuela. Many Venezuelan refugees are here.

The National Headquarters of the American Boy Scouts is preparing No. 1, Vol. 1 of The Scout, a regular Scout magazine. Wuerz, and conferred with international scout experts, was it definitely decided that the project would be attempted.

The publication office will be at headquarters, 68 William Street. This is the staff: P. T. Mason, editor in chief; Norman L. Sper, assistant editor; L. E. Trimm, advertising manager, and Grover C. Cleaver, circulation manager. There will be a full staff of reporters, who will beat the bushes for things of interest in Scoutland.

POPE NO BETTER AND VERY WEAK

The correspondent adds that the Pope's fever last night increased, his temperature at 10 o'clock being 102.2.

ROME, April 9.—The Pope's weakness is being treated by the regular administration of eggs beaten up in milk, but the lack of nourishment contributes to the depression from which the Pontiff suffers.

The relapse is following the same course as the original attack of influenza, a cough being present, with irritation of the bronchial tubes and difficulty in respiration, which has led to the report in some cases that the Pope is afflicted with asthma. This, however, is erroneous. The condition of albuminuria, which usually accompanies influenza, is also present, indicating inflammation of the kidneys of greater or less degree, but it is hoped that this is of a transitory character.

Prof. Marchiafava, in a statement to The Associated Press to-night, expressed himself as highly indignant at the exaggerated reports that have been circulated. He gave solemn assurances that the Pope's illness was running a perfectly normal course, and said that if no complications arose he would guarantee that the Pontiff would be convalescent within a week. Dr. Marchiafava apparently spoke with the greatest sincerity.

Calm prevailed at the Vatican this evening, and the normal routine seemingly had been resumed. Dr. Amici retired for a considerable time to his own room previous to going for the night to the anteroom adjoining the room occupied by the Pope. It was announced that the patient was enjoying a peaceful sleep.

The Pope's sisters and niece spent much time at the bedside, and when not there were kept constantly informed by telephone as to his Holiness' condition.

The Pope has expressed terror at what the newspapers are capable of inventing concerning his relapse. He is being watched in turn by his valet and his secretaries, Mgrs. Bressan and Pescini, and the chemist monk, Prosdocimo, is also in close attendance.

When in the afternoon he felt the effect of a thunderstorm of extraordinary violence, the Pope remarked that his organism was so sensitive to atmospheric changes that he had become a kind of barometer and thermometer.

It was reported to-day that Cardinal Katschthaler, Archbishop of Salzburg, had postponed his departure, as he wished to be in Rome in case of eventualities, but this proved not to be true, as he left here to-day for his home, and this is considered another evidence that the Pontiff has really improved, or at least that the danger is not imminent.

The aspect of the immense square in front of St. Peter's to-day recalled the scenes during the last illness of Pope Leo XIII., but instead of a burning July sun, as in 1903, there was a downpour of rain. This did not prevent thousands of pilgrims from gathering and gazing with grave anxiety at the three windows of the room on the third floor of the Apostolic Palace, in which the Pope lies, or from directing sympathetic glances at the little house in the square below, where the sisters of the Pope occupy a modest apartment on the top floor.

Several Cardinals, including Rampolla, Vives y Tute, de Lai, Martinelli, Falconio, Bisleti, and Agliardi, called at the Vatican to-day to inquire about the Pope's health. They desired to see the patient, but were not allowed to do so, as the instructions of the doctors were imperative that the Pope was to receive no visitors.

Everything is being prepared at the Vatican to give the Pope a long period of rest. All pilgrimages have been suspended during this month. The American pilgrimage, which left New York on April 5 under the spiritual direction of the Right Rev. Joseph Schrembs, Bishop of Toledo, will not be received by his Holiness.

Cardinal Pompili, who was made Vicar General only a few days ago, issued orders to-day for special prayers for the Pope in all the churches of Rome during the next three days.

LONDON, Thursday, April 10.—A Rome dispatch to The Daily Chronicle says that one of the Pope's physicians has expressed the opinion that his Holiness will rally for a time, but that his general condition renders it unlikely that he will last out the present month, and that the end may come suddenly.

City School Children Healthier.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Country school children generally are less healthy than children in city schools, according to the United States Bureau of Education, which bases its conclusion largely on investigations made by Dr. Ernest B. Hoag into rural educational conditions in Minnesota. The average country teacher's ignorance of hygiene is a cause. Another is the poor ventilation of the country school. Dr. Hoag found that 80 per cent. of the country children drank tea and coffee; that 40 per cent. suffered from almost constant toothache, and that from 19 to 23 per cent. had frequent headaches.

TO BURY S. H. MILLS MONDAY

Ship Chandler Known for Many Years to Seafaring Men.

The funeral of Stephen H. Mills, who died at his home near Fort Totten, L. I., on Monday, will be held there at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Mr. Mills was in the ship chandlery business in South Street, Manhattan for more than forty years, and his office was a rendezvous of Long Island sea faring men for nearly half a century. He was born at Wading River, L. I., Jan. 31, 1835, and started going to sea at the age of fourteen, later founding the firm of Stephen H. Mills & Company.

Subsequently he became interested in the development of Rapid City, S. D., and was a founder, stockholder and president of the Pennington County and Custer County banks. He retired from active business in 1902 because of failing health, which a trip to Florida last Winter did not improve materially. He was a member of the Bedford Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn. His widow, three daughters and two sons survive him.

Resinol Soap does what cosmetics are supposed to do.

WHEN you wash your face do you realize that it is not enough to remove the dirt—that your skin needs a soothing, healing influence to keep your complexion fresh and free from blemish?

Ordinary toilet soaps do not assert this influence. Many of them contain free alkali which dries the skin and destroys its delicate texture. Even the best of such soaps can only clean, they cannot protect the skin. Resinol Soap, besides being an absolutely pure toilet soap, contains the Resinol balsams, the soothing, antiseptic properties of which are known throughout the medical profession. That is why Resinol Soap does for the skin what cosmetics are supposed to do—it insures not only a clean skin, but a healthy skin, and a fair, clear complexion.

Resinol Soap 25c. per cake wherever toilet goods are sold. For guest-room size cake free, send to Dept. 3 F, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

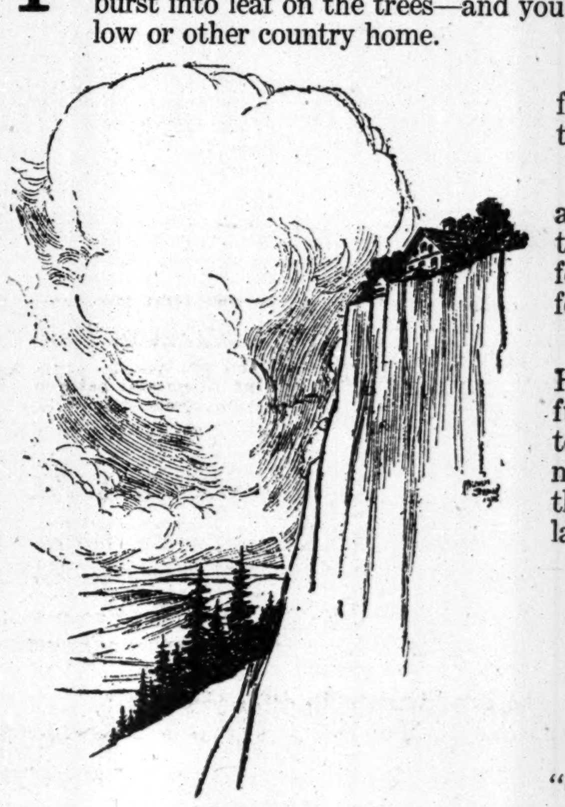
If You're a Bungalowfer—

The Fortunate Possessor of a Country Home—

There's a Great Treat for You at GIMBELS

YOU'VE heard the robin calling you, and you see the big green buds ready to burst into leaf on the trees—and you are eager to get away to the bungalow or other country home.



You are heart-hungry for the comfort and rest of it all—and so are the little folks.

Isn't it wonderful how art, genius and mechanical skill have combined to discover, invent and supply comforts, conveniences and beauty-things for the Summer home?

We are wondering if you realize HALF, or a quarter, of the wonderful things that are ready, this Spring, to make country living so infinitely more delightful and more comfortable than it used to be—even than it was last year?

Won't You Accept Our Invitation to Come to GIMBELS Today and See the New Things?

Start on the Eighth Floor, where "COMFORT HAVEN" exhibits the cool, easy, durable Furniture that makes the modern Summer home such a delight. So artistic; so diversified; so comfortable—and so inexpensive. The housekeeper will thoroughly enjoy a visit to "COMFORT HAVEN."

Then a stop at the Sixth Floor will delight the woman who loves the cool, beautiful Cretonnes and the artistic Wall Coverings. The exhibit is inspiring in clever suggestions for room treatments. Wonderfully helpful.

Just a step away is the most remarkable—the most fascinating display of Summer Rugs that you ever clapped your eyes on. All the names sound commonplace compared to the delightful impression they make on your eyes when you see the wonderful exhibition. What housekeeper will not conjure up a dozen artistic and refreshing room treatments when she looks over the collection shown here—the broadest and completest ever brought together anywhere?

On the floor below—the Fifth—are brilliant, colorful Lamps. If you are going to have electricity—the world is before you, to choose. But away off in that distant bungalow, electricity may be unknown; so we have provided abundantly with oil lamps in every artful form—from the post-lamp to stand on the porch, at the gateway, or at the boat-landing (and burn until midnight, or later, as you may time it) up to the most gorgeous display light, or the most efficient reading light yet devised.

Nearby is the Cottage China—an assembly famous the city over—where the artistic housekeeper may choose wonderfully beautiful wares at the littlest possible prices, if she wants to save worry over breakage; where, too, she will find useful pieces that she may not know exist.

Start with the new, safe and wonderfully efficient Gasoline Range, that has all the possibilities of the gas range at home.

Then let us show you the scores of other things that will make bungalow housekeeping so fascinating that you'll never want to come back to civilization again.

Don't miss the Garden Baskets, if you're going to have a garden patch, or flower beds. Every man or woman who has a garden or flowers will want an English Garden Basket on sight.

Next, you'll want to see the KENYON HOUSES—the bungalow that you can take with you, anywhere; or the play-house to set up for the children.

See the GIMBEL KENYON CAMP.

Perhaps you'll want Lawn Swings, Croquet, Tennis, Golf Supplies, Baseball. Do you know that the Gimbel Fishing Tackle stock is the most complete you ever saw? Maybe you'll discover here some things you've found hard to find before.

We've got to drop this line somewhere. The story has hardly started, there are so many thousands of things to tell about.

Won't you come to GIMBELS today, and see what delightful things we are showing for the lucky folks who are fixing up their Summer homes?

Strikes Ground With a Blow Equal to 6,000 Pounds.

An Indestructo Dreadnought Trunk was deliberately dropped off a ten-story building to prove its remarkable built-in strength.

Baggage men consider 12 feet a serious fall for the ordinary square jointed trunk. Experts who saw the test, said: "The trunk fell 230 feet, struck the earth with a blow of 6000 pounds—in safety—this would not have been possible, but for the fact that the jointless construction of the Indestructo offers no loose boards or nailed edges to shatter on the impact."

Only the built-in "emergency strength" of the Indestructo trunk makes such feats possible—and it is this strength upon strength that protects your baggage when you travel.

VICE FIGHT TURNS TOWARD EAST SIDE

Found Liquor Selling Without License and Some of Them Disorderly—Hotel Men Enter a Protest.

Mayor Gaynor announced yesterday that he would go one step further to clean up the city, and that the campaign would be begun immediately. The new objects of attack will be the east side cider stubes and poolrooms, and Police Commissioner Waldo, co-operating with License Chief Wallace, is expected to begin wholesale raids all over the east side to-day. The new order follows directly on the heels of the 1 A. M. closing order for cabaret shows and of the closing of the afternoon "tea rooms" where unlicensed fancy dancing was in vogue. The new order, it was intimated, was aimed particularly at the east side just as the earlier "clean up" orders had been particularly aimed at the Gay White Way on the west side of the city.

A tour of the cider stubes and pool and billiard rooms of the east side was made recently by the Rev. Dr. J. L. Magnes, who, it was said, reported on the conditions he found to Mayor Gaynor. The Mayor, it appeared, was so interested in Dr. Magnes's report that he decided to take the trip himself. This he did early last week, in company with Third Deputy Police Commissioner Newburger. When he finshed his tour the Mayor told reporters that he had made the trip merely to observe the sanitary conditions in the densely populated sections of the city. He refrained at that time from making any criticisms of the things he had seen.

Since that time, however, it was learned, the Mayor dropped the hint to Commissioner Waldo that he considered the cider stubes and poolrooms "very bad places." Commissioner Waldo was one of the Mayor's visitors yesterday afternoon, and it is believed that the final plans to end these places were discussed at the conference.

The cider stubes of the lower east side, the Mayor learned from his tour of investigation, were mostly in basements. Pretty girls act as waitresses in these places, where cider is supposed to be the only beverage on tap. No license is required for cider selling. It is generally known, however, that beer and liquor can be purchased in some of the stubes by customers acquainted with the proprietors. Word also reached the Mayor, it was said, that some of the stubes were veritable disorderly houses, in which many girl waitresses lived lives of prostitution.

The pool and billiard halls, which will be affected by the Mayor's latest order are also situated principally in basements of tenements. These "parlors," the Mayor was informed, were the harbors of thugs and criminals. Although licensed, many of them, it was said, succeeded in running counter to requirements. Chief Wallace of the License Bureau has revoked many of the licenses of these dark basement resorts within the last year and has refused to issue new licenses, but it was said yesterday that several hundred of the halls were still in operation.

Charles J. Campbell of the firm of Campbell & Boland, 51 Chambers Street, attorney for the New York Hotel Men's Association, called on Mayor Gaynor yesterday and complained that the reform bill recently proposed by the Mayor to regulate dancing in halls not under the supervision of the city License Bureau would, if passed, do injustice to many hotel men. He pointed out that many hotels rented their ballrooms to private parties, and that it was a hardship to expect private dances, some of which started late at night, to break up at 1 A. M. Mayor Gaynor, it was said, explained that he never intended to work any change with regard to hotels of good character, and suggested that an article be included in the bill setting forth this idea.

From the headquarters of the Supper Club, composed of theatregoers who make much of after-theatre dinners, there came another complaint yesterday regarding the Mayor's 1 A. M. closing order. James C. Cleary, attorney for the club, said that he would ask the courts for an injunction restraining the police from forcing the club's members to leave at 1 o'clock in the morning.

"The sale of liquor in the Supper Club, which meets on the top floor of Murray's, on Forty-second Street," said Mr. Cleary, "has always stopped at 1 A. M., and there has never been dancing of an objectionable nature in the clubrooms. When I wrote to the Mayor about our case, he referred me to the Police Commissioner. We will apply to the Commissioner as a matter of form, and then we will apply to the courts for the necessary permission to dine and dance in peace. When Mayor Gaynor was a Supreme Court Justice he issued such a restraining order in the Hale case, in which he said that it was 'irksome to have to repeatedly decide that the police have no right to invade any one's house or place of business without a warrant from a Magistrate, except in pursuit of a fleeing criminal or on a call for help against violence and the like.'"

At Reisenweber's, where the afternoon tea dance has been regularly continued since the Mayor's first alarm went forth, it was announced by Manager Fisher yesterday that hereafter no liquors would be served during the afternoon in the "tea room." Mr. Fisher said that he was perfectly willing to have nothing but real tea dances in the future.

AIM TO SHORTEN COLLEGE.

Changes in Curriculum of City Course Approved by Trustees.

At the meeting of the Board of Trustees of the City College last night several radical changes were made in the curriculum, the result of which will be to raise the standard of the entrance requirements, make them more flexible and make possible a greater concentration of work in the junior and senior years of the college course.

The change of the entrance requirements brings about a corresponding change in the courses at Townsend Harris Hall. Formerly the course was an absolute three-year course. Now it is made much more flexible. The minimum time is three years, and may vary from that to four. That is, all the entering students have prescribed schedules, which are arranged according to the four-year plan. After the first year the individual skill of the student will be considered, and he will be allowed to take more work than the regular four-year men. If he can keep up this work he will finish the course in three years; if he cannot he will probably finish in three and a half or four years.

In the college proper the change has been sweeping: the work of the first two years will be prescribed and the elective group system has been adopted for the last two years. The credit requirement has been lessened from 146 credits to 128 credits. The credit values have been raised, however, and the student in the future will have to devote about three hours' work to gain a credit where formerly only two and a half were required In the language requirement the change compels all candidates for the arts degree to offer Latin. This change, however, will probably not be rigidly enforced for three years at least, because the boys now in Townsend Harris Hall have started their courses under the old requirement.

All the work of the first two years will be prescribed, but after the second year the elective system will prevail with only one restriction. The course after the first two years has been divided into three grand divisions: the first, language and literature; the second, chemistry, mathematics, natural history and physics; the third, history, philosophy and political science. The requirement in these years is that half the work done shall be in one of the grand divisions, and approximately one-half of that in one department of that division. This plan is now in vogue in most of the colleges of the first class in the United States. The nature of the degree conferred on a man is determined by the work of the first two years. An arts man, however, may specialize in science later or vice versa.

It is believed that these changes will further increase the value of the service of the college to the city and will bring about a closer relationship with the high schools, from which the students are now coming in greatly increased numbers.

New Prizes for Work Animals to be Offered This Year.

A check for $500 was received yesterday by Mrs. James Speyer, President of the New York Women's League for Animals, for the furtherance of the annual work-horse parade, to be held, as usual, on Decoration Day. Mrs. Russell Sage has also given $500 and several smaller checks have been received for the same purpose.

There will be additional inducements to owners and drivers to enter their horses this year, and prizes will be offered in several new classes.

Among them will be prizes for horses drawing peddlers' wagons and small express wagons. Work on the parade has been begun earlier than ever before and a record number of entries has been sent in to Supt. Thomas F. McCarthy at the free dispensary of the Animals' League, 325 Lafayette Street.

ASKS TEACHERS TO MARCH.

Miss Strachan Invites Them to Join the Great Suffrage Parade.

Miss Grace C. Strachan, as leader of the New York school teachers, has come out officially for woman suffrage. She sent a letter to the teachers yesterday asking them to march in the big suffrage parade on May 3, and to "stand up and be counted and help to prove to the voters of New York that the women of this State want the franchise."

To improve the marching in the parade, a drill will be held in the Savage Gymnasium, 308 West 59th Street, Wednesday evening next. Miss Josephine Beiderhase, Assistant Director of Physical Training in the Public Schools, and a corps of physical training teachers will be in charge of the drill.

FINDS US WORSE THAN CHICAGOANS

BAD SIGN OF THE TIMES

Chicago is not so wicked as New York, according to the Rev. Dr. W. T. Sumner, Dean of the Cathedral of Sts. Peter and Paul, Chicago, who is stopping at the Hotel Wolcott on his Eastern speaking trip. For one thing, the Mayor of Chicago has not been compelled to clamp the lid on the cabarets because, according to Dean Sumner, the few cabaret shows of which Chicago can boast are so mild that they are neither attractive nor demoralizing. And again, the wave of daylight dancing has not yet reached there, and probably never will.

"It seems to me that New York has gone wild," said the Dean yesterday. "I feel very strongly on the subject of these hotel 5 o'clock tea 'trots,' and you cannot too strongly word my belief that they are bad and vulgar.

"The tea dances have not invaded Chicago yet, and I hope they will not. What we want is daylight between the dancers, not around them. One of the disgusting features about these dances seems to me to be the activity of old men who are old enough to be the fathers of the young girls with whom they dance, and the no less pernicious activity of the young men who assume the rôle of orchid crushers. I don't know whether your readers will know what I mean by 'orchid crushers,' but—" and the Dean, without going into explanations, intimated that they were a distinctly undesirable element in the community.

"It seems to me that these dances in themselves, in addition to the fact that they come from an immoral atmosphere, are, to say the very least, unrefined; but the most serious factor is the position of the dancers. I don't believe the daylight dances will come to Chicago; I think we have learned a lesson from New York, but if they should come the Mayor of Chicago would probably discourage them from the very start. This whole dance business indicates an unwholesome state of things."

It was Dean Sumner who first conceived the idea of "certified marriages" under church auspices, and who showed the courage of his convictions by putting the physician's certificate system into force at his cathedral; and yesterday the Dean expressed himself as enthusiastic over the success which had greeted this innovation.

"Instead of the expected shrinkage in the number of marriages, our record has more than doubled over the number of marriages in the same period of time before the new rules went into effect," he said. "It was after consultation with the Right Rev. Dr. C. P. Anderson, Bishop of Chicago, and with his approval that my co-workers of the cathedral and myself agreed upon the advanced policy with regard to the administration of marriage in the Cathedral, which went into effect last Easter. No persons can be married at the Cathedral unless they present a certificate of health from a reputable physician to the effect that they are normal, physically and mentally, and have neither an incurable or communicable disease.

"This step was taken only after months of study of the situation and deliberation as to its advisability. It was believed that our position would meet with the immediate sympathy of the clergy, all of whom have long felt the undesirability of being a party to the marriage of persons who, because of their physical condition, should never be allowed to enter into the marriage state.

"The awful wreckage of life, which is resulting from marriages of this character, the startling fact that in this country there are to-day no less than 3,000,000 abnormal people for whose care the State must expend $200,000,000 per year, the marital unhappiness in numberless homes of even intelligent and well-to-do circles of life combine to emphasize the need of some safeguard against the extension of these conditions into the generations to come.

"Surely one has only to make a survey of conditions as they exist to-day to be aroused to do something that there shall not be left in the wake of married life sterility, insanity, paralysis, blindness, and deformity."

To Head R. Appleton Co.

At a meeting of the Directors of the Robert Appleton Company held yesterday at the office of the company, 16 East Fortieth Street, Dr. Condé B. Pallen was elected President in place of Robert Appleton, who had held that office since the formation of the company in 1905. Dr. Pallen has been managing editor of The Catholic Encyclopedia, published by the company. Mr. Appleton will remain as a Director. Arthur J. Kenedy was elected Vice President and Treasurer, and Walter J. Magee, Secretary.

TAKES ANOTHER GIRL'S SHOE

For the second time within forty-eight hours, a pump was stolen yesterday from a girl's foot on the Subway stairs. The first time was on Monday evening when Miss Jean Littlefield felt her pump snatched from her foot as she was mounting to the surface at 149th Street. It was 15-year-old Selma Graf of 867 Kelly Street, the Bronx, who lost her shoe on her way to work in a downtown department store while she was climbing the stairs at Fourteenth Street.

She turned swiftly and saw a young man, probably 24 years of age, running down the stairs and, as he ran, stuffing her pump into the pocket of his gray overcoat. With one foot shoeless she gave chase, shrieking as she ran, but he evaded her in the crowd, and, like Miss Littlefield, she had to be helped to a nearby shoe store.

Detectives all over the city have been directed to keep their eyes open for the man now called the "slipper crook." They fully expect an outbreak of this offense to enliven the Subway traffic for some little time to come. If the man who stole the pump yesterday was the one who stole Miss Littlefield's the detectives think they will have more cases of the same kind, and they are quite certain they will get the wrong-doer before long.

BIGGEST MARCONI STATION.

Ground Broken for It at Franklin Park—Appeal for Road Work.

Special to The New York Times.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., April 9.—Frederick Sammis, supervising engineer of the Marconi Wireless Company, appeared before the Somerset Board of Freeholders yesterday to request that the macadamized road from Bound Brook to New Brunswick be completed so that it would be of service to haul material to the company's plant at Franklin Park. He said tht with the exception of the last mile and a half the road was excellent, but at the New Brunswick end the mud was a foot deep.

Mr. Sammis said that the ground had been broken, and that the building of the new transmitting station would be completed in some nine months. It will have thirteen masts, each 400 feet high, and will be the most powerful station in the world from which messages will be flashed across the Atlantic.

MISS HARVEY IN REAL COURT

In "Fanny's First Play," the Shaw comedy at the Comedy Theatre, the suffragette, Margaret Knox, knocks out the "bobby's" teeth and is dragged off to court in a state of great exhilaration. Gladys Harvey plays that part. Yesterday she had to go to a real court. It was not a criminal court, however, but the Fifth District Municipal Court, at 2,555 Broadway.

Miss Harvey appeared as plaintiff in a suit to recover $125 from the proprietors of the Metropolitan Dye Works, to whom she had intrusted a gown for cleaning. After its return, she found it was covered with stains which could not be removed without serious injury to the fabric. The dye works managers insisted that they had returned the gown in good condition. The Justice awarded Miss Harvey $89.

MAYNOOTH PRIESTS DINE.

Forty-five priests, graduates of the Maynooth College, Ireland, assembled at the Hotel Astor last night for their fifteenth annual dinner. They represented the hundred members of the Maynooth Union of the United States, the President of which is Mgr. Charles McCready of the Holy Cross Church.

The Right Rev. Mgr. Mooney of this city, the Rev. Daniel Lavery of St. Louis, Mo., and the Rev. Dennis Dugan of Bordentown, N. J., addressed the diners.

Mgr. Mooney spoke of the Pope, his work, and recent illness. Dr. Lavery toasted the college and the absent members of the union. The priests attended high mass yesterday morning at Father McCready's church.

ATTACKS WISE FOR SUIT.

W. M. Ivins for L. Straus & Sons Says Charges Are False.

Another suit turning on the interpretation of the terms of the customs law was brought yesterday afternoon by the Government in the Federal District Court against L. Straus & Sons, importers of chinaware of 42 Warren Street. In this case the Government seeks to recover $139,161.04, the value of the china, which, it alleges, was undervalued by the defendants when they imported it from France between Jan. 1, 1910, and Jan. 1, 1913. A week or two ago a somewhat similar suit was brought against the same firm for $69,000.

In this case the Government in its complaint, which is not sworn to, alleges that Straus & Sons purchased white china in Limoges and there submitted it to certain decorating processes, but when they brought it to this country they valued it as white china only and not as decorated china. Consequently it is alleged that Straus & Sons are manufacturers as well as importers.

William M. Ivins, counsel for the firm of L. Straus & Sons, issued last night a statement in which he asserted that this like the first action, was the result of the campaign of the American Potters' Association against the importers. This organization has, he said, urged the Attorney General, the Collector of the Port, and District Attorney Wise to pursue the importers criminally, but these officials were of one opinion that no criminal action would hold, and that no allegations of fraud could be sustained in a criminal suit.

The statement continues:

> The allegations of the Government's complaint are absolutely false and unjustified, and would never have been made if Mr. Wise or anybody else, who is responsible, had been required to answer to their truthfulness. They are not sworn to, and therefore are made with impunity. For many years past there have been controversies between the Government and the china importers with regard to matters of payment of duties, valuations, &c., and with no exception in every case the Government has been defeated.

Mr. Ivins also attacked the procedure of the District Attorney in issuing subpoenas to secure access to the private papers of a number of importers.

COL. T. W. HUSTON TO RETIRE

Col. Thomas W. Huston, commanding the Twelfth Regiment, National Guard of Manhattan, announced yesterday that he would ask to be retired, as he had completed twenty-five years of service on Feb. 29. The Colonel also said that he would have requested retirement early in March only that he did not think it fair to leave the regiment until after the annual inspection, which was ended last night.

Col. Huston joined the Twelfth Regiment as a private in Company D, Feb. 29, 1888; was promoted to Corporal Feb. 17, 1890, Sergeant Dec. 1, 1890; Second Lieutenant, Oct. 26, 1892; First Lieutenant, Dec. 20, 1893; Captain, June 14, 1899; Major, April 2, 1901; Lieutenant Colonel, Feb. 27, 1906, and Colonel in March 1912.

When the regiment was in the United States service in 1898 and 1899, he served with it as a Captain in the Southern camps and at Matanzas, Cuba. He performed all duty with the regiment, including service at Buffalo for the suppression of riots in 1892 and in Brooklyn during the trolley strike in 1895. He was President of the Examining Board for officers of the First Brigade for several years.

Correct Mourning Apparel for Women and Misses

At all times, under all circumstances, the costume of the distinctively gowned woman is in perfect harmony, from the tip of her dainty boot to her modish chapeau. In no other costume is harmony more difficult to achieve than in Mourning Apparel, where one small discord in boot or glove or frock so quickly ruins the air of distinctiveness so important.

Macy has made a careful study of correct Mourning Apparel, and in the parlors on the Third Floor, 35th Street, are displayed many distinctive models in gowns and suits at most reasonable prices. There are simple little Frocks of soft China Silk at $9.74, ranging through easy stages in price to imported French Gowns of Crepe de Chine at $49.75.

We also make a specialty of white mourning, and in this show many beautiful Frocks ranging in price from $19.74 for China Silk Dresses to $48.75 for elaborate models in Crepe de Chine.

Very beautiful are these models of soft clinging crepe de chine with draped drop skirt under a pleated overskirt in tunic effect. The V-shaped yoke is of folded chiffon, as are the cuffs on the short sleeves. A large bow of heavy mourning crepe effectively ornaments the bodice and the buttons with which the gown is trimmed are covered with heavy mourning crepe. A distinctive model in second mourning also at this price is of fine crepe de chine with collar and cuffs of gray chiffon under black net. The long skirt is gracefully draped and terminates in the new two-pointed train.

Tailored Suits for Mourning

—Are very beautiful in fine quality Serge, Bedford Cord, Silk Poplin, Bengaline Silk and Eponge, and range in price from $19.74 for a strictly tailored serge model to $48.75 for modish demi-tailored suits of heavy Bengaline Silk. A very new suit of heavy Silk Poplin in Russian Blouse effect with hand-embroidered collar and cuffs and gracefully draped skirt, is priced at $38.74. At this price may also be had an exquisitely tailored suit of softest French Serge, whose distinctiveness lies in its faultless lines and perfect tailoring.

Mourning Hats and Bonnets

A wonderful variety of beautiful Hats and Bonnets are shown in the parlors on the second floor, front, ranging in price from $4.49 to $28.50 for an imported French model. Hats are of light straw, Nun's Veiling, Mourning Crepe and Peau de Soie.

Black Bordered Handkerchiefs

Beautiful linen handkerchiefs of very sheer or heavier quality, with one-eighth inch, one-fourth inch or one-half inch hems, are priced at 12c, 15c, 19c, 24c and 39c. Finest quality pure linen handkerchiefs are from 39c to 74c. A few dainty linen handkerchiefs, hand embroidered in black, are 49c apiece.

BUSINESS GIVES WAY TO GAYNOR'S LUNCH

PRAISES OVERHEAD ROADS

Tells Land Dealers That They Have Been Well Treated in City's Transit Arrangements.

When Mayor Gaynor, the chief speaker at the second annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of Queens Borough at the Waldorf, reached the meeting hall yesterday afternoon he told the Queens men that he had heard they were going to have a luncheon, and that he was thinking principally of that when he came. He still ate, he said, and he was hungry. So they suspended the regular business of the meeting, and after the Mayor had given them a little speech they gave him a little luncheon.

It was a very quaint, informal, and homelike affair in the sun parlor of the Waldorf, the Mayor standing up amid the Queens men, with fraternity in his eyes and two big corn beef sandwiches in his hand. There was a bit of chicken salad on a small plate, and a bun and a dab of ice cream, and a demitasse of coffee and some cakes. To all of which the Mayor helped himself between talks, while the pick and cream of Queens commerce crowded around him to shake his hand when his hand wasn't busy with a sandwich.

Before he got to the lunch, however, the Mayor had given a neighborly lecture. He told them how narrowly they had escaped being "left in the cold" as concerns rapid transit facilities in their borough, saying that if the old Triborough subway system had not been abandoned he didn't know if they "would ever have been connected with anything," and that there "wouldn't have been a dollar in it for Queens" if the new rapid transit system hadn't been joined with the existing Interborough system.

"The Belmont tunnel was there," he said. "The franchise of that was in perpetuity, but it had lapsed because they did not have it done within the franchise time. And there they were. They had no franchise. All the company had was stone and brick and mortar down in the ground, and to pull that out would cost more than it was worth. You could not sell it for what it would cost to pull it out. We had an act passed to resurrect that, and we dealt very fairly with the company; although its franchise was expired, we gave them $3,000,000 for the work they had done in the Belmont tunnel.

"I have heard it said that they put $8,500,000 in it. Yes, but we all know how to wink with the left eye—we learned that when we were very young. The idea of $8,500,000 in the Belmont tunnel is enough to make you smile. You know the length of it. We did very well with them in allowing them $3,000,000, for they did not have a legal claim at all.

"But justice is justice, and they had their work and material in there. And in that way, by deciding on what our predecessors had planned, namely, to extend the present routes of the present subways and rapid transit roads, we brought your borough immediately into connection with the system that touches all the five boroughs, excluding none. And when it is all complete you can jump in your Belmont tunnel and get over here and over to Brooklyn and over to Richmond on one fare, and the people in Richmond can get over to you. And you can get way up into the Bronx, the remotest part, and anywhere on this island. You can go on the west side or the east side, or you can continue in the Belmont tunnel and run way over to the west side and down Seventh Avenue to the Pennsylvania Station, or wherever you want to go.

"I understand some of you are dissatisfied that you are not to have subways, underground roads, in place of overhead roads. You have no right to be dissatisfied with them. The travel on these overhead roads is more pleasant than in the underground roads. More than that, your territory would not bear the expense of it. The difference in the cost and carrying between the overhead roads and the underground roads is more than as ten to one, and as between that and surface roads it is more than as twenty to one.

"You people that pay taxes know what that means, and especially you that own the cornfields and so on out there that you are speculating in. I have not much sympathy for you. And yet I don't want to run your taxes up more than possible. I have always regarded speculating in land as an evil. I think it is a greater evil than the speculating in Wall Street. You simply make John, the butcher, pay a bigger price when he comes to buy a lot and put a house on it.

"But I have said enough to remind you that you have been well treated in what the city has done. If you did not feel that way I think it would be an injustice. Your Borough President has worked along that line. We have done the most we can do for you. Some lines are still to be projected and extended in your borough, but it may be some years before they can be built. Do not imagine that because a line is mapped out and established that it means that it is to be built forthwith. I have been telling you about the lines laid out by your predecessors, which we are only now starting in to build."

Says She Was Falsely Accused of Theft and Demands $10,000.

Alleging that she was falsely accused of petty larceny by John L. Martin, who she says is one of the owners of the Repetti Company, a corporation which conducts a chain of candy stores, Mrs. Ella Houghton, a former assistant manager in the employ of the company, has filed in the Supreme Court an action to recover $10,000 for slander.

Mrs. Houghton is the widow of a former associate of R. G. Dun, and at the time of her husband's death a few years ago inherited $75,000. At that time she was living in the Hotel Ansonia. Mrs. Houghton lost money through a number of unfortunate investments, and finally took a place as assistant manager and cashier of one of the Repetti stores in Broadway, between Seventy-fourth and Seventy-fifth Streets.

According to her complaint, the defendant, on or about the day of Oct. 29, entered the store, and in the presence of a number of persons accused her of having stolen $4. For this she demands $5,000 damages. As a second cause of action she specifies in her complaint that on the following day the defendant entered the store and in the hearing of customers and others repeated the charge.

At the same time she says she was publicly discharged. For this repetition of the alleged slander she also seeks damages of $5,000. She is represented by Adam K. Stricker of 30 Broad Street.

The defendant in his answer denies that he was at any time "the owner of a majority of the stock of the Repetti Company or any similarly named company." He also denies that he ever accused the plaintiff of theft.

BURGLARY FOLLOWS VISITS BY WOMAN

Sought Dentist's Aid, Though Teeth Were Perfect—He Now Mourns $3,500 Loss.

HIS SAFE BLOWN OPEN

When Dr. Charles Schmer's assistant opened the Schmer dentistry offices on the second floor of 25 Avenue A yesterday morning he found that the safe in the operating room had been trundled from its accustomed place to the far corner, and that around it a screen had been constructed by the use of a bookcase and one of the rugs from the floor to shield it from the view of the big plate glass windows that stretch from floor to ceiling and look upon the avenue. As for the safe itself, it had been blown open with nitro-glycerin and from its drawers was missing more than $3,500 worth of jewelry, gold leaf, and gold bridge work.

As soon as word of this latest addition to the long list of safe robberies was sent to Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty he dispatched some detectives to talk the matter over with Dr. Schmer, and from the doctor they learned something that interested them more deeply than anything which the fingerprint expert had been able to find in his inspection of the premises.

Dr. Schmer did not know that it would prove to have any bearing on the case, but when he found he had been visited by burglars he could not help recalling another visit he had received about six weeks ago. This was when a tall and rather smartly gowned woman with a wealth of fair hair had tripped into his office one day and submitted herself to him and his instruments.

"Well, then," she said, "I'll have them cleaned."

"But they're just about as white as they can be," the dentist said.

She told him he was a funny kind of dentist to throw away business like that, and after gazing around her she tripped away again. Three weeks later, in quite a different costume and notably favored with a wealth of dark-brown hair, she came again. She wanted to have her teeth fixed, she said. Now, dentists are not much given to noticing hair and costume, but they do know teeth, and when Dr. Schmer peered past the red lips of his visitor he knew, whatever doubts he may have had, that this was the same woman who had favored him three weeks before. This time she was complaining of an inexplicable twinge in one of her molars, and this time she brought with her a man who was "got up regardless." Dr. Schmer was careful to explain that this escort was wearing a top hat, and was "altogether elegant."

The noticeable thing about this man was not his costume, however, so much as it was his omnipresence. Dr. Schmer's assistant found him in the laboratory, where he explained that he was ever so interested in dentistry, and after chasing him out once the dentist was annoyed to find him in there again. After that he kept a cold eye on the two visitors until they departed.

Wondering if these two had been advance scouts for the visitors of early yesterday morning, Lieut. Allen went over the operating room for finger prints. Those found were very faint and imperfect. They were not on the safe or in it, but on pieces of furniture that had been moved in the rearrangement of the room.

The safe usually stood in front of the window beneath an incandescent of high candle power and within full view of any avenue stroller who might chose to look up. When Dr. Schmer's brother passed by at 2 o'clock in the morning, the safe was in its accustomed place. Between then and 9 o'clock it had been blown open and despoiled of $1,500 worth of jewelry, $5,000 worth of gold leaf and $1,500 worth of bridge work. This gold supply was in separate envelopes, marked with the names of the persons whose mouths it was intended to enter. The envelopes were left behind.

On the floor above, another dentist, Dr. J. Cantor, had $2,700 worth of valuables in his safe, but these were untouched, although the burglars had jimmied their way into his hall and dragged a table to the partition. They must have been scared away just as they were about to climb over. From the rooms of B. Teppelberg, tailor, on the second floor, they took some bolts of cloth.

Entrance to the building was forced through the Second Street doorway on the ground floor. During their work in Dr. Schmer's office one of the men must have cut his finger, for a bandage made out of some of the dentist's gauze was found discarded on the floor and it was stained with blood, but the fingerprint men searched in vain for a fingerprint.

DEFEND HENNESSY HEIR.

Hearing Asked on Assertion That She Has Forfeited Income.

An attempt to deprive Catherine Bradley Bigelow of the inheritance provided for her under the will of her grandmother, Mrs. Ellen M. Hennessey, widow of ex-Fire Commissioner Hennessy, is charged in affidavits filed yesterday in the Surrogates' Court by Mrs. Ellen Parker, a daughter of Mrs. Hennessy. Mrs. Parker, who is Catherine Bigelow's aunt, is an executor of the $1,000,000 estate.

The granddaughter, who was 11 years old last November, is the daughter of Mortimer C. Bigelow, a Captain in the Eighth Cavalry of the United States Army, now stationed in the Philippines. Under the terms of the will she was to receive $1,000 a year from the income of one-third of the residuary estate up to the age of 10; $1,200 until she reached 15; $1,500 at 18, and $2,000 a year on her twenty-fifth birthday, when she was also to receive the accumulated income from her share of the estate.

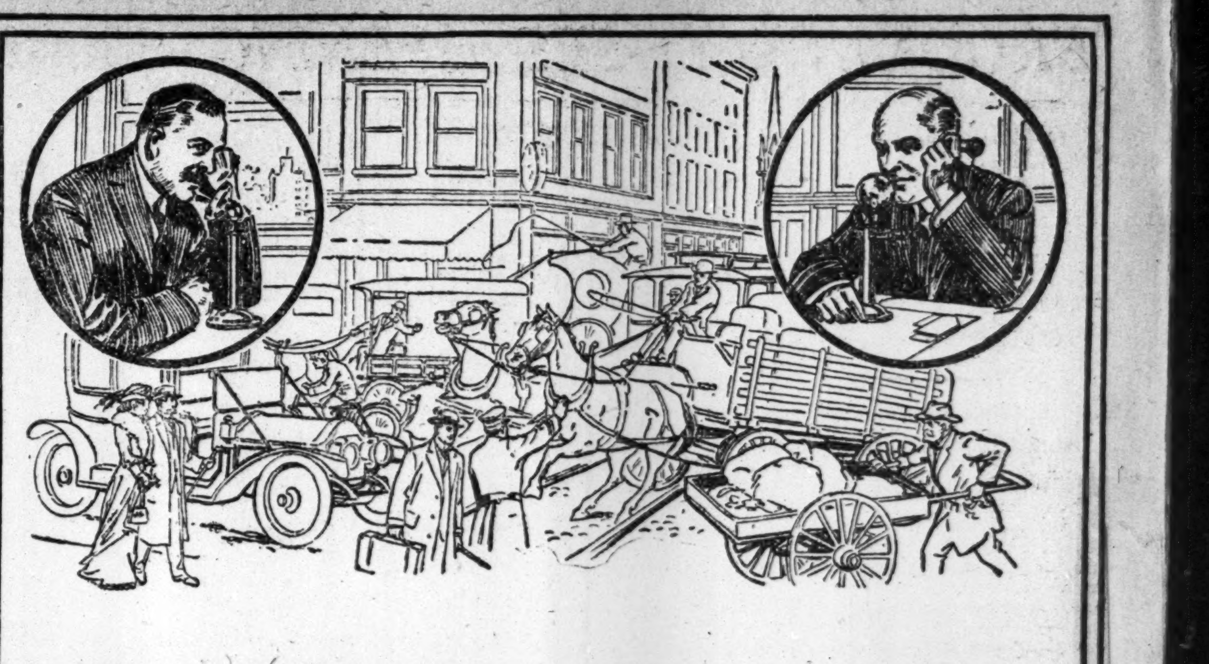
Mrs. Hennessy, in her will, provided that in the event of her granddaughter's being taken from the control or jurisdiction of the executors, the accumulation of the income should cease and the income from one-third of the residue be divided between her son, Forbes J. Hennessy, and her daughter, Ellen Mary Parker, share and share alike until she was 21 years old.

In the papers filed yesterday, which are in support of an application to be heard on Monday before Surrogate Fowler, it is said that Forbes J. Hennessy, who is a former Assistant District Attorney, has demanded a share of the income of the estate on the ground that the girl's removal to the home of a paternal aunt has taken her from the jurisdiction of the executors against the directions in the will.

Mrs. Parker in an affidavit says that the girl, with the consent of Howard S. Bowns, her general guardian, went to live with Mrs. Aillene B. Heff, her father's sister, at Foxboro, Mass., last July.

A9ccording to Dr. Heff, she was suffering from a tubercular trouble and her return to New York might prove dangerous.

J. Delahunty, attorney for Mrs. Parker, and Mr. Coleman, two of the executors, says that his clients never contended that the taking of the child to Foxboro constituted a forfeiture of her legacy.



Why Walk? Just Talk!

WE DO things the hardest way sometimes! Those tiresome trips about town for instance take a lot of time and energy when made in person, and when the destination is reached possibly waits, delays, and disappointments may make the trip seem all the harder.

The telephone saves all the labor of traveling, whether you wish to go a short distance or a long distance. It carries you at once, almost anywhere and back again. It gets you out of the habit of doing things the hard way because telephone traveling is so easy and yet so resultful.

Why not TRAVEL BY TELEPHONE and avoid those tiresome trips about town.

Goodrich Safety Tread Tires

Best in the Short Stop.

Goodrich Safety Treads not only give you safety and sureness all the time, driving, turning or stopping—

They are not separate parts—they are made right in the tread, an extra thickness of splendid rubber, compounded in the Goodrich way, which has forty three years of rubber experience in it.

Goodrich Safety Tread tires are not emergency propositions. They are made for all day and all night work, if you so wish to use them.

In addition to the safety and security they give you it is worth your while to consider the extra value and service you secure in them.

The five thick, tough rubber fingers of the Goodrich Safety Tread, all the time your car is running, are digging right down through the mud, slush, ooze or other slipperiness, and making a constantly clean safe path.

The human hand-grip they get on the road or street is a powerful defense against any chance of a skid. Goodrich Safety Tread Tires are made just as all Goodrich Tires are made—unit molded construction.

Your tire dealer will show you the Goodrich Safety Tread; he will not need to explain it, for its principle and sureness are self evident.

AUTO TIRE REDUCTION BY GOODRICH COMPANY

By JOHN C. WETMORE

An announcement of no small moment to the automobile fraternity is made today in the advertising columns of The Evening Mail. It is none other than that the B. F. Goodrich Company has made a reduction in the prices of Goodrich tires.

Officials of the Goodrich Company declare that it is reasonable to assume that the example set by this powerful member of the tire making industry will be followed by the other makers.

No explanation or reasons why are given in this announcement, but with crude rubber selling at a somewhat lower figure than that prevailing for a year or more past, and the constant devising and application of new higher efficiency methods of tire manufacture, the reduced Goodrich tire prices are but a natural outcome and show the willingness of a great corporation to give the buying public the benefits derived from changed and improved conditions.

I understand that the reduction betters the present price to the user 5 per cent. This, coupled with the reduction first put into effect by the same company nearly a year ago, enables the purchase of tires by the user now at a material saving over prices prevailing prior to April of last year.—New York Evening Mail, March 31, 1913.

The World's Largest Builders of Six-Cylinder Automobiles

We Are the World's Largest Builders of Sixes

Merit alone makes that position possible. Everyone who knows anything about the development of the automobile industry expected Howard E. Coffin to build a wonderful six. But not even we expected his car to so soon become such a leader in its field.

Other sixes have been on the market longer than the "54" HUDSON, but no other maker is today building so many cars of its type.

No one maker can have an exclusive control of careful building, no one can have a monopoly of good materials. But by combining the skill and experience of 48 expert engineers the guess and experiment usual in automobiles has been eliminated.

In the particulars of engineering skill the "54" HUDSON is distinctive. It combines the improvements that 48 experts working in combination have been able to create—it expresses the experience these men have gained in building more than 200,000 cars of 97 well known makes. In care of workmanship and quality of materials it equals that of any automobile built.

If You are Paying More than $2,000 You Make a Mistake if it is Not a Six

The "54" HUDSON is all that any automobile at any price can be in performance, luxury, comfort and value. Backed by our own service you will find in it as near an approach to ideal motor satisfaction as is known.

The "54" HUDSON is the answer to a question that has long concerned all automobile builders, "What will Howard E. Coffin do when he builds a Six?"

When he built this car he had as his associates, experts from 97 leading American and European factories—48 all told.

Thus all guess work was eliminated—all experiment made unnecessary. With so many viewpoints and so much experience, errors that others had made were eliminated—advancements that others found impossible were easily accomplished.

The "54" HUDSON has electric lights. It is electrically self-cranked. The famous Delco system, patented, is used. Every luxury is included, speedometer, clock, top, curtains, rain-vision windshield, demountable rims, twelve-inch upholstery, etc. Equipped with a five-passenger Phaeton body, $2450.

At $1875 you can obtain the HUDSON "37"—designed by the same engineers that built the "54"—and pointed to as the "Four-cylinder masterpiece."

The National League baseball season opened in Brooklyn yesterday with a game between the Dodgers and Philadelphias at Ebbets Field. Nineteen hundred and thirteen's début was a rather chilly affair, for it was so cold that the attendance was seriously affected, about 10,000 spectators braving the arctic blasts to see the Phillies win a well-played game by a score of 1 to 0. The game developed into a pitching duel between Nap Rucker and Seaton, the Quaker boxman having the better of the argument.

It was by special arrangement that the league allowed Brooklyn to open a day early in order to appropriately inaugurate the new field. There was a brass band, a great floral horseshoe and a parade of the players across the field. Jake Daubert was presented with a gold bat, and there was all the usual ceremony that is faithfully followed at every baseball opening.

Borough President Alfred E. Steers threw in the first ball to Umpire Billy Klem. After all the photographers east of the Mississippi had taken pictures of President Ebbets and the floral horseshoe, the crowd set back and shivered in the face of the strong wind which blew across the field.

The lower stand was fairly well filled at playing time, but there were very few spectators in the upper stand, with the exception of box holders. The crowd didn't wax enthusiastic until the eighth inning, when Brooklyn got a couple of men on the bases, and they had a fine chance to break up the game. Seaton, however, checked himself before he slipped and pitched his way out of the difficulty with much cleverness.

The Phillies showed lots of spirit, and if Manager Dooin's troop can get along a few weeks without having the whole team on the hospital list, as in former seasons, the Phils should make considerable impression in the race. They brought Connie Mack's mascot over with them, and the youngster fetched them plenty of luck. Charley Dooin also brought along a little black pup, which he thinks will be a good jinx dispeller.

It was a tough game for Rucker to lose because the star southpaw was in great form for so early in the season. It was the ragged support he received from Benny Meyer in right field that gave the Phillies the game. Meyer had lots of trouble in the sun field, and lost two fly balls which he should have captured easily.

The game was won in the first inning, for after that, both Rucker and Seaton pitched tip-top ball and there was a famine of runs and hits. The Phililes got seven hits off Rucker, while Brooklyn touched Seaton for six. Dode Baskert nailed the first ball that Rucker pitched and sent a red-hot grounder through Fisher. Paskert tried to stretch the hit into a two-bagger, but Wheat threw him out at second.

Knabe then sent a two-bagger humming to right field. Lobert lifted a foul fly to right field, and Meyer muffed it. Then Lobert flied out to Stengel. Sherwood Magee poked a fly to right field, where it should have nestled safely in Meyer's outstretched hands but the outfielder dropped the ball and Knabe raced home with the only count of the afternoon. Magee went to second on the error.

Cosey Dolan smashed a hit to centre and Magee tried to score. Stengel made a beautiful throw to the plate, and Miller tagged the runner sliding home. Cutshaw got the first Brooklyn hit in the first inning, beating out an infield tap. He died trying to steal second, Dooin's arm being in rare form.

Miller singled to right in the third inning, but also was nipped trying to steal. Daubert peeled off a single in the fifth and stole second, but was put out trying to annex third.

The only real chance that Brooklyn had to score was in the eighth inning. After Smith had struck out, Fisher beat out a hit to third. Miller hit a grounder, which carromed off Seaton's feet and rolled over to Doolan. By that time Miller had reached first base.

Manager Dahlen then sent Leo Callahan in to bat for Rucker. It was a fine chance for Callahan, but the youngster did not produce the much desired hit. He hit a grounder to Doolan, who threw Fisher out at third. Stengel brought Brooklyn's chances to a bitter end when he was thrown out at first by Doolan.

Seaton struck out seven of the Dodger batsmen, Red Smith fanning three times. A fine running catch by Zack Wheat in the fourth inning brought forth much applause. The catch saved Brooklyn from a worse defeat, for Dolan was ready to race around if the ball had gotten away from Wheat.

Billy Locke, formerly of Pittsburgh and now President of the Philadelphia Club, was the most tickled man in Brooklyn after the game. Locke has a lot of faith in the club, and thinks with a break in the luck his team will be in the thick of the fight all season.

Snowstorm Strikes American Association Towns.

MINNEAPOLIS, April 9.—President M. E. Cantillon of the Minneapolis Baseball Club of the American Association, announced late to-day that the opening game of the season, which was to have been played with Indianapolis to-morrow, will be postponed until Friday. A snowstorm, which prevailed here throughout the day, is the reason. The opening game between St. Paul and Columbus will also be postponed.

Mr. Cantillon announced that Bob Ewing, a pitcher, formerly with the Cincinnati team, had been signed by the St. Paul club.

New York at Washington.

The baseball season will be ushered in officially at the Polo grounds to-day when the New York team will play the Boston Club. The gates will be thrown open early and the game will begin at 3:30. The Seventh Regiment band will play before and during the game.

Mayor Gaynor has promised to be at the game to throw out the first ball. The National League pennant will be unfurled, and with fair weather, it is likely that the big Brush Stadium will be filled. Manager McGraw may pitch Tesreau.

Manager Chance of the Yankees yesterday, before leaving for Washington, announced that he had released Paddy Green to Pittsburgh, Douglas Harbison to Chattanoga, Jack Priest to Rochester, George Davis to Jersey City, shortstop Finley to Troy, and Pitcher Gaiser to Albany. Chance took twenty-two men with him to Washington, and expects that his injured leg will be so much improved that he will be able to play to-day.

Shortstop Derrick, who was spiked by Wheat in Brooklyn on Monday, had four stitches taken in the injured hand and will be out of the game for a few weeks. "Pep" Young will be used at short. Ray Caldwell will probably pitch to-day's game.

NAVY SHUTS OUT CORNELL.

Only One Ithacan Knocks Ball Outside Annapolis Diamond.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 9.—The Naval Academy won at baseball from Cornell this afternoon by 4 to 0, only twenty-seven batsmen facing Seibert, the Navy captain and twirler. Seibert did not allow a safe hit or permit a runner to reach first base. He struck out thirteen men and made four assists. Only one ball was knocked out of the diamond by Cornell. Seibert's feat was one of the most remarkable ever seen here. Cornell was busy in the field. Keller at third and Donovan at second palying brilliantly, while Butler caught a good game. Acheson was wild and ineffective. The score:

PRINCETON, N. J., April 9.—Princeton rolled up another large score on the diamond this afternoon when the Tigers took the Johns Hopkins nine into camp by a 10 to 6 score. Manhattan Loses to Brown.

PROVIDENCE, April 9.—Brown handed Manhattan College an 8-to-2 defeat in the first home game on Andrews Field this afternoon, shading the visitors in every department of the game. Henry pitched his first game for the 'Varsity, and for eight innings Manhattan could do nothing with his delivery. He weakened a little in the ninth, when the New York boys got their two runs across. He was given splendid support all through the game. Hanley, who started for Manhattan, was poorly supported. He pitched good ball, and held Brown to two runs up to the sixth inning, when the local stickers landed on him and drove in four more tallies. O'Connor went in in the seventh inning, and was effective. The score:

Detroit to Start Without Cobb.

DETROIT, Mich., April 9.—President Navin of the Detroit American League Baseball Club announced to-day that Ty Cobb, the club's centre-fielder and champion batsman of the league, would not start the season with his team at St. Louis to-morrow. President Navin added that he intended to make no further inducements to Cobb, who is "holding out" for more salary.

ANNISTON, Ala., April 9.—Ty Cobb's team of "hold outs" was scheduled to play here to-morrow, but the game was canceled to-day by Cobb. In his telegram to the local team Cobb said: "Disband today for a week pending definite news from Detroit. Hold engagement until you hear from me."

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., April 9.—George Johnson, the local Western League club's Indian pitcher, has been sold to the Cincinnati National League team.

GIANTS GIVE YALE ANNUAL TROUNCING

First Yannigans Whip Them, Then Champions Tackle Elis in Full Game.

The champion Giants came back to their own ball yard yesterday for their final workout before the opening of the championship season, and lived up to all the traditions of the past by taking a fall out of Yale. The Elis had two chances to grab off a victory, as Manager McGraw first sent out his Yannigan team for a five-inning set-to with the Elis, and followed by assigning his regulars to go the full route. For a few innings in each game the collegians set the pace, but they faltered each time. The Yannigans took the opener by the score of 2 to 1, and the regulars came back with a victory in the second engagement, 5 to 2.

As the weather failed to come up to the baseball standard, the Elis played to a much smaller gallery than is usually the case when they come here to pry off the lid at the Polo Grounds. Not more than 1,000 fans were scattered through the big concrete stands, and most of these followed the sunshine much closer than they did the game.

It was a well-browned collection of ball tossers that Manager McGraw led back to New York. In their preliminary workout, and during the two games they gave every evidence of perfect condition, but their batting eyes have hardly rounded to mid-season form. The Eli pitchers caused both teams more trouble than was expected, and it was on errors rather than by steady stickwork that the Giants picked up a majority of the few runs which filtered across the plate in the double engagement. As was expected, the collegians could do little with the stick against the McGraw boxmen. In the opener, Al Demaree held them to a lone single, and in the second game they collected only five hits off Leon Ames and Schupp.

Jim Thorpe was the main attraction in the Yannigan conflict, and the noted Redskin featured with the best hit of the game. It was a scorching line drive to left centre, and had it not been for remarkably fast fielding by Schofield Jim might have made the circuit on the hit. He pulled up at second after Schofield had made his great stop and fast return. This hit paved the way for the winning run, as Thorpe took third on a wild pitch, and counted on an error by Riddell. Thorpe had only one chance in the outfield and that was an easy one. The Giants' first run was scored in the third inning on a fielder's choice after an error and two singles by Grob and Cooper. The Elis got their only run on a pass to Midbrook, a sacrifice, an infield out, and a weird throw by Robertson.

In the second game the rooters gave Snodgrass the sort of a welcome that would indicate they were trying to forget that last game in Boston. But Snod would not let 'em forget. In the eighth inning Pumpelly, of drop kick fame, sent an easy floater out to centre and Snodgrass gave a perfect imitation of that costly muff last October.

Up to the sixth inning the Giants had all sorts of trouble with Gile, the Yale pitcher, getting only three singles. Two runs came in this period, both through errors. Five hits were bunched with more errors in the sixth and seventh innings, adding two more runs. A great stop at third base by Reilly, a shoestring catch by Murray, and the fielding of Midbrook featured the game. The scores:

Lafayette Easy for West Point.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, April 9.—The Army found Lafayette easy to-day, winning by a score of 8 to 5. The cadets got to Forshee early and caused his retirement after the second inning. Five hits, one of them a double, and four bases on balls accomplished his undoing, and he gave way to Holden, who held the cadets to three hits and struck out ten batters in the six innings he worked. However, the Army tallied three times while Holden worked. Neyland began to show the effect of too much work, to-day's victory being his fourth straight. He was hit hard at times and once or twice was saved by fast fielding. Lyman and Milliken each batted well. The score:

PRESIDENT TO SEE GAME.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Dropping tariff schedules temporarily for the baseball schedule, President Woodrow Wilson is expected to open the American League season here to-morrow afternoon between Washington and the New York teams by tossing in the first ball. This was the programme to-night, but it all depends upon the weather man. Indications to-night were none too favorable for to-morrow, with rain and cool weather predicted.

Although probably not quite as enthusiastic a "fan" as former President Taft, President Wilson has accepted the President pass and hopes to attend many games.

Plans have been completed for to-morrow's contest and prospects are that local "fans" will be out in full force if the weather permits. Walter Johnson probably will pitch for the home team and Caldwell for New York.

BASEBALL ON THE SQUARE.

Vice President Marshall's Tribute to National Game.

CHICAGO, April 9.—Vice President Thomas R. Marshall praises the honesty of organized baseball in a letter received to-day by B. B. Johnson, President of the American League. After acknowledging the receipt of an engraved annual pass, the Vice President says:

"I am deeply interested in baseball because it is a fascinating game, because it is the great American sport, and because it sets an example to the business and professional men of America which is as valuable as the preachments of the politicians, namely, that no success is lasting or permanently valuable which does not result from playing the game on the square. The dirt accumulated upon the baseball diamond is clean. A Democrat can say that for all other diamonds in America."

REDS' OPENING POSTPONED.

Rain and Flood Make Park Unfit for Play Until Saturday.

CINCINNATI, April 9.—Owing to the continued hard rains that fell here during the entire day, President August Herrmann late to-day decided to postpone the opening of the National League baseball season in this city until Saturday, April 12. Earlier in the day the game had been postponed until Friday, but it was decided that it would be impossible to get the park into condition by that time.

The recent flood in this city invaded the ball park, and, while the water has receded from the park, yet the work of putting the field in shape for the opening game required not only the work of a large force of men, but also fair weather.

Columbia, 17; W. & M., 0.

With a number of second string men in the line-up and an experimental infield, Columbia's baseball team smothered the William and Mary nine on South Field yesterday afternoon by a score of 17 to 0. The Southerners were outplayed at every point of the game and were at the mercy of the home team, which played errorless ball. Coach Lauder of Columbia tried out nearly his entire squad during the course of the game and used three second string pitchers. The score:

First Baseman Saier Injured.

CHICAGO, April 9.—Reports to-day indicate that Victor Saier's ankle, which he injured in practice yesterday, will keep him out of the Chicago Nationals's opening game here to-morrow, and perhaps for several days will force him to stay on the invalid list. Archer probably will understudy Saier at first base, leaving the bulk of the catching to Bresnahan for the first few days. It is Manager Evers's intention to accustom Archer to first base anyway, so he can be used against left-handed pitchers, Saier being somewhat weak when facing them.

BELMONT PARK TO HAVE SUBURBAN DAY

Brooklyn, Metropolitan, and Other Famous Stakes to be Raced for Again.

New interest in the opening of the racing season at Belmont Park on Decoration Day is aroused with the announcement that the Suburban, the Lawrence Realization, and other stakes that have been features of the meeting of the Coney Island Jockey Club at Sheepshead Bay have been added to the list of the fixtures that have already been announced.

This was made public yesterday after a meeting of the Westchester Racing Association, at which the conditions for the various stakes were approved. In all there are twenty-three big renewals for the eighteen days of racing that are to begin May 30 and continue until July 5, with racing each Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday.

The old classics, the Metropolitan, Brooklyn, and Suburban Handicaps are in the list of those for horses three years old and upward; the Belmont, Withers, Lawrence Realization, and Brooklyn Derby for the three-year-olds exclusively, while the two-year-olds will be seen in the Juvenile, Great American, Great Trial, Astoria Dinner Stakes, and the new event, the Keene Memorial.

The three events for the steeplechasers are the best of such races run under the old conditions, the Grand National, formerly run at Belmont Park; the Empire State at Gravesend, and the Independence at Sheepshead Bay. It is the desire of the backers of this racing revival that the best of the old-time features be preserved without regard to where they were formerly run.

The added money to the Brooklyn and Suburban will be $2,500, while $2,000 and $1,500 will be added in the other events, except some of the selling races which are guaranteed. The three steeplechases will each have $1,500 added.

A majority of the events are handicaps, which will insure much better contests than under the old form of early closing conditions that governed the Belmont and Lawrence Realization.

The distance of the Brooklyn and Suburban Handicaps will be one mile and a furlong instead of one mile and a quarter, as formerly. This is made necessary by the condition of the mile-and-a-quarter chute at Belmont Park, which was torn up for the aviation meetings held there since racing ceased.

The entries will close on Monday, April 28. The added money to the overnight races will be $400, $500, and $600. It is the intention to give a steeplechase each day. Also there will be an Army Day, when races for army horses and races in which officers have the mounts will predominate. The army races will be both flat and steeplechases.

Supt. Pelz at Belmont Park has a large force of men at work getting the course in condition, and it will be at its best on Decoration Day.

At a meeting of the Stewards of The Jockey Club held yesterday August Belmont announced that he intended to bring over on the Minnewaska, sailing April 29, all but three of the produce of his French stud—Haras de Villers, Foucarmont, and France—to be sold in the paddock at Belmont Park, along with yearlings from his Nursery Stud, in Kentucky. He first thought of bringing the entire product, but finding that three of them, two colts and one filly, were quite heavily engaged in the French stakes, he decided to leave them in France.

Watchung to Entertain Farmers.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., April 9.—The Watchung Hunt Club met the hounds at the kennels this afternoon for the midweek run. The chase led straight to Newmarket, the hounds being cast in at Samptown on the Lehigh Valley Railroad. The first check was on the Manning farm. The hounds being cast in again on the Randolph farm, circled on the outskirts of Newmarket, crossing numerous farms. There was considerable fencing. Those who finished were R. C. Finch, M. F. H.; Harry A. Bourne, Schuyler Casey, F. D. French, and Huntsman Harrison. At a meeting of the club to-night it was decided to hold a farmers' jollification fete in May in place of the annual steeplechase. This will be on the club's twenty-acre farm. In addition to two or three races, an entertainment in the nature of a circus and a clambake will be provided for the farmers and their families.

Women Barred in Speedway Race.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 9.—Miss Vivian Prescott, who announced in Philadelphia that she had been granted permission to drive a car in the 500-mile race at the Speedway here next month, will not be permitted to enter the gruelling contest, according to an announcement of the Speedway management to-day T. E. Myers, Speedway auditor, in a statement asserted the claim that Miss Prescott had been granted permission to enter the race was without foundation. The Speedway management, he continued, would not consider allowing a woman to enter so dangerous an event.

N. Y. A. C. Swimmers for Boston.

The New York Athletic Club swimmers will journey to Boston on Saturday to take part in a dual swimming series against the Brookline Swimming Club, which include 50 yards, 100 yards, 220 yards, and 800 yards, relay, plunge for distance, and fancy diving. The team will consist of N. Nerich, George South, P. Roberts, and W. Rammer, who will take care of the relay and the short distance races; Bud Goodwin, the 220 yards; Arthur McAleenan, and J. Dunn, the diving; F. McCarthy, the plunge, and F. Culman, the sprints.

Commission May Handle Wrestling.

The proposition which was recently advanced that the New York State Athletic Commission take over professional wrestling and legislate for it along lines similar to those now the vogue in the boxing game, is being advocated by the New York Athletic Club management, members of which are said to have requested the commission to do what it can to assume such control. It is asserted that with such safeguards as the commission could weave for the good of the grappling game it would immediately raise the standard of the sport in the estimation of many followers of athletic contests who now have no guarantee that many of the scheduled matches are "on the level."

Gertz Leads Columbia Runners.

M. Gertz, a freshman, won the third race for the Van Amringe Cross-country cup at Columbia University yesterday. He covered the course, about six and one-half miles long, around the South Field running track and along Morningside and Riverside Drives, in 29 minutes 19 seconds. Gertz finished well ahead of his nearest rival, F. G. von Kummer, another freshman, and was going strong when he crossed the line. By his victory yesterday Gertz won a commanding lead in the total point score in the cup competition. He is now credited with two wins and one second place, and has only one more race in which to compete. M. M. Lorentz, his nearest rival, finished in third place, and now has a record of a first, a second, and a third to his credit. The finish was as follows:

McCourt Defeats Maupome with Cue

PITTSBURGH, April 9.—Charles McCourt of Pittsburgh to-night defeated Pedro Maupome of St. Louis, 50 to 42, in 81 innings of a Three-Cushion Billiard League game here. Both players had high runs of 4. Pittsburgh and Chicago are tied for first place, and arrangements are being made, it is said, to play off the tie.

ATHLETES SUSPENDED.

National and Local Champions Under Ban of A. A. U.

For failure to make returns of the expenses incurred through recent trips they had made in anticipation of athletic meets held in the Metropolitan district, and in two New England cities a number of the most prominent track and field men of this city were suspended last night by the Registration Committee of the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union.

Edward Jennings of the Mott Haven A. C., the 1909 National champion high jumper; Leo Goehring, Mohawk A. C., and Bob Eller of Georgetown University, were suspended when it was learned that they had neglected to turn in their expense accounts for the games of the Boston A. A. Fred Weiler and Edward Wray were punished for similar neglect in regard to a set of sports held in Hartford.

Dick Egan, Irish-American A. C., Harry Oltman, Second Battallion, Naval Militia, who recently won the 220 yards at the Military A. L. Championships; Myles McHugh, Pastime A. C., and Frank Stephenson, Trinity Club, the M. A. L. 100-yard title holder, also met a like fate.

C. Webb, Eymard Lyceum, was suspended four months for failure to put in an application for a transfer of registration card, and Jerome Guerin, Trinity Club, was suspended for non-appearance to testify in relation to his having competed under an expired card. For competing in an unsanctioned race at Harrison, N. J., won by George Hooley, a professional runner, William Voget had his card cancelled. He ran under the name of Frank Smith, and finished second.

The case of Homer Baker, New York A. C. junior half-mile champion, in connection with his having run at the Second Naval Battalion games under a registration card which had expired, was placed under "reserved decision." Team prize in the M. A. C. road run, which had been won by the Sheridan A. C., and which formed the medium of a protest on the ground that they had run an improperly registered man, was turned over to the Presentation A. C. M. Greenburg, who represented the Sheridans, was found to be registered under the name of the Athenian A. C.

MISS HADSELL SWIMS FAST.

Captures Three Events in the Barnard College Meet.

Miss Eleanor Hadsell, 1914, carried off the honors yesterday at the annual swimming meet of Barnard College held in the Thompson swimming pool. Miss Hadsell won three events, the twenty and forty yards swims and the 20-yard back swim. The meet was held in conjunction with the Field Day of the college and the points scored will be counted for that event. The final score gave the juniors first place with 20 points and 5 points toward the Field Day score. The sophomores were second with 16 points, which carries 3 for the Field Day. The seniors secured 7 points, with 1 for the general aggregation.

In the opening event Miss Hadsell swam the 20 yards in 13 2-5 seconds, which is excellent time for women. Miss Fannie Markwell was a good second. Miss Hadsell repeated her performance in the 40-yard swim, which was covered by the winner in 32 seconds. Miss Marjorie Hillas was a close contender throughout. In the event for swimming on the back, a distance of 20 yards Miss Hadsell again outclassed the field.

The relay rce was somewhat of a surprise as the team representing 1915 defeated the crack trio of 1914. The diving event went to Miss Sophie Adams. In this event only one contestant was permitted to represent each class. Six dives were made from different heights and one fancy dive. The work of the contestants was clean cut and several excellent performances were made. The summaries:

Twenty-Yard Swim.—Won by Eleanor Hadsell, 1914; Fannie Markwell, 1915, second; Naomi Harris, 1913, third. Time—0:13 2-5.

Y. M. C. A. Water Sports.

The fifth annual championship aquatic meet of the Twenty-third Street branch of the Young Men's Christian Association, boys' and intermediate department, was held last night at the Twenty-third Street pool. Ten events were contested with a total entry of 116. One of the features was an exhibition of swimming and fancy diving by G. H. Corsan, the International Y. M. C. A. swimming instructor. The event arousing the greatest amount of interest was the tub race, the amusing antics of the contestants quickly catching the fancy of the spectators. Summary:

16-Yard Swim, Under 90 Pounds.—C. Marschhausen, first; E. H. Ottinger, second; E. Berg, third. Time—0:10 3-5.

LONDON, April 9.—"The luck will all be with us this time. The challenger is the four-leafed Shamrock, while the New York Yacht Club will be defending the America's Cup for the thirteenth time," said to-day Charles E. Nicholson, the yacht designer of Gosport, England, who is to design the boat which will seek to win back for the British the America's Cup.

This will not be Nicholson's first connection with the contests for the Cup, his yards at Gosport having been used to dock the original America when she was under repair.

He said to The Associated Press:

"I wish to correct the unfortunate impression prevailng in the United States that I am afraid of a 90-foot yacht. I believe I could build one which would cross the Atlantic Ocean safely, but a 75 footer, which under present conditions is as large and expensive as the 90-footer of twenty years ago, is the boat which prudence and reason dictate.

"I have the greatest admiration for the genius and cleverness of American designers. These, coupled with the fact that all the conditions are in favor of the defender, make the task of desiging a challenging yacht one of the keenest interest, calling for every ounce of ability I may possess.

"I hope Gardner as well as Herreshoff will be given a chance to design the defender. If so the preliminary races will be almost as interesting as the final cup contest.

"I have already erected a shed at the Gosport yards for the challenger and have her plans well under way I expect to launch her in April, 1914.

"I hope in case the America's Cup returns to the British Isles that the result will be the formation of a code governing all international yacht racing."

REFEREE SAVES DELANEY.

Soldier Kearns Has Opponent Almost Out, When Bout Is Stopped.

Three ten-round bouts were staged last night at the Atlantic Garden A. C., two of which went the limit, while the third was stopped by the referee in the fourth round to save Soldier Delaney from being knocked out. There was plenty of rough and tumble fighting, but science was at a discount. The feature event brought together two heavyweights, Soldier Kearns and Soldier Delaney, both boxers weighing over 200 pounds. Kearns, who at one time was widely advertised as a possible contender for stellar heavyweight honors, was easily the master of the situation. Of the little science displayed by the pair, Kearns made the best showing. In addition he had the advantage of experience, and this materially aided him in reducing his opponent to a state of helplessness in four rounds.

The contest was a lively one from a slugging standpoint. Both men showed a willingness to give and take and many hard blows were landed. Kearns scored the first knock down in the second round, when he caught Delaney on the jaw with a hard right swing. The blow was delivered with full force, and as Delaney arose at the count of nine Kearns started in to finish the contest, but the bell saved Delaney. The latter came up refreshed in the third round and floored Kearns with a straight right punch on the jaw. Kearns took the count and during the remainder of the bout kept away from Delaney.

The end came quickly in the fourth. Kearns rushed Delaney to the ropes and dropped him for the count. Delaney staggered to his feet, only to be knocked down again with a hard right that landed on the jaw. He managed to get up before the bell. Kearns jumped in before his man could settle himself and put him down again. Seeing Delaney's helpless condition the referee stopped the contest.

George Ashe of Philadelphia defeated Tom Bergen of Lewiston, Me., in ten hurricane rounds. It was a longshoreman affair, as Bergen knows absolutely nothing of boxing. He rushed and swung wildly, taking a chance for his blows to land anywhere. Ashe would probably appear to better advantage against a boxer of ability. He repeatedly jabbed Bergen without a return and used his right on the stomach with effect.

In the first ten-round contest Italian Joe Gans outpointed Benny Franklin in a very unsatisfactory affair

LOS ANGELES, April 9.—Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion, is preparing to desert the featherweight ranks, and he made an offer to-day to box Joe Rivers here on July 4 next if the Mexican will make 133 pounds ringside. Promoter Tom McCarey is considering the offer, and it is likely it will be accepted if he cannot arrange for Willie Ritchie to box Rivers on that day. Kilbane fought Rivers when the latter was a featherweight, and he holds the only real knockout that has been scored against Rivers, since Ad Wolgast's knockout victory is not generally accepted. Kilbane defends his title in a twenty-round bout with Johnny Dundee of New York here on April 29, but both boys are said to be having difficulty making the weight, and it was predicted several days ago that it would be the last featherweight bout for both of them. Kilbane's announcement to-day bears out the report that he is ready to join the lightweight division.

Blow Aimed at California Boxing.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 9.—The Brown Anti-Prizefight bill, designed to stop boxing in California, and making it a misdemeanor even to sign a contract for a match to be staged elsewhere, was favorably reported by a Senate committee last night without debate and without a dissenting vote. Should the measure become a law it will prohibit all boxing for which an admission fee is charged of more than four rounds, and for which a prize of any kind is offered, except that a medal not to exceed $35 in value may be bestowed upon the winner.

Autoists to Cease Hostilities.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 9.—A cessation of hostilities between the newly organized Western Automobile Association and the parent organization, the American Automobile Association, was made imminent to-day by mutual concessions by representatives of the W. A. A. and by William Schimpf of the A. A. A., who have been in conference in this city. The two bodies have been in discord since the Western association was organized four months ago. It was said today that harmony would be insured if the A. A. A. would agree to the W. A. A. having limited control over racing events.

BOXING BILL REJECTED.

Massachusetts Does Not Want a Commission Like New York's.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., April 9.—After a lively and prolonged debate, the Senate to-day, as recommended by the Ways and Means Committee, rejected the bill to provide for a commission on boxing and State supervision of boxing matches. The vote was 14 to 19.

Senator Ward of Buckland, in opposing the bill, said the proposition was in effect for the commonwealth of Massachusetts to go into partnership in prize fighting. He praised Gov. Dix of New York because after recommending a similar bill he found that in practice the statute degraded the sport, and in a subsequent report he recommended its repeal. He read extracts from leading New York newspapers denouncing the conduct of boxing matches under the Frawley law, and said that Massachusetts would have a similar experience if a similar law were enacted here.

JIM SULLIVAN DIRECTOR.

Noted Sportsman to be at Head of Panama-Pacific Sports Carnival.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 9.—James E. Sullivan, Secretary-Treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union, will be Athletic Director of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, it was announced to-day.

Accepting the appointment, Mr. Sullivan said the programme of games and sports that he would formulate would bring to the exposition every world's champion. The stadium, he asserted, will be the most remarkable ever built, surpassing in equipment those of London, Stockholm, and Athens.

NEW YORK, THURSDAY, APRIL 10, 1913.

THE MINIMUM OF DISTURBANCE.

There are contentious phases about the proposed reduction of the tariff, but there is one tariff reform which ought to have friends in every camp. Nobody, whether protectionist or "free-trader," whether capitalist or wage-earner, whether Republican or Democrat, whether producer or consumer, can wish that the disturbance of trade should be greater than is avoidable. There is no reason why with co-operation it should not be made avoidable altogether. Surely the disturbance from the Underwood bill is hardly discoverable. As one of the beneficiaries of the recent protective policy remarked, he would wait to be ruined before he thought he was ruined.

That stalwart frame of mind will go far to avert ruin for others as well as himself, and will suggest ways and means for falsifying the idea that ruin is necessary now because there has been some experience of that sort hitherto. That leaves out of account the fact that a change of tariff is only one of many factors, and that never before were other conditions so propitious for passing from one tariff to another with so little friction. There is now no complication from disordered currency and poor crops, as when the Dingley and previous Wilson tariffs were enacted. The McKinley tariff was concurrent with the Silver Purchase bill. The revision of 1883 was associated with a banking situation so unsound that we were buying gold abroad instead of exporting it, contrary to our credit balance on merchandise movement as now. Memory may be searched in vain for a better time to put in force that sort of protectionism that leads toward freer trade. The most auspicious condition of all is the practically unanimous mental attitude in favor of the change. What everybody is reconciled to, and what nearly everybody wants, cannot hurt many.

There are numerous ways in which whatever hurt there must be may be minimized. The best way of all is for nobody to pay any particular attention, but to keep business moving with as little alteration of custom as possible. There is an average of production and consumption which will be maintained even if there should be some realization of the prophecies of woe. To maintain that average as high as possible should be the aim of all traders. If there is any merchant who is postponing his purchases until prices shall fall in his favor, he is doing what he can to make trouble for all but himself. It is in that way that trade will be checked without necessity and without advantage. Even the man who may thus buy a little lower will find that his sales are less to his advantage than they might have been if by his assistance the momentum of trade had been kept unchecked. It is reasonable enough for such cautious ones to ask that prices shall be protected, and it is a fair encouragement to such doubting ones that sellers should offer to sell with such protection of prices. Buyers and sellers may get together on a basis eliminating the tariff as a factor by adjusting the bargain on the rates of the tariff as they finally shall be fixed.

The profits on such business may not be large or sure, but they are better than none, and better than loss by allowing trade to be chilled. Now is the time for men of business to show whether they are stalwarts. Now is the time for tariff reformers to show the courage of their convictions and to act upon them. The protectionist who sulks practically pleads the baby act and admits that he has profited only by an excess of privilege which others will benefit by his losing. Those of any phase of thought who are slowing down on the theory that others will, and that therefore they must, are inviting the danger of being caught with depleted stocks when others are demanding supplies, because their stocks have been allowed to run down. Just as ironmakers keep their furnaces burning because it is expensive to recover from a "chill," so traders should trade if they can, because it is so hard to start again if they stop trading. There is a contagion of courage as well as of gloom, and the man who is immune to mere suggestions of ruin is an asset to any community.

SENATORS BY POPULAR ELECTION.

Connecticut, the thirty-sixth State to ratify the amendment passed on May 13, 1912, providing for the popular election of United States Senators, has effectually evinced the prevailing lack of faith in Legislatures properly to represent their States. Hereafter the Federal Senate shall consist of two Senators from each State elected by its people for six years. When vacancies occur the Governor of the State shall issue writs for a special election, but it is provided that the Legislature may empower the Executive to make a temporary appointment until the vacancy shall be filled by election as directed by the Legislature. The incumbency and term of service of no Senator now elected will be affected by the amendment.

By their own vote a blow has been struck at the dignity and good name of the several States composing the Union. They have decided that they cannot elect Legislatures fit to choose their representatives, as States, in the Federal Congress. What assurance is there, then, that the people can choose fit Senatorial representatives themselves? The amendment violates the principle of the short ballot, adding another to the long roll of elective offices; moreover, as Senator Hoar expressed it, the new method "transfers the seat of political power in "great States, now distributed evenly "over their territory, to the great "cities and masses of population." The people now elect but two Federal officers, the President and the Congressman. Now they will elect three.

The first blow having been struck, the second impends. While the States voted as sovereigns by means of their Legislatures, the fact that one State was rich and populous and another small, poor, and newly settled, made no difference—the majesty of each was represented by its two Senators at the Federal capital. Now that their election is reduced to the terms of the popular vote, the people of the States must stand up and be counted. By what right should the 20,000 voters of Nevada have an equal voice in the deliberations of the Nation's upper house with New York's 1,560,000 voters? Such questions will be raised, and with the coming years more insistently.

FERGUSON FARMING.

Mr. Porter A. L. Ferguson of Minneapolis is intensely interesting as a product and as a producer, and typical of the time and the land in which he lives. We hear much—and some of it is true—of the blighting change which has come over the world and especially our own country within the last half century, by which the resources, energies and opportunities of the community have passed largely under the concentrated and monopolistic control of a single class, the capitalists, and the chances of the many have been restricted and practically destroyed. And here is the son of a "poor but thrifty" farmer, who, at 40 years, has found and taken chances enough to get together $5,000,000 with which to found a splendid enterprise, not of philanthropy, but of benevolent efficiency.

Clearly Mr. Ferguson is a product of this capitalistic age, and of this age since it has reached its most severely criticised stage. If he devoted his acquired resources to any other purpose than the one described in our Milwaukee dispatches, the mere fact of their acquisition would show that the field of opportunity has neither been closed, nor, for those who march to it rightly equipped, seriously reduced. He must be taken literally as a product of the age, and the age that has produced him cannot justly be described as wholly reactionary, repressive, and monopolistic in its tendencies. This is a cheering and an enlightening fact.

Still more enlightening and cheering is the use to which Mr. Ferguson proposes to put the wealth which his own brains and character have gained for him. He intends to found an enterprise of large scope and long range for the production of an extended series of farms, tilled by the best methods of practical modern agriculture, organized on the best business principles, and made at once profitable and attractive to farmers of the right sort. To secure farmers of this sort the plan includes an agricultural college and demonstration farm in which instruction and training will be given free, under proper regulation, to the boys of the community. This work will be conducted with the co-operation of the University of Wisconsin, but with direct reference to the requirements of the main enterprise. The total area of farm land devoted to the plan will be 125 square miles, or 80,000 acres, divided into 1,000 farms capable of supporting directly at least 5,000 persons, and, indirectly, many more.

As we have said, Mr. Ferguson denies that this plan is philanthropy. It certainly is benevolence of a very valuable kind, with the prospect of indefinite expansion and endurance. He believes that it can be conducted with reasonable profit to the founder and with secure and progressive advantage to the participants. There is no reason why it should not. The great benefit of organization and co-operation is secured in advance. The needs common to all the farms can be provided for at "wholesale cost," much below what would be the cost otherwise. Individual enterprise, ingenuity and initiative will be not suppressed but stimulated, and the net profit will be increased. The plan is simply the organization, on a large scale, of opportunity. Nothing could be more promising, and, efficiently administered, nothing more fruitful. That it is likely to be administered efficiently may safely be inferred from the career and character of the man who has undertaken it.

HOME RULE—AT A PRICE.

The Levy-Cullen "Home Rule" bill has passed both houses of the Legislature, and awaits the Governor's signature. Perhaps the complex character and obscurity of some of its provisions have prevented due discussion of so important a measure. Before Gov. Sulzer signs it we would ask that he give time to its sponsors to show that it does not, in terms and effect, repeal the charters of New York's cities.

The bill grants absolutely to this city and to other cities the power to manage and control their "local affairs." It then proceeds to specify certain powers, among them that to regulate by ordinance any matter within the powers of the city. Moreover, any provision of any special or local law which in any city operates to prevent the exercise or limits the extent of any power granted "shall be superseded."

All existing city law is superseded because of the grant of unlimited general powers and of the new enumerated powers. The bill specifies that "in the absence of any provision "of law or ordinance determining by "whom * * * any power granted by "this act shall be exercised, the Com"mon Council or Board of Aldermen "or corresponding legislative body of "the city" shall have the power.

So the Common Council or Board of Aldermen shall have all powers now vested in the State Legislature to deal with "local affairs." It may, among other things, oust the Board of Estimate of practically all its functions and take over, by means of ordinances, absolute control of the city budget. One enumerated power, relating to grants of franchises, traverses the field of the Public Service Commission. Also the educational system and the entire civil service system of the city would come under the control of the Aldermen.

The bill would confer "home rule," but the way indicated for its administration is the last that would be conceived or suggested by honest municipal reformers.

RENEW THE BURTON ACT.

Appeal to the Legislature in this State to protect the scenic grandeur of Niagara Falls, such as was made by Attorney General Carmody on Monday, is not needed. Mr. Carmody says that the title to the centre of Niagara River, both in the bed of the stream and in the waters that pass over it, resides in this State, "subject to such rights as individual "riparian owners may have, and "subject also to Federal control in "the interests of commerce and for "the purpose of protecting the navi"gability of the stream." The War Department and Congress itself have ample powers to restrain the undue taking of water for hydro-electric power from the cataract. In his letter to The Times, appearing April 6, President J. Horace McFarland of the American Civic Association says that under the act of March 30, 1899, the War Department is specifically charged with the control of the waters of Niagara River. Moreover, so long as the treaty with Great Britain is effective, the War Department must see that its provisions are not violated, and the Federal Government would continue its inspections. Mr. McFarland adds:

> Gen. Bixby has advised the power developing interests at Niagara Falls that the War Department would look with disfavor on any attempts to take water in excess of the provisions of the Burton act, pending the passage of renewal legislation in the Congress about to meet in special session.

Senator Burton presented on Monday, the opening day of the special session, a joint resolution extending the terms of the Burton act to March 4, 1915. President Wilson has declared that he is anxious for the passage of the Burton bill. Those who are anxious with him for the continued integrity of the Falls will do well to appeal to their Senators and the Representatives of their districts in Congress.

CANADA'S NAVY, OR ENGLAND'S?

Mr. Churchill made his speech on the naval budget in the interval during which Premier Borden was providing himself with two months' supply of funds. The Canadian naval debate is likely to be influenced by the declaration of Mr. Churchill regarding his proposed use of the ships to be provided by Canada, New Zealand, and Malaysia. Their identity is to be merged in an "imperial squadron," to be based at Gibraltar, to cruise about the empire, and to be ready for duty at any threatened point, at home or abroad.

This ends the British "emergency" as a factor in Canadian politics. A squadron with a base at Gibraltar has no reference to the naval politics of the North Sea, and still less to the strategy of the Pacific. The Japanese could reach either Australasia or British Columbia before the "imperial squadron." Canada's need for a navy, if there is any need, is for one with a base at one of its own Pacific ports, not for one at Gibraltar. This is so because of the reason for which the Canadian contribution is asked. It is because the imperial navy is preoccupied, and is inadequate for imperial purposes, that the colonies are asked to assist the weary motherland. But this raises another difficulty. As Keir Hardie objected in his remarks on Mr. Churchill's speech, the addition of the colonies to the imperial programme is unfair toward Germany. It disturbs the equilibrium which England proposed and which Admiral von Tirpitz accepted. He agreed to a 60 per cent. superiority on behalf of England, but not to 60 per cent. plus whatever the colonies could be got to contribute in aid. Mr. Morrell moved that no contributions ought to be accepted without consideration of the terms by the British Commons.

That is decidedly like looking a gift horse in the mouth, and refers, no doubt, to Canada's demand that if it contributed to the imperial defense it should have a voice in the imperial councils. The amendment was withdrawn upon Mr. Churchill's dissociating himself from the exact form of Mr. Borden's proposal. Other speakers expressed regret that Canada's gift should come from a divided people. That would be averted if the gift should not be made at all. American interest is less in the navy than in the fact that the decision regarding the navy is bound up with the commercial relations of Canada and the United States.

AN EATER OF RAW FOODS.

They are atavistic who gravely hold that man made a mistake in discovering and applying the principles of cookery. This is apparent from the discovery of a skeleton in the most recent paleolithic deposits of Halling, England, containing teeth which had abscesses at the roots "as a result of overwear," with exposure of the pulp cavities. The Halling man, Prof. Keith teaches, may have belonged to a totally different genus of human being—a branch that was not in direct line of descent to modern man. Some defect of living habit, either instinctive or acquired, doomed this race to extinction some tens of thousands of years ago. Was it his persistent consumption of raw foods?

It is possible, of course, to get subsistence from roots, grains, and herbs in which the nourishing starch has not burst the confines of its cellulose coverings by the application of heat. Such food requires severe comminution, however, for which the buccal apparatus of the ruminant animals is best adapted. Pasturing kine "fletcherizing" their cuds eke out a peaceful but laborious existence. Man, doubtless, was constrained to imitate their method in remote ages. But like his modern counterpart among the dietetic faddists, he could not long survive.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Faithful Servant of the City.

Our politicians and office holders not infrequently have funerals notable for the number of people attending them, for elaborateness of ceremony and pomp of uniforms and banners and flowers, but only too often it has been hard to cite elevation of character or great public services rendered as explanation of these impressive obsequies. There is no such difficulty in the case of Patrick F. McGowan, who was buried yesterday — no doubt that the remarkable tributes paid to his memory were earned, and therefore deserved.

Mr. McGowan was a politician, he had been the holder of many offices, and his affiliations were with Tammany, but that no scandal had ever touched him would be a poor beginning of eulogy, for his qualities were positive, not negative, and his reputation was made by what he did, not by what he did not do.

One phase of his activities was fitly recognized by the touching services, quite unprecedented, so far as can be recalled, that were held in every classroom of the Washington Irving High School at the hour of the funeral. Pupils and teachers alike of that magnificent institution gladly and gratefully called Mr. McGowan its "father," for it was he, more than any other man, that brought it into being.

As Acting Mayor Mr. McGowan exercised high authority with vigor and discretion, meeting several difficult problems, including the Brooklyn car strike, in a way that won general approval. Though his youthful advantages were few, he made himself, by much reading of the best books, a well-educated man—in this as in so many other respects far removed from the ordinary type of successful politician.

What may be called the man's distinctly personal character is illustrated by the fact that when his doctors told him that he had only ten days or so to live he calmly settled his affairs, and then as calmly began a round of farewell calls upon his older and nearer friends. Not one of them did he miss, it is said, but few of them knew that he came in salutation and farewell, for his manner was unchanged from the quiet geniality that had always marked it.

Expectation Cruelly Disappointed.

As President Wilson knew, at least as well as any of his millions of fellow-citizens, the amount and quality of attention that would be called to his first formal and official communication to Congress by the unusual method of its delivery, one can fairly assume that he prepared it with care and intended that it should illustrate in word and phrase what the country can expect to get from a statesman who is also a scholar and a well practiced writer. Curiously enough, the message—or the address, as a learned neighbor instructs us to call it—does nothing of the kind. It is, on the contrary, a distinctly careless piece of work, considered either as literature or oratory, and it contains departure after departure from the linguistic perfection that was to be expected from such a man in such circumstances.

To be sure, the slips are all so slight that to notice them in another would be obvious hypercriticism, and the only mortal sin that a writer or speaker, as such, can commit—obscurity—is absent. It is not enough, however, that a man of eminent learning, the head of a great university before he became President, and the historian of the country that has chosen him for its chief executive officer, should make himself understood. He must do more—he must be elegant in his simplicity, and he must avoid locutions of which nothing better can be said than that they are permissible or can be excused by the commoner usages of conversation and daily journalism—to which almost anything can be forgiven.

To rehearse all these little blemishes were a tiresome task. It is enough to mention the queer pleonasm or tautology in the characterizing of certain "facts" as "actual," and the really cruel strain of the passive voice that appears in "the direction they were given." "Actual facts" is as obnoxious to blame as are the too familiar "real facts" and "true facts," since facts cannot possibly be other than actual, real, and true. As for the other phrase, though Prof. Lounsbury does give it, like many a related heterodoxy, a thin coating of his kindly whitewash, it is not the prettier or the more graceful on that account, and scholar statesmen shouldn't use it when addressing the Nation through its chosen representatives.

(Fortunately this country isn't Germany, else would these remarks be lesion of majesty and mean the interning of their maker in a damp and chilly fortress for nobody knows how many months. Here they're safe enough—we hope.)

Policemen Have Not Been Abused.

All of us should be, and many of us are, properly patient with the little foibles and pet delusions of the great and good, but if Mayor Gaynor continues much longer to write and talk about "the abuse that is heaped upon the police" by the people and papers of this town, somebody is going to say something really harsh and to take care that he hears it.

For, as a matter of fact, nobody has heaped any abuse on the police and nobody has shown even an inclination to do so. On the contrary, metropolitan press and metropolitan population alike have asserted time and time again exactly what the Mayor himself claims—that the police, as a body, are as honest as they are brave. The only charge made as a result of recent revelations is that among the policemen are a few who are corrupt, and that charge, as the Mayor knows and admits, is true. To say so is not abuse, heaped or leveled.

The one general accusation applicable or applied to the police is that, apparently to a man, they stand by each other as against the city, regardless of what individual offenders may have done, and, to the extent of their power, resist instead of aiding the purification of the department of the villains whose presence disgraces it.

This tendency is, of course, a virtue gone wrong rather than original sin—an exaggeration and misapplication of that esprit de corps which in other manifestations is wholly admirable and as much as any other one thing the basis of police efficiency and trustworthiness. The policeman who unhesitatingly risks his life when a uniformed brother needs help or deserves defense merits the recognition his heroism always gets, but the policeman who perjures himself to protect a scoundrel from earned punishment, who sullenly holds back when he should be aiding in the reform of the service, who sneers or curses at those who chase the black sheep of the police flock—he is not a hero; he is a public enemy and should be called so.

A CONTENTED SERVANT

Works Faithfully, Knowing Her Efforts Are Appreciated.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Having seen Miss Lord's account of the "Servants' Problem" in The Sunday Times, I write to show that at least there is one contented maid who has a good mistress. The lady I am now with has a large house, situated in nice grounds, on Long Island, and employs a cook, waitress, also chambermaid, and a girl of 19 to work upstairs in the morning. We are, indeed, a happy household. We do not work hard, get good wages, have the nicest of rooms, and every comfort and convenience. We each have a list of the work for each day, and the extra duty performed on these days. As to our outings, we each have the afternoon and evening each week, and every other Sunday. The waitress and I take turns in locking up the last thing at night. We have three nights off, and on and off duty we are at liberty to go out if we please. If we ask for a day or two for the city we get it, provided there are no engagements on for that day.

My mistress is a thorough lady and housekeeper, and knows how to treat maids kindly, and in return her maids serve her faithfully, and do all in their power to please in every way because it is appreciated. The system is, mistress and maid understand each other; no complaints made unless there is absolutely an occasion to do so.

Do not let the world say that mistresses and maids are all bad. There are some good ones, and, as a servant in a household, I feel that I am getting a good training for managing a home of my own. I, for one, am very proud of it, not ashamed to be called a servant. I am a very fortunate girl, and truly hope my future will be also.

To Find a Good Physician.

If "A. B. C." or any other stranger arriving in a new neighborhood wants to get the name of a reputable doctor, all he has to do is to inquire in a drug store for half a dozen names, look these up in a medical directory which the druggist will give him, and pick out one who has a record of not less than say, ten years' practice, and a degree from one of the better-known medical schools.

Or, if he is a church-going individual his pastor will doubtless be glad to recommend a reliable practitioner. To get on the track of a good medico is as easy as A B C.

CONVICTED CRIMINALS.

Should They Be Made to Pay for Their Trial and Support?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have not seen mention in any of the newspapers of the project to compel convicted criminals to pay either in cash or by labor one-half of the expenses of their trial and subsequent support. It sometimes happens that wealthy criminals protract their trials, and add greatly to the expenses of the State. Should they not pay half of the expenses if found guilty?

It sometimes happens, also, in crimes of violence, that the criminal leaves his victim maimed or crippled, or, in the case of a woman, with beauty and hope gone, and after a period of incarceration resumes the enjoyment of his gains. It is possible that such a man might be willing to pay the cost of his defense and spend a few years in prison to see the one he hated helpless and poor.

In all cases, whether rich or poor, a criminal should pay half his cost to the State. And this on the ground of simple honesty and justice, in which the criminal sorely needs a practical lesson. If poor one-half his earnings should go to his family, if he has one, or those dependent on him, and the other half help to pay what he has cost the State. If the criminal is rich, besides his contribution to the expenses of the State he should contribute to the support of his victim if helpless. Such a division of his earnings might reconcile the opponents of prison labor to the employment of convicts in the industries, or at least in their self-support.

REGULATED "SKYSCRAPERS."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Ernest Flagg's letter to The Times headed "Skyscraper Towers" is a timely and valuable one, and ought to be interesting to New York residents in general, and especially to architectural practitioners familiar with the evolution of the skyscraper.

The skyscrapers and their towers already built must of course remain as long as Manhattan Island resists geological subsidence or the metal skeletons of its skyscrapers remain measurably free from accumulating rust and corrosion or defy river flood or tidal wave. But a limit should be set by law to the number of them allowed in the future, and those permitted should be built at considerable distances from each other and with their boundary walls sloping inwardly like the spire of a church, from ground line to top, so as not to deprive adjoining buildings of their fair share of necessary sunlight and ventilation.

Mr. Flagg, in my opinion, is quite right in saying that skyscrapers have banished "dignity, sobriety, and order" from the streets where they prevail. "Nec mora, nec requies" might well be graven on the cornerstone of the average skyscraper. Along with many other disadvantages affecting health and comfort it has destroyed architectural scale and the mainly restful symmetry in some sections of its surroundings. But in future it may at least, if its facades are properly treated, be invested, as he hints, with a somewhat compensating picturesqueness.

GAMES IN CENTRAL PARK.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have just read in The Times that Mr. Stover, our Park Commissioner, has granted the use of one of the commons in Central Park to the Public School Athletic Association for Friday, June 6, where 10,000 public school children are to do certain athletic "stunts," and where he expects to have arrangements for seating 40,000 spectators. This means 50,000 people massed together in a park which was not intended for any such purpose, and in addition to this 50,000 there will probably be 50,000 more drawn there out of idle curiosity.

This immense number of people massed together in any part of this Park or any park will do incalculable injury to the lawns, shrubs, and trees near the spot where this show is going on.

The project for building an immense stadium in this park, which came up about a year ago, was successfully defeated, and this project for June 6 is but the same thing in another form, and if the thing is allowed to take place it will establish a precedent for all sorts of athletic contests to take place in this park and to its ruination.

The James Estate.

The estate of the late D. Willis James is located in Madison—and "close in" at that—instead of in Morristown. There are special reasons why the people of Madison are very jealous on the score of any other town claiming the James estate, therefore this correction of an error in your report on Sunday of the opening of the International Flower Show in the Grand Central Palace. Mr. James lived here many years, and his widow and other members of the family still spend the greater part of each year here.

As a resident of the borough Mr. James was an unusually public-spirited citizen. His pride in the town caused him to buy out a lot of shack owners in a section of the borough that impinged closely on its business centre. He paid, in some instances, two and three times the value of the property. They tell me that it previously was a thoroughly neglected and disreputable-looking neighborhood. He had all of the buildings removed and the ground filled and graded. He then had trees and flowers planted and pretty walks laid out; also he built a beautiful stone bridge across the railroad tracks, which cut through the grounds, and likewise a very artistic stone pagoda, with tiled roof, and erected at the entrance a handsome fountain. He then dedicated the property to the borough as a public park. As such it has since been maintained without cost to the borough, and as a small park it is a gem. Next Mr. James erected what is probably the most unique public library to be found in any New Jersey town.

Extorted "Confessions."

I have often wondered how long it would be before some poor devil who has been terrified by lack of food, &c., and then signed a "supposed" confession, would be allowed to tell the truth.

I think Mulraney's story sounds very plausible, and though I don't say it is always the case, I think if a rigid examination were made it would be found that many cases are like his.

The man who captures him considers it more to his honor if he can bring a confession along with his prisoner, and so goes about the easiest way of getting one.

A day's lack of food and a promise of no more until a confession is signed will work on almost any of the uneducated class if not on the educated. Hunger is a terrible thing to fight. I only wish that in some way a prisoner could be watched by a lot of fair-minded men from the time he is arrested until his trial, and not by those who are paid to do it and take the easiest way out.

WOMEN FED BY FORCE

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Current dispatches either report or deny that many of the incarcerated militant suffragettes are forcibly fed to prevent their starving. Many are apt to imagine that forced feeding is a specially refined method of excruciating torture practiced upon these women. Every physician who has had institutional training and experience in the care and treatment of mental disorders becomes very familiar with the method of forced feeding in melancholia and the like depressive mental states in which the patients refuse the ordinary means of taking food. Forced feeding is, of course, never undertaken with any idea of inflicting pain or punishment, nor is any experienced by those being thus fed. It is not an uncommon experience for an asylum physician to forcibly feed several patients on each of his night and morning rounds of his wards. I have known several patients thus fed and maintained thereby in good physical health for many years. One patient was fed in this manner twice daily with no apparent ill-effects for nearly twenty years.

The method of forced feeding is not essentially more unpleasant than having the stomach washed out, as practiced by the stomach specialist to test the functional capacity of the stomach, which, unfortunately, most of us have experienced at one time or another in our lives. The experience is neither painful nor dangerous with a skilled nurse or physician. Nor is the process unpleasant aside from the first gagging experienced as the tube passes down the back part of the throat. Many melancholics make no special haste to resume the ordinary means of taking food so long as forced feeding is offered.

Forced feeding, or gavage, consists in the forcible introduction of food into the stomach through a tube. It is a simple procedure and one a nurse can easily be taught. It has a wide application in nourishing infants, young children, and in the treatment of certain forms of insanity. The apparatus and method employed are as follows: A soft rubber catheter is connected to a short glass tube and about 18 inches of rubber tubing to a glass funnel holding from 4 to 6 ounces, and the liquid food is poured into the elevated funnel. An ordinary Davidson syringe is frequently attached to the soft rubber catheter when gravity is not employed. The patient is placed upon his back or sits in a semi-reclining position in a chair, the head being steadied by an assistant. The tongue is depressed by the forefinger, or a wooden gag is used to prevent the biting of the tube during the process of passing the same into the gullet. The catheter is then passed rapidly down the oesophagus. Usually about 12 to 16 inches of this is passed beyond the lips. Then, if the funnel is employed, it is raised for a few moments to allow an escape of gas from the stomach, and food is then poured into it. When the funnel empties, the tube is tightly compressed and quickly withdrawn. If withdrawn slowly or clumsily it is likely to excite vomiting. Sometimes when there is great resistance to the introduction of the tube through the mouth the latter may be passed through the nose. The food given is usually milk and raw eggs. The milk may be partly or wholly peptonized. This in a concise manner gives one an idea of the technique employed in forced feeding.

From the foregoing it will be seen that forced feeding properly carried out can in no wise be considered as a form of cruel and inhuman treatment. It should not therefore pass current in the minds of the uninformed as a species of inquisitional persecution suffered by the militant suffragettes. There may be many painful experiences suffragettes have been called upon to endure to gain the much to be desired equal franchise, but forced feeding cannot justly be counted one of them.

Foreign Language Study.

In commenting on my letter concerning the usefulness of the study of foreign languages in the high schools you have done me an injustice. I did say that the study of foreign languages has absolutely no value for the vast majority of our pupils, but I limited this statement by adding "from a practical utilitarian point of view," meaning thereby that the ability to understand the spoken foreign language, or to make himself understood in that language, is not such an immediate financial asset for the great majority of American boys as, for example, it would be for almost any German boy in obtaining a better paying position for him, &c.

I am an enthusiastic believer in the great intellectual benefit to be derived from the systematic and thorough study of foreign languages and their literatures, but do not like to see it degraded into the more or less ungrateful occupation of a mere linguistic drillmaster, and I would not have the study of foreign languages themselves considered the real aim and object, but only the means of entering into the spirit and the ideas of other nations as expressed in their literatures.

Parcel Post Unreliable?

Is the parcel post to be a failure?

Two parcels addressed to 16 West Twelfth Street, New York City, one from Mamaroneck, N. Y., and one from Boston, Mass., within the past ten days have not been received.

THIS GREAT DAY.

Call me early, mother dear,
For the baseball season's open
I must sit among the bleachers
As of yore, dear mother, and
I must yell, as is the custom,
Yell and yell, to beat the band.

And—well, maybe, mother mine,
You had better 'phone the doctor
To drop in at night by nine.
For I'll get so cold, dear mother,
Sitting on that chilly stand,
That I'll surely ship a microbe
That the doctor'll have to land.

I'll come home with grip, dear mother,
Or pneumonia or worse,
And it may be that some later
You will put me in the hearse.
But no matter, dearest mother,
If you're up, don't let me lie;
If I see the Giants winners

DICTOGRAPH TELLS NOW WHAT IT HEARS

K. M. Turner, Its Inventor, Has Succeeded in Hitching It to a Phonograph.

MERE WHISPERS RECORDED

Detectives Now Can Prove Cases Easily—Machine Distinguishes the Speakers' Voices.

A self-recording dictograph, which could not only overhear a conversation in a room where its presence was not suspected, but could make a full record of the conversation, whispers and all, on a phonographic cylinder located some distance away, was exhibited yesterday by K. M. Turner, the inventor of the dictograph, at his offices in West Forty-second Street.

The secret of how to build such a self-recording dictograph has been sought diligently ever since the little instrument that made Detective Burns famous was placed upon the market eight years ago. In his cases in court Burns has been forced up to the present to submit stenographic notes, the authenticity of which he has had to prove.

For eight years Mr. Turner worked on the invention. For over seven and a half of them he sought to connect the diaphragm of the dictograph directly to the needle of a phonographic roll, but got no results. Four weeks ago he began experimenting with an air cushion between the diaphragm and the needle, instead of a direct connection, and at once obtained a full and natural reproduction of the voice.

In Mr. Turner's laboratory at Flushing a conversation in a room supplied with a dictograph was recorded in another room four days ago. The experiments conducted yesterday were the first to which the public has been invited.

Mr. Turner explained that the new invention, as applied to business, means that it is now possible for a business man to sit at his desk and dictate his letters in his ordinary tone of voice, and have them taken down on phonographic rolls 100 feet or 1,000 feet away. He might even remain at home, if he had a direct wire connection with his office, and do his dictating in his bedroom or his library. The only limit of the self-recording dictograph, Mr. Turner insisted, was that now recognized in the transmission of conversations by telephone.

When a Times reporter called at Mr. Turner's office yesterday he was preparing to catch a train for Indianapolis, where he intends to take a month's vacation.

"I've been feeling bad all day," he said, "because I didn't think of taking this thing down to Washington to catch President Wilson's speech to Congress. The President would never have known that a dictograph was taking down his speech. The little disk could have been placed anywhere within ten feet, say, of the platform, and would have caught all the verbal intonations and characteristics. The speech could have been recorded on a roll located anywhere in Washington, to which I could have laid a direct wire."

Mr. Turner talked a little bit and then escorted The Times reporter to another room, in which a phonograph shouted out the conversation that had just occurred.

"To test this thing," said Mr. Turner, "suppose you imagine this wire ends in your newspaper office and you are sending in bulletins as you would over a telephone."

The reporter, standing five feet from the dictograph, spoke in a low voice directly into the palm of his hand, a few inches away from his mouth, to prevent the sound traveling in any particular direction. A series of bulletins, giving the result of a political meeting, was dictated, and Mr. Turner burst in at intervals with applause and a bit of whistling. The phonograph in a room 100 feet away repeated accurately the whole series of bulletins, the applause, and the whistles.

"There's a chance here," said Mr. Turner, "for newspapers to eliminate the time loss between big convention halls and their offices. Suppose The Times should run a direct wire to Carnegie Hall. It could manufacture in the office over this wire phonographic rolls of the speeches just as they were made. Typesetters, working from these rolls, could pass the matter almost directly from the speaker to the printing presses."

In detective work, Mr. Turner said that the absence of the self-recording feature had proved an almost insurmountable difficulty. It had been necessary to make the instruments so that two detectives instead of one could listen to what was being repeated by the dictograph. In some court cases the dictograph's evidence had been thrown out, because a single detective's transcription of the record was thought to be hardly reliable enough for a conviction.

"But now the Judge can listen to the phonograph in the courtroom," said Mr. Turner, "and he can tell each man's natural voice. The dictograph will identify each man who has spoken in a room where it has been at work."

To test this Mr. Turner asked four reporters to converse among themselves at some distance from a dictograph. The reporters did so, their conversation at times falling to a whisper. In the phonographic reproduction the voices of each could be distinguished, but the whispered conversations became indistinct, if carried on more than five feet away from the dictograph.

These whispers, however, Mr. Turner said, would be clearly heard by a person listening to the dictograph, but would not make an impression on the disk, as the pressure on the needle would be too slight. In detective work, however, the dictograph would be equipped both with listening and recording instruments, so that the listeners could write out in shorthand the fainter portions of the conversation. More sensitive plates may yet be devised, capable of catching and recording these whispers.

LOW PRICES FOR FARMERS.

Staple Crops Brought Less on April 1 Than for Five Years.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Farmers were getting less for their staple crops on April 1 last than on that date at any other time during the last five years, as figured out by the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Agriculture.

On April 1 this year prices of staple crops averaged 25.9 per cent. lower than on the same date of 1912; 3.7 per cent. lower than in 1911; 18.2 per cent. lower than in 1910, and 13 per cent. lower than in 1909. This year the average of prices increased three-tenths of 1 per cent. during March, against an average increase of 2.1 per cent. during March of the past five years.

Corn on April 1 averaged 53.7 cents a bushel, against 71.1 last year, 49.7 the year before and 65.5 in 1910; wheat 79.1 cents, against 92.5, 83.8 and 104.5 the three preceding years; oats 48.5, against 92.3, 69.1 and 59.7 cents; rye 62.9, against 85.1, 73.4 and 76.6 cents; potatoes 50.3, against 117.1, 55.5 and 47.4; cotton 11.8, against 10.1, 13.9 and 14.1 cents per pound, and butter 27.6, against 26.1, 22.6 and 25.8 cents.

On hogs, beef, veal, sheep and lambs prices were better than on April 1 in 1912 and 1911, but in the cases of hogs, sheep and lambs they were not up to the averages for 1910. Hogs on April 1 averaged $7.62 per hundred pounds; beef cattle, $5.88; veal calves, $7.49; sheep, $4.97, and lambs, $6.56.

2,500 ROSES SHOWN IN GREAT PYRAMID

NEW RED BUTTERFLY ORCHID

It was Gladiolus Day at the big International Flower Show at the New Grand Central Palace yesterday, but the rose, queen of all flowers, held sway undisputed. In a conspicuous open space in the main hall was a pyramid of the queenliest of the queens—great clusters of cut roses arranged in a pyramid, 2,500 perfect blossoms on a 200-foot base.

The flowers have been growing for the past six months for the express purpose of making this particular beautiful pyramid, and a nice little blue slip pasted to the card, on which was the name of the grower, A. N. Pierson of Cromwell, Conn., showed that they had won the first prize, $250, from the American Rose Society. This was offered for the best rose exhibit covering 200 square feet of space, and it might have been much smaller and still stood first if the grower had so willed it. It was the most beautiful exhibit of roses the world had even had, so one of the English florists said. The varieties shown included the Killarney Queen, double white and double pink Killarneys, Milady, a deep crimson; Lady Hillingdon and Sunburst, both deep brown yellow roses, and Mrs. Taft, a dainty rose of delicate sea shell pink. At the base of the roses were Farleynese ferns. No second prize was given for the 200-foot exhibit, but Adolph Farenwald of Roslyn, Penn., took the third prize of $100.

There was also a brand new Butterfly orchid yesterday, one which came over from England as a bud in a trunk from Sir Jeremiah Colman's gardens in Surrey. W. W. Wells, a specialist, brought it on the Mauretania ten days ago. It is a brilliant red and the orchid growers have been waiting its appearance with impatience. Another new orchid entry was from another Londoner, a collection of Butterfly and Ladyslipper varieties. The flowers are so charming that many people feel what one woman expressed when she said:

"Dear me, I could just sit down and sing!"

That was not the way the little people from the New York Kindergarten Association felt. They wanted to get at the flowers as they do at a field of daisies. There were 150 children with Miss Elizabeth Frazier and a band of teachers. The little tots walked two by two through the show in the morning, but it was all the teachers could do to keep them from stampeding and filling their hungry arms with the lovely bright posies.

Other children, a little older, discovered something very interesting in the wonderful hunting scene—man, deer, and dogs, with a spread-winged eagle at the side—all made of growing English ivy. The eyes of all shone brilliantly, for they were made of tiny electric light bulbs and were lighted day and night.

The four-leaf clover, very attractive and interesting, but with all the romance gone out of it, is to be found at the show, grown to order—as many four-petaled leaves as you wish, to bring you good luck, too, but, alas! as a salad and a very good salad, too, or—worse still—it can be boiled as "greens." This is the work of Max Schling of Manhattan. The stalks of the new four-leaf clover are as big as lead pencils.

The prize for the best model landscape reproducing an artist's ideal of a country estate was awarded to Frank Josifke of Glen Cove, L. I., yesterday, and Miss Mary Helen Carlisle of London, whose oil and pastel pictures of English gardens have been so much admired in New York, received a gold medal. Among the visitors yesterday were:

PUPILS BESIEGE BOARD MEETING

AQUEDUCT POLICE CALLED

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., April 9.—The children in Elmsford, near here, have risen up against the Board of Education because it has seen fit to depose William J. Gleason as Principal of the school and to appoint C. M. Kline in his place. As soon as word of this got abroad last night the indignant youngsters marched to the home of William Bunselmeyer, Chairman of the board, who was having the board meeting behind his own doors. When the 100 boys and girls found those doors closed to them and guessed what was going on behind them they treated the board as it had never been treated before in all the dignified years of its existence.

The young protestants beat upon the panels of the closed doors and smashed several of Mr. Bunselmeyer's windows. They jeered and they hooted and then they marched lockstep to the school, broke into the building, and tolled the school bell until they had to stop from sheer exhaustion.

The agitated school board awoke this morning to find Elmsford's youngest set still in a state of rebellion. Of the 300 pupils in the school only 100 attended classes to-day. The rest went on strike, with all the frills they had picked up from the labor and suffrage demonstrations. After formally assembling in front of the school they announced that they would not open another book until Mr. Gleason was back in charge. Then they formed into companies and marched through the streets, shouting over and over again: "We want Gleason! We want Gleason!"

Elmsford was distracted. Where, asked Elmsford, is our truant officer? This inquiry led to the discovery that the truant officer, with a wisdom none was prepared to dispute, had taken a day off and gone to New York. The news of his absence led to the gayest demonstrations on the part of the young agitators and finally the Aqueduct police had to be called upon to disperse them.

Chairman Bunselmeyer is indignant this evening, and has already announced his intention to go before a Magistrate to-morrow and ask for warrants for the arrest of ten children as leaders in the strike.

MRS BABCOCK WEDS.

HACKENSACK, N. J., April 9.—With a Tenafly policeman in plain clothes to keep newspaper reporters and photographers from entering her estate on Knickerbocker Road, Tenafly, Mrs. Graham E. Babcock, the millionairess widow, was this evening wedded to William Downey, a young Canadian, said to be very fond of athletics but with no money to speak of. The ceremony was performed between 6 and 7 o'clock by the Rev. Father Angelus of St. Cecilia's Roman Catholic Church of Englewood. Some of the papers have referred to Mr. Downey as a nice young man, and said that his father keeps a dry goods store in Brockville, Ontario.

The people of Tenafly thought that the Rev. E. A. Montgomery of the Tenafly Episcopal Church would perform the wedding ceremony, because Mrs. Babcock since coming to Tenafly five years ago has attended that church and taken an active interest in the church work. The other belief that the ceremony would take place in St. Cecilia's Church was also unfounded, for the Rev. Father Angelus said a church wedding could not be with Mrs. Babcock a Protestant. The wedding was scheduled for either the rectory or her home, and at the last moment the home wedding was chosen. A few intimate friends and relatives made up the wedding party. The Babcock auto met the New York guests at the Englewood depot. A wedding supper was served shortly after 7 o'clock at the Babcock residence.

This estate she bought shortly after her husband's death. Most of her vast fortune was inherited from her father, the late Mr. Myers of St. Louis, a partner in the firm of Liggett & Myers, extensive tobacco merchants. Mrs. Babcock's estate adjoins that of her brother-in-law, Herbert Coppell, and it was her purpose to be near her sister.

Mr. Downey is about 30 and a modest young man. He met Mrs. Babcock while she was summering at the Thousand Islands, where he excelled as an oarsman. Mr. and Mrs. Downey will spend their honeymoon in Bermuda. It was stated that Mrs. Babcock did not renounce her religion before she became Mrs. Downey. Father Angelus seemed to have mysteriously disappeared from the rectory after the wedding.

ADDISON BROWN DIES EX-DISTRICT JUDGE

A VICTIM OF PARALYSIS

Addison Brown, Judge of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York from 1881 until he retired twenty years later, died yesterday morning at his home, 45 West Eighty-ninth Street, in his eighty-fourth year. He had been ill for more than a year and succumbed to paralysis.

Decisions handed down by him during his long career on the bench remain to-day as precedents in bankruptcy and extradition proceedings. His refusal to extradite Charles A. Dana from New York to Washington in 1895 caused a sensation at the time and continues to be quoted. He held that if the removal of any person accused of a crime against the United States, is sought, it must first be shown that an offense against the Government has been committed, and also the proceedings before the Commissioner or Judge must be conducted according to the usual mode of procedure provided by the State in which the accused is found. Dana was charged with libeling the Government.

Judge Brown was a classmate in Harvard, '52, of Joseph H. Choate, William G. Choate and Judge Adams. Judge Brown succeeded William G. Choate on the bench, and Judge Adams succeeded Judge Brown. President Garfield was first to appoint Judge Brown to the bench on June 2, 1881, during a recess of the Senate, and on Oct. 14 of the same year President Arthur again appointed him. Failing health prompted his retirement.

He was born in West Newbury, Mass., Feb. 21, 1830, of Pilgrim stock. His parents, Addison and Catherine Griffin Brown, were descendants of the early settlers of Massachusetts. the Rev. John Rogers, President of Harvard College in 1682, was a relative on his mother's side, as was Thomas Dudley, second Governor of Massachusetts. His preparation for college began under Benjamin Greenleaf, the mathematician, in Bradford, Mass., whither his parents had moved. He entered Amherst College in 1848. He passed his freshman year there, then enrolling as a sophomore at Harvard in 1849. Graduation Day in 1852 found him second in his class, Judge W. G. Choate being first and Joseph H. Choate second. He entered the Law School of Harvard in 1853, gained his LL.B. in 1854, and was honored with LL.D. by Harvard in 1902. He was admitted to the bar in this city in 1855 and began practice on his own account with Nelson Smith.

His diversions were the study of botany and astronomy, and in each field he gained considerable repute. He was one of the founders of the New York Botanical Garden and drew its charter in 1891. He collaborated with Dr. N. L. Britton in 1896-98 in the publication of "Illustrated Flora of the United States and Canada," in three volumes, with nearly 4,000 illustrations. He published his observations on the corona in the solar eclipse of 1878 under the patronage of the Smithsonian Institution.

Judge Brown married Mary C. Barrett, who died in 1887. In 1893 he married Helen Carpenter Gaskin. He is survived by his widow and four children. He was a member of the Century and Metropolitan Clubs, the New York Geographical and Historical Societies, the Sons of the American Revolution, and from 1890 until 1902 was President of the Torrey Botanical Club.

P. F. McGOWAN BURIED.

Friends Fill St. Ann's Church—School Board Acts.

The funeral of Patrick F. McGowan, President of the Board of Aldermen under Mayor McClellan, and since 1904 a member of the Board of Education, took place at St. Ann's Roman Catholic Church, 112 East Twelfth Street, yesterday morning. About 1,500 of his friends and members of the Royal Arcanum, Legion of Honor, Loyal Association, Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, Pensacola Club, Manhattan Club, Catholic Club, and the American-Irish Historical Society, of which Mr. McGowan was President, filled the church.

Solemn high mass was celebrated by Father Thomas F. Myhad, rector of St. Ann's, assisted by Father Francis Sullivan, chaplain of the Police Department, and the Rev. Thomas A. Berry, also of St. Ann's. There was a soprano solo, "Sweet Spirit Hear My Prayer," and Father Myhad made a short address. He spoke of Mr. McGowan as a loyal churchman, who scarcely a week before had knelt in the church, and of his loyalty to God, his country, and his friends.

Only one simple floral piece of Easter lilies was upon the bier as it was carried into the church. Elaborate floral pieces which had been sent to the house were piled high in one of the carriages when the funeral procession started with the body to the church at 10 A. M. Among these were two pieces from the Washington Irving High School, which claimed Mr. McGowan as "Father of the School." He had much to do in obtaining for it the new building on Irving Place which it is now occupying. Heading the procession were representatives of the different organizations to which Mr. McGowan belonged.

The pallbearers were C. Louis Duval, Dr. Charles H. Chatwood, the family physician; Thomas W. Churchill, Franklin Simon, P. J. Murphy, M. A. McCormick, James A. Dillon, P. J. Foster, Moses Hermann, Louis Stern, John Whalen, Patrick Jones, H. L. Joyce, Joseph McLaughlin, John W. Gorman, and William Blake.

Among those attending the services were Police Commissioner Waldo, Deputy Commissioners McKay and Dillon, Fire Commissioner Johnson, Commissioner Thompson of the Water Supply Department, Aldermen Walsh and Gaynor, Jacob A. Cantor, Thomas F. McAvoy, Patrick R. McCue, Dr. Thomas Dwyer, District Superintendent of Schools in the Bronx; Park Commissioner Thomas F. Higgins of the Bronx, Judge G F. Roesch, Joseph Haag, Secretary of the Board of Estimate; William O'Connor, Secretary of the Board of Aldermen; Herman Ridder, and Edward E. McCall. Interment was at Calvary Cemetery.

At the meeting of the Board of Education yesterday Secretary Palmer formally announced the death of Commissioner McGowan. Vice President John Greene moved that a special committee of five be appointed to draw up appropriate resolutions, and that a special meeting of the board be held April 23 to act upon those resolutions.

President Churchill named this committee: Chairman—Vice President John Greene; Abraham Stern, Chairman of the Committee on Elementary Schools; John R. Thompson, Arthur S. Somers, Chairman of the Committee on High Schools, and Frank E. Wilsey, Chairman of the Committee on Buildings.

"Iolanthe" to be Revived.

The revival of "The Beggar Student," now playing at the Casino Theatre with the Gilbert and Sullivan Opera Company, will be brought to a close with the performance of Saturday night, April 19. The plans for the company announced yesterday by the Shuberts and William A. Brady include a production of "Iolanthe," which will mark a return to Gilbert and Sullivan's works. According to present plans, the week following the end of "The Beggar Student" will be devoted to a revival of "The Mikado." The following week will see a revival of two or three of the other Gilbert and Sullivan operas, and "Iolanthe" will open on May 5. "The Beggar Student" is slated to remain in the permanent repertoire of the company. "Iolanthe," which has not yet been given by this company, was first produced simultaneously in London at the Savoy and in New York at the Standard on Saturday evening, Nov. 25, 1882. FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices Decline on New Security Issues—Attorney General Opposes Union Pacific Plan.

Pressure of new securities on the old was the outstanding feature of the security markets yesterday. This touches, of course, on an influence which is of long standing and which has been a matter of active discussion for some time past, but the events of yesterday served to make this factor not only one of general application, but likewise the one which found specific reflection in the price movements in several individual issues. Two announcements of new security issues served to centre attention upon the part which new financing is playing and is likely to play as a factor in the stock and bond market. The Pennsylvania Railroad made known its purpose to place something over $45,000,000 of its stock at par with its shareholders, and announcement was made of a sale of $30,000,000 general mortgage bonds by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul. These bonds are to carry 4½ per cent. interest, compared with the 3½ per cent. and 4 per cent. interest which is being paid on previous issues made under this same mortgage. The change in rate in itself emphasized present day requirements by investors for higher rates of interest, but this was brought home to the market even more plainly by the fact that these 4½ per cent. bonds were being underwritten practically at the price at which the 4 per cent. bonds were selling a few days ago. The natural result has been seen in the decline which has taken place since Monday in the outstanding general mortgage bonds of the St. Paul road and in the declines which appeared yesterday in a number of other issues of similar class which necessarily felt the competition of the higher rate being paid on this new issue of St. Paul bonds. The same reason appears for a decline of 3½ points which occurred yesterday in Pennsylvania.

Much more financing remains to be done, and it was natural that estimates of the interest rate which other borrowers would have to pay were being based on the fact that the St. Paul was putting out bonds on terms which would permit their being offered for public subscription on a full 4½ per cent. basis. As the matter was viewed yesterday, it was a question of meeting the market, and, notwithstanding the effect which this bond issue had upon the position of the bond market as a whole, the consensus of opinion was that the St. Paul was acting wisely in putting out a long term issue at a rate at which the market would take it rather than resort to temporary financing. That would still leave open the question of the rate which the road would ultimately have to pay for the money it is borrowing. This competition of new securities with those already outstanding is by no means confined to this market. The same factor has been a potent one abroad and is regarded in some quarters as the most important single factor in the market for securities. Europe has a great deal of financing ahead of it, including the financing which will follow the war which was expected ere now to be settled by a treaty of peace. It is plain therefore that the question of new financing will for a considerable time to come be a factor in the general security market situation.

Announcement from Washington that the Attorney General had not seen his way clear to approve the outline of the Union Pacific's plan, which had been discussed with him by representatives of the road, was another incident of the day which gave impetus to the reaction which followed opening advance which in part reflected more hopeful advices from abroad. The advices which reached the financial district from Washington indicated that the Attorney General believes that it is the province of the court rather than of the Department of Justice to shape plans for complying with anti-trust decrees rendered by the Supreme Court. This does not do away with the probability of Mr. McReynolds objecting to the Union Pacific's suggestions when these are presented to the Circuit Court, which will be done as soon as the members of that court come together. It seems, though, to throw the matter more completely into the hands of the court than was done under the policy in the matter of trust dissolutions which was pursued by Mr. McReynolds's predecessor.

Call money rates were still easier yesterday, but the continued borrowing here by banks in the interior made it plain that the present position of call money does not clearly reflect the conditions which prevail in the money market as a whole. Upon the other hand, the borrowing by the interior indicates that trade demands for money continue very large. The country's iron production for March was reported yesterday, but the curtailment in output seemed so clearly traceable to the interruption due to the floods that no inference of receding activity in the steel trade was to be drawn. The fortnightly idle car statement issued yesterday as of April 1 showed an increase of about 20,000 in the number of idle cars. In this showing, too, the floods played a part, though the further increase in the surplusage of freight cars was in keeping with a movement which had been reflected in the two previous fortnightly statements. Announcement of an increase from 4 per cent. to 6 per cent. a year in the Woolworth Company dividend was a helpful influence in the market for a group of stocks which have suffered somewhat heavily of late through liquidation carried on in a narrow market. The stock responded to this news by an advance of 2 points.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Farson, Son & Co. have been awarded $75,000 Ossining, N. Y., municipal building 4½ per cent. bonds.

C. B. Ferry, Assistant Secretary of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, has been made a Vice President.

The Stock Exchange has stricken from the list Mexican Central Railway Company Limited 5 per cent. equipment and collateral bonds.

D. M. Goodrich has been elected a Director of the B. F. Goodrich Company, succeeding W. B. Miller.

The Stock Exchange has listed $8,150,000 additional Detroit Edison Company capital stock, $1,593,000 State of New York 4 per cent. bonds, issued for the construction of Barge Canal terminals, and $9,667,000 Atlantic Coast Line unified mortgage 4 per cent. bonds.

On May 1 the offices of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas will be removed from 49 Wall Street to 71 Broadway.

The Ann Arbor Railroad has been granted authority by the Railroad Commission of Michigan to issue $750,000 6 per cent. notes, to run not more than two years.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Facing the Unavoidable.

The St. Paul, in selling gilt-edged 4½ per cent. bonds at a price to net the company about 96, is the first corporation in recent years to break through the nominal basis on which bonds are offered in order to find actual distribution for a large block of securities. For the past five years railway and industrial heads have hesitated to admit that the changed conditions which prevailed in the investment market had come to stay. Rather than place an issue of first mortgage or collateral bonds at a price which would have insured their immediate sale most companies have resorted to short-term notes, or convertible issues. In the opinion of conservative bankers there has been altogether too much of this hand-to-mouth financing through short-term issues and equipment trusts for the good of the country. As a result of their policy of procrastination some companies have been paying a higher price each year for an extension of their short term notes. The New Haven is a conspicuous example of the cost of such financing.

Effect on Other Issues.

The St. Paul Directors were told that there was no market for another issue of 4 per cent. bonds near par, and that if they wanted to raise money it would have to be through a 4½ per cent. issue. They sounded the market and decided to make sure of a favorable reception for the new issue by selling 4½s at a price that would allow their resale to investors on a basis to yield slightly better than 4½ per cent. Most bonds have been quoted lately at a figure from one to three points above the level at which any considerable block could be sold, and the announcement by the bankers of the new issue served in many cases to knock off the false surface and reveal the actual level which standard issues have found. The announcement fell particularly hard on the leading issues of railroad 4s, nearly all of which suffered an immediate decline. The St. Paul's own general mortgage 4s were written down on Tuesday, evidently in anticipation of the new offering. The Chicago Northwestern general 4s, the Delaware & Hudson refunding 4s, Erie consolidated 4s, Louisville & Nashville unified 4s and the Northern Pacific 4s all made new low records for the year yesterday.

Income Tax and Bonds.

As it stands at present, the proposed new Income Tax law would throw the payment of the new tax on many corporations which have bond issues outstanding, under the terms of the indentures covering these issues. It was held by bankers that this was not the intent of the framers of the measure, and that before it became a law the bill would be corrected in this particular.

Sugar Men Far Apart.

In the sugar trade refiners of imported raw material and refiners of domestic supplies from the beet fields of the West stand far apart in their ideas of a tariff duty, not only as to theoretical conditions, but also as to matters of immediate moment. On the point of the amount of protection given producers of sugar beets by the existing tariff, some refiners of cane sugar have said that the American farmer did not need the help of any import tax because beets were bringing a higher price in Europe than here. President Duval of the American Beet Sugar Company presented figures yesterday which went to show that such was not the case. The statistics he had prepared made the prevailing average price in Germany, France, and Austria in the past few years not much more than $4 a ton, while the refiners of Colorado and California had been paying in the same time about $6 a ton.

Bid and Asked Prices.

The closing bid and asked prices of stocks are not always the criterion of trading sentiment at the end of the day, as was made evident by the quotation which appeared yesterday for International Agricultural Corporation common. The stock was offered at 30 and the recorded bid was 2. A specialist in the International Agricultural issues said when the wide difference was called to his attention that it was the only bid that appeared, and for this reason it had to be used. While the stock has been weak in recent transactions, the exceptionally small value placed upon it by the bidder appeared to have been presented more in the spirit of levity than for the purpose of buying a number of the shares, large or small. The fact that so trifling a bid should be allowed to stand illustrated the extremely narrow market which exists for this stock.

Poor Figuring in Rights.

Trading in Pennsylvania rights on the Curb yesterday stirred numerous participants to so feverish a state of excitement that they committed errors in simple arithmetic, and, in consequence, lost some money. Through incorrect figuring of the value of the privilege to subscribe to the forthcoming issue of stock several thousand were sold at fractional prices extending upward from ⅜ to ¾ before it was noised around that these figures by no means represented the value of the rights at the prevailing quotations for Pennsylvania. A rush to cover brought a livelier half-hour than the Curb had experienced in many a day. The price quickly advanced to 1¼, and when the rights were transferred to the Stock Exchange trading proceeded on a basis of 1 bid 1⅛ asked to the end of the day. It was estimated that between 50,000 and 65,000 privileges changed hands on the Curb, and there was a steady demand for them on the larger Exchange afterward. It has been seldom that rights to subscribe to a new stock issue were taken away from the open-air market so quickly as they were yesterday. Apparently the good business done on the Curb made an especial appeal to the big board.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, April 10.—The Times in its City article to-day will say:

"The supply of money for short periods continued large, and for night balances difficult to place at the close. The discount rate was steadier than on Tuesday, a better supply of bills being offered. The Bank received over £1,000,000 ($5,000,000) gold during the week ended last night.

"As the international outlook was regarded with a little more confidence, there was a general revival of hope on the Stock Exchange that a way will be found out of the present difficulties. Prices opened firm all around the house. Business in the speculative markets was a little more active, while investment brokers reported a continuance of the demand for the better class of stocks. Money was plentiful and cheaper for carry-over purposes, money brokers finding difficulty in employing their balances. In most instances prices did not close at quite the highest points reached, but the general tone of the markets was good."

PARIS, April 9.—Prices were firm on the Bourse to-day.

BERLIN, April 9.—Prices were firm and higher on the Boerse to-day.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Prices weakened on the Consolidated Stock Exchange in the afternoon, with Pennsylvania and Union Pacific leading the downward movement, both of which touched lower prices than they sold at on the New York Stock Exchange. Early in the day there had been general strength. Prices on the 9:30 o'clock opening call had reflected advances compared with Tuesday's closing quotations ranging from ⅛ to ⅝ of a point.

BREAK IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Sells Off 3½ Points on New Issue of $45,000,000.

Directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company decided yesterday to raise $45,000,000 by the sale of stock. A new issue had been talked of in financial circles, but the announcement precipitated a break in the company's shares, which from the opening price of 118⅞ quickly sold down 3½ points to 115⅜, the lowest price touched in five years.

The increase in the capital stock is for the purpose of providing for substantial additions, betterments, and improvements and to meet maturing obligations. It amounts to 10 per cent. of the outstanding stock, and the company's shareholders will be allowed to subscribe for the new stock at par in that proportion of their holdings. At the closing price yesterday the "rights" were worth about $1.50 on each $100 par value of stock. Pennsylvania shares are $50 par.

The privilege of subscribing to the new stock at par expires on May 31. Payments may be made in full or in three installments, one of 30 per cent., payable May 31; the second of like amount, payable on Aug. 30, and the third of 40 per cent., payable on Nov. 29.

There will be no underwriting syndicate for the new issue, the Directors feeling confident that all of the shares will be subscribed for.

The proceeds of the new stock issue will provide for the $10,000,000 3½ per cent. bonds which matured Nov. 1, 1912; the $9,735,000 collateral trust 4½ per cent. bonds due Jan. 1, and for maturing trust obligations. The new issue will bring the company's outstanding capital to approximately $499,000,000.

RATIFIES N. Y. CENTRAL PLAN

ALBANY, April 9.—The up-State Public Service Commission has approved the application for consolidation of the New York Central, the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg and five other railroad companies, which have been integral parts of the New York Central system. Under the consolidation all the lines will be known as the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad. In announcing the approval the commission said:

"It does not appear that making the consolidation effective will constitute any invasion of any legal right possessed by the minority stockholders, but that these stockholders may not only absolutely protect their investments, but increase the rate of return above that provided in the leases."

The capital stock of the new corporation is $225,581,100, of the par value of $100. The combined stocks of the consolidated companies amount to $236,153,700. The decrease results from the necessary cancellation of the stocks now owned by two of the companies, which are parts of the outstanding stock issues of other companies which are parties to the consolidation.

ST. PAUL 4½S LOW.

New Bond Issue Will Be Offered to the Public Below Par.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company announced yesterday that it had sold $30,000,000 of its general mortgage bonds, due in 1980, to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the National City Bank. The announcement created an unusual stir in the financial district, for it marked a striking change in the attitude of big corporations toward their financing problems.

The St. Paul management realized the slight possibility of an early fall in money rates, and decided to offer the new issue on a basis to make it attractive to investors despite the extreme dullness in the bond market. Accordingly, the interest rate, which was 4 per cent. on the last offering of general mortgage bonds, and 3½ per cent. on an earlier issue, was raised to 4½ per cent. on the latest offerings, and the bonds will be offered to the public slightly below par. The company is to receive net 96 for the bonds. The previous issues, with the lower interest rates, were sold at par.

SPEAKS FOR CONTROL OF CREDIT CURRENCY

FAVORS REGIONAL RESERVE

With Power to Issue and Redeem a Uniform Currency in Place of Bank Notes.

The need of a central control over the creation of deposit credit currency by the banks was emphasized by Edmund D. Fisher, Deputy Controller of the city, in an address last night at the Finance Forum of the West Side Y. M. C. A.

"The banks," he said, "are in a quasi-public position, having the function of manufacturing deposit credit currency, and we should safeguard its manufacture by inspection, regulation, and control. There can be no effective control without central control. The present-day problem is, how can such control be best developed? This has in the past been generally regarded as a question of some political difficulty. It has been felt that some sort of 'money trust' would inevitably dominate any mechanism that might be developed. The fact has been entirely overlooked that such a power, if it exists, must have been in control for many years. There is no evidence in our financial history of any such power that has been successful either in promoting a continuity of prosperity or in preventing destructive panics, which would undoubtedly be harmful to itself.

"Politics should be forgotten in coming legislation. Banking reform is now admittedly a non-political question, and any false notes of the past coming from the platforms of any political party should not be taken seriously. Platform plank utterances cannot be presumed to be authority for prejudging the results of patient investigation and analysis, with the final establishment of correct principles."

Mr. Fisher outlined a plan submitted to the Glass Committee, providing for regional reserve banks with branches, their capital and deposits to be drawn from the banks of their respective districts, with power to issue and redeem a uniform currency in place of the present banknotes; their operations to be subject to a National board composed of bankers, merchants, and Government officials.

"We give the Government power," he said, "to coin the gold dollar 900 fine, and the entire country would receive a financial shock if it were found that the gold was being coined 500 fine. Yet we vest the banks of the country with power to manufacture deposit currency in exchange for this gold, without Governmental ability to provide even approximately whether it shall be 100 per cent. fine or 100 per cent. rotten. We require a large degree of 'insight' as well as 'oversight.' The regional banks, through the principle of self-examination for all contributing banks, will give the insight, and the central board will consolidate the necessary facts for purposes of oversight and control. Panics are the means by which we now occasionally attempt, without realizing it, to make our currency 'fine.'

"A chain is as strong as its weakest link, but the weakest link in a unified banking system can transmit its strain to the strongest, and with the wide, helpful guidance and co-operative control which new legislation will develop much will have been done to promote the best interests of all the people."

WOOLWORTH STOCK UP.

Sells at 96¼ on Declaration of a 6 Per Cent. Basis.

The common stock of the F. W. Woolworth Company was placed on a 6 per cent. annual basis yesterday by the declaration of a quarterly payment of 1½ per cent. The $50,000,000 stock outstanding received 1 per cent. in the initial distribution six months ago, and three months ago a payment of 1¼ per cent. was made. The dividend was payable on June 1.

Announcement of the increase was reflected in an advance of the stock in yesterday's market from a low price of 93 to 96¼ as the high figure, with a closing quotation of 94. The company has reported gross sales in March amounting to $5,247,466, an increase of $922,880 over the corresponding month of last year. An advance of $2,111,390 for the first quarter of 1913 was reported over the first three months of 1912.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

Wheat prices developed a firmer feeling, closing at a net gain of ½c. to ⅝c. Corn advanced sharply, with final prices ⅞c. to ⅛c. net higher. Cotton closed steady and from 8 to 11 points net higher.

WHEAT.

Prices in the wheat market were slightly lower around the opening owing to a decline abroad, where operators took a bearish view of the American Government report. Offerings were small, however, and during the day a firmer feeling developed and prices advanced about a cent a bushel, closing a little off from the top, but at a net gain of ½ to ⅝c. The fact that prices again acted exactly contrary to the nature of the crop advices indicated a continuation of the underlying bullish sentiment which has been apparent in the market for the past week. Private reports from many sections of the West were again highly satisfactory, but these had little or no influence on sentiment and traders were inclined to take the stand that there was little probability of anything like present conditions continuing until harvest. Operators were inclined to be very cautious about taking risks on the selling side and market operations appeared to be based on the belief that prices here are about on an export basis and that Europe will continue to require heavy importations of foreign wheat. Broomhall's international review said that everything seems to point to a fulfillment of predictions that the demand will be sufficiently large to absorb all arrivals and exporters' surpluses. Cash markets were steady, but the flour trade in the Northwest was said to be dull, while sales showed a further shrinkage. The Price Current said that aside from the flooded sections reports indicate very little abandoned acreage and that the month started in with generally good outlook and growth over the country. Export sales were reported of five loads with rumors of fifteen loads at Buffalo, opening of navigation. In the local market No. 2 red Winter wheat was quoted at $1.12½, elevator, and $1.14, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern Duluth $1.03¾, free on board, afloat.

CORN

The unsettled weather, with heavy rains over the West caused further apprehension of delayed planting as well as of a continued light movement, and prices advanced sharply on active covering, closing at a net advance of ⅞@1⅛c. Interior cash markets were firm, and there appeared to be little pressure from the country. In the local market, export corn was quoted at 60¾c, free on board afloat.

OATS.

The oats market was fairly active and firmer in sympathy with corn, and influenced by the rains, which, it was thought, would further delay seeding. Country houses appeared to be buying in the West, and there was little pressure to sell. The local cash market was steady. Standard white quoted at 40c; No. 3, 39½c; No. 4, 38½@39c; natural white, 38@40c; white clipped, 38½@41c, all track.

COTTON.

The cotton market was somewhat more active yesterday, and prices ruled higher, owing to unfavorable weather in the belt, apprehensions of further floods in the Mississippi Valley, covering of shorts, and some fresh buying for long account. The close was steady and from 8 to 11 points net higher. Business was more active and general than for some time past during the early trading, and Wall Street buying of new crop months was a prominent feature. Brokers supposed to be operating for a large Wall Street trader were credited with buying between 20,000 and 25,000 bales of October. Some thought these purchases were for the purpose of hedging a short interest in the old crop months, while others thought it represented covering of recently sold contracts, or a turn to the long side. In any case, it was a decided factor on the early advance, and after the demand had been satisfied trading became less active. Reactions of 4 or 5 points occurred during the early afternoon, but the market firmed up again in the late trading on reports that over nine inches of rain had fallen at Little Rock, and closing prices were within a point or two of the best.

The market opened firm at an advance of 6 to 9 points, and during the middle of the morning sold about 9 to 13 points net higher on the demand mentioned above, foreign buying, covering, and a moderate interest on the part of commission houses. Realizing was encountered on the advance to 12.17 for July, or about 20 points below the low level on Monday, and subsequent fluctuations were somewhat irregular.

Latest advices from Memphis stated that the river was above the forty-six-foot mark and still rising. The rains reported in the Mississippi Valley tended to increase apprehensions of further breaks in the levees, and while clearing weather was reported in the Western belt, it was accompanied by unseasonably low temperatures. Reports from Texas said that the rains there had been beneficial, and that the new crop outlook was favorable. Advices from Southern Georgia were also favorable, but the unsettled weather over the greater part of the belt evidently created apprehensions of a late if not an unfavorable new crop start. Tariff uncertainties were little discussed, attention centring on the weather. Southern spot markets were generally unchanged.

PROVISIONS.

The market for hog products developed a firmer tone, with quite active buying on the part of commission houses and shorts prompted by firmness in the hog situation and in sympathy with the advance in corn. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 20,000; estimated for Thursday, 19,000; Kansas City received 11,000 and Omaha 9,800.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The cottonseed oil market developed further strength, with renewed buying, owing to the firmness in lard and continued absence of pressure against crude. The firmness in the spot situation also had a sustaining influence on sentiment, and while there was considerable profit taking on the advance, prices late in the day were at about the top, closing 3 to 10 points net higher. The consuming trade appears to be fairly active, and there was an absence of pressure in the near positions. The range of contract prices in the local market was as follows:

Final prices were irregular and later prices were easy until near the close, when there was a sharp upturn, the final market showing a net advance of 23 to 27 points. Sales totaled 212,750 bags. Havre closed at a net loss of ¾ to 1¼ francs, while Hamburg was ½ to 1 pfennig lower. Rio was 125 reis lower and Santos inactive and nominal. Cost and freight offers from Brazil were irregular; Rio 7s 10.70, and while Santos was generally above a working basis, there was a sale reported of Santos 7s at 11.30.

COMMERCIAL CARS SHOW BIG INCREASE

Rate of Output Grows 200 Per Cent. Annually—Value of 1913 Product Put at $98,000,000.

Rapid growth of the commercial vehicle industry is indicated by reports of production received from the manufacturers during February and March by the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers. The results of this census of the industry are contained in detail in a report just issued to the trade, in which they are compared with the results of a previous census to show increases in output and fluctuations in prices from year to year.

The total output of commercial vehicles of all classes by 170 companies for 1912 was 21,939, as compared with a total output by 85 companies for 1911 of 10,655, and 10,374 by the same 85 companies for all preceding years combined up to the end of 1910. It is believed these companies represented about 75 per cent. of the total production of the country, while the 170 companies reporting for 1912 and 1913 probably represent about 90 per cent. of the total output. The estimated production for 1913 is 51,586 vehicles. A tabulation of the output shows a rate of growth of about 200 per cent. annually, as follows:

	26,287

The total value of the vehicles reported in 1912 was $42,942,828, and that of the estimated production this year will be $98,288,872. These figures compare with an aggregate value for 1911 of $22,292,321, and of $20,485,231 for all vehicles manufactured prior to the end of 1910. With the exception of about a dozen companies all those that failed to send in reports were either new organizations, producing few or no vehicles last year, or older companies whose individual output probably did not reach fifty vehicles in any case, the association believes. As the census was a secret one in which the names of the makers were not attached to the reports, it is also believed that the production estimate is a conservative one.

The output and valuation of different classes of comercial vehicles reported by 170 companies in February and March, 1913, were as follows:

	No. Cars.	Aggregate Value.	No. Cars.	Aggregate Value.

G. N. BREAKS RECORDS.

Fiscal Year's Gross Earnings Will Be $10,000,000 More Than in 1912.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, April 9.—A glance at the Great Northern report of earnings for February is sufficient to show that the road will break its previous records for gross earnings this fiscal year, ending June 30. According to a Great Northern official, the gross earnings of the road for the twelve months ending June 30 next will exceed the earnings during the same months of the preceding fiscal year by approximately $10,000,000. In the eight months starting July 1, 1912, and ending Feb. 28, 1913, the gross revenue was listed at a trifle over $8,500,000 better than last year, leaving the remaining $1,500,000 of gain to be made up in the last four months. This will require an average monthly increase of $375,000. That the last four months will average this increase is certain, if the gains for February may be taken as an indicator.

The gross gains for February are shown to have been more than $500,000. This gross increase is remarkable when one considers that all losses incurred through the Winter are practically reported in this month. One of the features of the Great Northern's growth has been the traffic development of its branch lines and feeders. The company has been most successful in making two, and even four and five, tons of traffic grow where one grew before.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday overruled a protest by G. Kleine, who imported lacquered or lithographically printed boxes. The Collector assessed the boxes 4 cents a pound and 35 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 195, as unusual coverings. The importer alleged that they were usual coverings subject to no other duty than that imposed on ordinary containers under the provisions of subsection 18 of section 28 of the present law.

In denying a contention by the Stephen L. Bartlett Company of Boston the board held that samples of cocoa imported for free distribution were properly assessed by the Collector under the act of 1909 as cocoa. The importers asked free entry for samples of no commercial value.

Arbuckle Brothers filed a protest complaining that the Surveyor's office at New York returned excessive weights of sugar on which duty was assessed. As no representative of the firm appeared the board sustained the Collector.

Washington Oil Earns 33.8 Per Cent

The Washington Oil Company, one of the former subsidiaries of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, has informed stockholders, in a letter sent out by President Buchanan, that net earnings in the year ended on Dec. 31, 1912, amounted to $33,835, an amount equivalent to 33.8 per cent. on the capital stock. Of the aggregate income of the company above expenses $29,819 was supplied by sales of oil and the remainder was a share in the profits of the Taylorstown Natural Gas Company.

BIG PATENT RULING PENDING

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Probably the most important patent case before the Supreme Court in a decade was argued to-day in the contest over the right of patent owners to fix the price at which retailers might sell patented articles. The lower Federal Courts are divided on the point.

The case came from the District of Columbia in the form of a question from the local Judges and involved the right of a cut-rate druggist to sell a patent medicine at a figure below the established price. Attorneys representing the interests of patented watches, fountain pens, razors and other articles have come into court to assist in the battle. They argue that the public is not benefited by spasmodic price cutting, and that it is only done for advertising purposes.

IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

The Tariff on Rugs.

Manufacturers of Axminster rugs do not fear the pending change in tariff, and expect advanced prices to rule this Fall. Mills are reported sold up for Spring, and certain manufacturers have added to their plants. Future orders are not accepted, however, at present prices. Producers of Wilton rugs do not share this secure feeling, and one dealer said that should the proposed schedule go into effect it would be long before the trade could adjust itself. It is generally thought that there will be radical changes made before the bill becomes a law. Linoleum dealers expect an early opening of their Fall season, and say that business will not be hampered by pending tariff changes. Considerable replacement business has already been received from the flooded districts of Ohio.

Zahn Automat Arouses Interest.

This announcement is being sent to the embroidery trade by the Robert Reiner Importing Company of Weehawken Heights, N. J.

> We take pleasure in announcing the completion, at our exhibition rooms of the Zahn automatic, 1913 model, ten-yard embroidery machines, and extend you an invitation to see these machines in operation. Demonstrations in detail will be given every day from 8 A. M. to 6 P. M., and on Sundays by special appointment.

Because of the controversy that has been carried on in this field for some time, relative to alleged violations of the patent rights of the Groebli automat, the first attachment to be used in this country, the announcement has aroused no little interest in local embroidery circles.

Glad Cole Bill Was Passed.

Approval was expressed by commission merchants of this city yesterday over the passing of the Cole bill relating to the sale of farm products on commission, by the Assembly on Tuesday. This bill, which was drawn as a substitute for the Roosevelt measure that brought strong protest from the trade, provides for the licensing of commission merchants and requires of them a $3,000 fidelity bond for the protection of their clients.

Surprise was expressed that, notwithstanding the bill's recommendation by the Fruit and Produce Association and the local branch of the National League of Commission Merchants, the only dissenting votes were cast by Assemblymen from New York districts.

Printcloths Brighter in Spots.

Here and there the local printcloth market took on a brighter aspect yesterday. Some good lots of 38 1-2-inch, 64-60s, were disposed of at 5 cents, and a few spot lots of 39-inch, 80 squares, moved at 7 1-8. Spot sales of 39-inch, 68-72s, were also put through at 5 1-2 cents. A fair call for drills was in evidence. The day's quotations follow:

Brown sheetings, Southern standard, 8@8¼c; brown sheetings, 4-yard, 56-60s, 6¼c; denims, 9-ounce, 14@17c; tickings, 8-ounce, 13¾c; standard prints, 5½c, and standard staple ginghams, 6¾c.

Fall Notions Trade Active.

Wholesalers of fancy goods and notions are preparing for Fall and holiday selling. Importers are receiving shipments from abroad almost daily. Buyers are in the market earlier than usual for selections, and are taking goods readily. Fancy lavaliers, rhinestone, steel and fancy enamel shoe buckles and hair ornaments are in good request. The present demand for Bulgarian dress trimmings is not expected to last. White and colored crocheted buttons, fancy gauze and Parisian ivory fans and beaded bags are most called for in summer orders. Satisfaction is expressed over the proposed tariff revision. One dealer said yesterday that nearly all the obnoxious features of the previous tariff had been eliminated.

Cotton Export Business Light.

Business was very quiet in the export end of the local cotton goods market in the last week. The Far Eastern buyers contributed little in the way of new business, and traders in the countries nearer by did not outdo them in any sense. The dullness was attributed to high prices. Exports of domestics and cotton duck from New York this year continue to fall behind those of 1912 in quantity. In value, however, the present year's shipments show a big gain. In the week ended April 5, 8,204 packages of these goods, valued at $464,251, were sent abroad.

Ad Valorem Duties Not Wanted.

The principal complaint of the silk trade against the new tariff schedule concerns the putting of these duties entirely on an ad valorem basis. This, it is contended, will not only encourage undervaluation on the part of unscrupulous importers, but will be the source of loss to the import end of the trade through the inability of the Government agents to ascertain correctly the foreign value of the goods and to appraise them right here. Business, both Spring and Fall, keeps up well, though immediate trade is beginning to feel badly the scarcity of merchandise. Ribbons are moving well, and prices are going up.

European Embroidery Makers Wary

According to a prominent local embroidery man who recently returned from an extended trip to Europe, manufacturers of this merchandise on the other side are growing wary about sending samples of novelties to this market because of the lack of protection afforded them by the present patent and copyright laws of this country. Because of this lack of protection, he says many of the European manufacturers will not exhibit at the coming world's fair in San Francisco. They are afraid that their best ideas will be pirated.

Raisins Will Be Higher.

It is reported that the California Raisin Association has obtained control of the carryover from 1912, and that 85 per cent. of the 1913 crop is under contract. If this is true there should be a marked gain in value before long. At no time, probably, have prices of raisins been lower than now. Wholesalers have not lost confidence, however, and it seems for this reason that they are not making particular efforts to sell. The situation would probably not be worse with stocks controlled by packing interests on the Coast.

PIG IRON UNSTEADY.

> With the iron trade still trying to measure the market effects of the Central Western flood, the proposed cuts in the iron and steel tariff suddenly come up for appraisal. Most of the latter have been in view for months, and they come at a time when both American and European mills are full of work. They are thought of, therefore, not as factors in the present market, but as likely to be reckoned with some months hence. The putting of rails on the free list is much talked about outside the trade. With specifications as exacting as they are to-day, when as many as ten railroad Inspectors are at work in a single mill at one time to insure the highest quality, the dangers of invasion by foreign rails are greatly minimized.
> Generally specifications in March exceeded shipments of mill products, and the net result of the floods has been to give strength to the market. Besides structural steel the floods have brought a demand for spikes, nails, corrugated sheets, and all track supplies. Preference is given by the mills to railroad orders for repair and emergency work.
> Pig iron production in March was 2,763,563 tons, or 89,147 tons a day, against 2,586,335 tons in the twenty-eight days of February, or 92,369 tons a day. Steel works furnaces fell off 2,557 tons a day from the February rate and merchant furnaces 665 tons a day. On April 1 the daily capacity of the 293 furnaces was 89,915 tons, against 93,086 tons a day for 303 furnaces one month previous.

The Iron Trade Review says:

> Softening pig iron prices, in spite of heavy sales, the revision of the metal schedule of the tariff, and the temporary embarrassment of business in Ohio and Western Pennsylvania as a result of the recent floods are factors of importance in the week's iron and steel trade developments. The recent loss of tonnage due to the idleness of many merchant blast furnaces, contrary to expectation, has not had a steadying effect on the pig iron market. Eastern iron and steel makers are manifesting considerable interest in the revision of the tariff. While blast furnaces and steel works have made wonderful recovery from the effects of the recent high water, the smaller industries are experiencing considerable difficulty in the readjustment of their affairs. The number of blast furnaces banked or blown out during the recent floods in the Central West was sixty-three. The rapidity with which operations were resumed is indicated by the activity of forty-two of these stacks on April 1.

MARCH BUSINESS HALTED.

Volume, However, Was Larger Than in February or January.

The month of March witnessed something like business hesitation, Bradstreet's will say to-day, although the volume of business for which permits were issued was larger than either in January or February.

The total expenditure of 120 cities aggregated $71,121,145, as against $70,589,363 in March last year, and $56,002,485 in February, 1913. There is here shown a gain of 27 per cent. over February, but a gain of only seven-tenths of 1 per cent. over March last year. Of the 120 cities reporting, 68 show gains, while 52 show decreases, as compared with March, 1912. For the first quarter of the current year the expenditures aggregate $186,602,983, a gain of 9.2 per cent., this following a gain in the first quarter of 1912 of only 1.5 per cent. over the like period of 1911.

May to Discuss Auto Laws.

Mitchell May, Secretary of State of New York, will speak before the members of the automobile school of the West Side Y. M. C. A. to-night on "The Automobile Law and Some Proposed Changes."

BUSINESS NOTES.

Business in the import end of the local canned goods market continues satisfactory. The hand-to-mouth style of trading persisted in by buyers is beneficial to the importers at this time, as most of the goods in this line are now scarce.

AMONG THE SHOPS.

Silk gloves for men cost $1 and $1.50 a pair, according to the weight. The $1 quality is preferred as a rule, for it is the lighter. Straw color and canary yellow are the new colors shown, with two shades of motor gray.

Indian mocassins have been adapted to modern requirements, for they are to be had in all sizes for bedroom wear. They are made of the regulation soft leather, and are beaded. From $3.50 to $7.50 a pair is charged for them.

Black surah silk stoles are newly shown. They are lined with soft-toned plaid surah, and are finished with tassels of black silk. They are priced at $6.50.

RUBINO ESTATE INSOLVENT.

By an appraisal filed in the Surrogates' office yesterday the estate of Jacob Rubino, a stock broker, with offices at 3 Broad Street, who died on Sept. 28, 1908, at Hot Springs, Va, is shown to be insolvent. Debts of $1,865,368 are shown, with assets of $832,581. The debts included $42,187 to E. C. Benedict & Co., $5,372 to Charles H. De Witt & Co., $29,464 to F. J. Lismar & Co., $55,243 to the Bank of America, $138,337 to the estate of D. O. Mills, and $1,546,669 to J. B. Haggin.

Under the terms of an agreement with J. B. Haggin, signed in 1900, Mr. Rubino carried on his stock transactions through an account with the broker making himself responsible for all depreciations of the stock and depositing collateral which Haggin was free to dispose of without advertisement at any time when the balance should be overdrawn. In 1908 the joint account with Haggin totaled $1,811,894 on stock transactions and $115,454 on the purchase of property in Sheepshead Bay, L. I. When the panic of 1907 came Mayer & Co., a stock brokerage firm which failed, had a claim against Rubino for $543,587. Mr. Rubino, according to affidavits attached to the appraisal, asked J. B. Haggin to take over this claim, saying that if it were pressed against him he would be ruined. This Haggin did by cancelling part of an account he had with Mayer & Co.

HUDSON TUBES SHOW LOSS.

Deficit Amounts to $74,532—Year's Earnings $5,534,660.

The report of the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad Company for the year ended Dec. 31, issued yesterday, showed a deficit after the payment of charges of $74,532. In the preceding year there was a balance of $8,869, but $640,000 of the interest payments in that year were charged to the construction account.

The company's gross revenue from all sources was $5,334,660 last year, as against $4,639,464 in 1911. Operating expenses and taxes consumed $2,240,255, and interest charges $2,942,196.

Since the close of the fiscal year the Directors have approved a plan for the readjustment of the company's debt. Security holders have already been advised of the details of the proposed plan, and have almost unanimously approved of them. The annual meeting of the company, scheduled for Wednesday, was adjourned for four weeks.

MISSOURI OIL BILL VETOED.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., April 9.—Gov. Major to-day vetoed the bill permitting the Standard Oil Company to continue business in Missouri in spite of the ouster decree of the State Supreme Court. The bill vetoed by the Governor provided that the Standard Oil Company could remain in Missouri by paying triple the license fee required of other foreign corporations. The bill was introduced because of the belief that the little town of Sugar Creek, where there is a large oil refinery, would be put out of existence if the Standard Oil Company were kept out of the State. The State Supreme Court now has under consideration a petition for rehearing of the ouster decree.

It is signed by District Supt. Strachan, President of the association, and Lillian I. Powers, the Secretary.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Stokes Family Sells Park Avenue Corner—$425,000 Involved in Big Bronx Deal—Trade in Wellsmore Sale —Important Fulton Street Corner Lease— Long Island City Activity.

Upper Park Avenue, which showed considerable activity for a time last year, furnished a deal of more than ordinary magnitude yesterday in the purchase for investment of the five old apartment houses on the southwest corner of Park Avenue and Ninety-third Street. The property has been owned for many years by Isaac N. Phelps Stokes and other members of the family, and has been held at about $225,000. The buyer is Thomas Woodlock. He contemplates no immediate improvement, intending to hold it as an investment, as he has confidence that that section of the avenue will witness substantial changes with the completion of the Lexington Avenue Subway. It was sold for the Charter Realty Company, of which I. N. Phelps Stokes is President.

Four of the apartment houses face Park Avenue, being 1,172 to 1,178 inclusive, a frontage of 100.8 feet. The fifth house covers the 20-foot plot at 74 East Ninety-third Street, giving a total frontage on the street of 105 feet. Opposite, on the northwest corner, is the old Ursuline Convent plot, purchased a year ago by Robert S. Minturn. Adjoining the plot sold, covering the lower half of the block, is the seven-story Holland Court apartment house, purchased last year by Miss Charlotte S. Baker, a niece of the late John S. Kennedy.

One of the largest Bronx deals that has been closed in some time, and which has the additional interest of a prospective building improvement involving an outlay of about $500,000, has been made by Arnold, Byrne & Baumann, who have sold the five newly-completed five-story apartment houses on the southeast corner of Minford Place and 173d Street for the Soxvale Realty Company to George F. Johnson & Son. Three of the houses, occupying the immediate corner, cover a plot 120 by 100, and the other two, being at 1,547 to 1,551 Minford Place, cover a plot 75 by 100.

In part payment for this property the Johnsons have given the vacant plot on the west side of Seventh Avenue, 150 feet south of Westchester Avenue, having a frontage on Seventh Avenue of 500 feet by 100 deep. Frank Starkman, President of the Soxvale Realty Company, intends to begin the construction at once on the site of twelve five-story apartment houses. The entire deal represents property valued at about $425,000, and the buildings to be erected will cost close to $500,000 additional.

Sale of Wellsmore Involved Trade.

Mrs. Louise Livingston is the buyer of the twelve-story Wellsmore apartment house, on the southeast corner of Broadway and Seventy-seventh Street, sold by Bing & Bing, Tuesday. The sale involved a trade, and in part payment the buyer gave the southwest corner of Seventh Avenue and Fiftieth Street, 41.6 by 90, a four-story building known as 756 and 758 Seventh Avenue, part of which is now occupied by the Garden Restaurant; also the Lenox Court apartment house, at 114 and 116 East Seventy-first Street, on plot 50 by 100, and 706 and 708 West 179th Street, a five-story apartment house, on plot 50 by 92.6. The J. Romaine Brown Company negotiated the transaction.

Buyers For Heights Apartments.

The five-story apartment house 65 Pinehurst Avenue has been sold by Bing & Bing to an out-of-town investor. The structure occupies a plot 46.6 by 111.2 near 181st Street. Slawson & Hobbs were the brokers.

Resale on East 34th Street.

NEWELL REVEALS HUSSEY'S BRIBERY

TO ASK NEW INDICTMENTS

Conspiracy Charge Against Sweeney, Murtha, Thompson, and Hussey—To Change Graft Trial Plans.

Edward J. Newell, the lawyer and confessed agent in a plan to keep George A. Sipp, exposer of the police graft system, out of the State, has been caught red-handed in an attempt to "double cross" District Attorney Whitman. The man who brought him to bay was Mr. Whitman himself, and the incident, it was admitted yesterday, constituted the most dramatic triumph in the District Attorney's career. Through the frustration of Newell's plan of deception ex-Inspectors Hussey, Sweeney, Murtha, and Thompson are facing additional indictments charging a conspiracy to obstruct justice, and at least one of these police officials, ex-Inspector Hussey, is for the first time directly connected with the Sipp bribe fund. Five indictments are expected to-morrow.

When Sipp told how the "system" had paid him nearly $1,000 to remain out of the State, one of the first men he implicated in his story was Newell. This same lawyer had been previously mentioned by ex-Capt. Walsh in his confession, and the District Attorney, by Sipp's corroboration, knew that he was on the real trail which led to police corruption in Harlem. Newell was indicted on two charges, one a misdemeanor, the other a felony. Finally he agreed to plead guilty to the misdemeanor with the understanding that he would receive immunity from future prosecution.

Mr. Whitman met him half way. All that he wanted from the grafters' go-between, he told him, was the truth about the ex-Inspector's complicity in the Sipp fund. Newell promised faithfully to tell everything and to tell nothing but the truth. Knowing the man thoroughly, however, Mr. Whitman reserved for himself a stiff upper hold. Over the head of Newell he suspended the indictment charging a felony.

"If you slip up anywhere in your confession," the District Attorney warned Newell, "I'll send you to prison for ten years."

Newell Protected Hussey.

All worked very well at first. Beginning about ten days ago Newell came regularly to the District Attorney's office to tell of the Sipp bribery fund. Each day he added a new chapter, but not once did he involve the name of ex-Inspector Hussey beyond admitting that he had had dinner with Hussey on Dec. 29 in a Brooklyn café. In this connection he insisted that Hussey had talked with him about the Sipp case, but that Hussey had had nothing to do with raising the bribery fund. Hussey, he explained, was his very good friend, and they were merely dining together for old time's sake.

Mr. Whitman realized all the time that Newell was not telling the truth, but he could not break Newell's stand. Last Friday the oral confession of Newell was completed and Newell told the District Attorney that he would bring to him on Tuesday a formal and complete typewritten confession. Mr. Whitman said he would be pleased to accept such a statement.

"I am going out on Long Island with my wife over the week-end," Newell volunteered before leaving the Criminal Court Building. "I'll have the statement ready for you on Tuesday, all right."

Mr. Whitman quickly sensed trouble. He knew that ex-Inspector Hussey lived at Oceanside, L. I., and the place where Newell said he would go, Mr. Whitman recalled, was not far from Oceanside. He then and there hit upon the idea of sending a detective to follow Newell. This foresight, it later developed, proved of great value to Mr. Whitman.

On Tuesday afternoon Newell appeared at the Criminal Court Building with his typewritten confession, about twenty-five pages long. Mr. Whitman was there and so were Sipp, Sipp's son, Howard, and Mrs. Sipp, as well as Assistant District Attorney Groehl. Mr. Whitman glanced through the confession and then addressed Newell:

A hot argument ensued which could be heard in the outer corridors of Mr. Whitman's office. The voices of Sipp and Newell could be heard above all the others. Sipp insisted that Newell knew much more than he had related in his confession, and the District Attorney reminded Newell of his pledge to tell all the truth.

Whitman Breaks Down Newell.

Newell paced madly back and forth in Mr. Whitman's office, daring all present to "force" him "to tell a lie." He bolted for the door and said that he was through for the day.

"You'll see me to-night at my house," Mr. Whitman shouted after Newell.

"I say you will," answered the District Attorney. "You'll be there at 7:15 o'clock or I'll know the reason why."

Newell, it is said, left the Criminal Court Building in a state of anger, but in the evening he did show up at District Attorney Whitman's house. His counsel, ex-Judge W. M. K. Olcott, was not with him.

Mr. Whitman was alone. He had longed to see Newell alone. Newell's father was a good friend of Mr. Whitman. They served together on the House Committee of the Republican Club, and also on the Lincoln Dinner Committee. The son, to be sure, had drifted from the Republican party into Tammany Hall circles, but Mr. Whitman was ready to assure Newell of every reasonable advantage in return for the carrying out of the pledge to tell the truth. Newell, it developed, however, was in no mood for considering sentimental influences. He openly reasserted that he had told everything, and it was of no use to prod him longer.

Then the storm broke. All that afternoon Mr. Whitman had refrained from telling Newell what he had learned from the detective who had followed him on his trip to Long Island. When persuasion failed Mr. Whitman sprang his climactic [illegible]. He related to Newell how he had been followed to Rockville Centre, L. I., how he had waited there for a stout man to meet him, and how on Sunday this stout man had driven him to Hussey's home near Oceanside; how the skeleton of the typewritten confession was there gone over, and how it had been duly censored and finally approved by Hussey himself.

Indicted Man Surrenders.

Mr. Whitman then gave Newell his final chance. He told him bluntly that he had been caught red-handed in an attempt to "double cross" the District Attorney, and that there would be no further sentimentality about the case. Mr. Whitman referred to the indictment charging a felony and did not mince his words when he asserted that he would bend every effort to have Newell in the Tombs on that charge before another twenty-four hours had passed.

That proved the final blow, for Newell realized that Mr. Whitman was more determined than he had ever seen him before. Mr. Whitman produced pen and paper, and in his presence Newell wrote out the very statements which the District Attorney had sought for months to get. Newell not only involved Hussey in the Sipp bribery, but made him out to be, perhaps, the very ringleader who had planned the whole scheme of Sipp's disappearance as a witness against Patrolman Eugene Fox. He wrote that Hussey had told him on Dec. 29 that he, Hussey, would see that Sipp would get $950 in cash on the following day. He also set forth that he had received the $950 and that he had given the money to Sipp in Newark on Dec. 30.

The New Affidavit.

When the ordeal was finished Newell was a much shaken man. He promised that he would come to the District Attorney's office yesterday and there sign a fuller statement covering the new points which he had admitted. Newell did appear yesterday afternoon. He made his statement, and then swore to it in the form of an affidavit. Here is his statement:

Edward J. Newell, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

I desire to add the following to the statement already made by me to the District Attorney of New York County.

On or about the 26th day of December, 1912, George A. Sipp called at my house in the morning, informing me of the receipt of subpoenas for himself to appear before Magistrate Barlow, and for his son, Howard Sipp, to appear at Police Headquarters.

I have set forth in full in the statement to which I refer the manner and means by which George A. Sipp and his son, Howard Sipp, avoided obeying the said subpoenas, and I have explained how the funds were raised and supplied George A. Sipp for his support during the time he was away from the City of New York, and by reference I desire to make the said statement a part thereof.

On or about Dec. 29, 1912, I telephoned Capt. Hussey. He told me he had some information for me. We made an appointment to meet that evening at Silsbe's Restaurant. I had already on a previous occasion, either the Friday or Saturday before, conferred with Capt. Hussey relative to George A. Sipp. During my conference with Hussey on the 29th I informed him that George A. Sipp was becoming restless, and asked him why the money was not forthcoming as had been agreed upon, and I further asked him if he would see to it that the money should be forthcoming at once. About that time he left the table, saying he would telephone. He came back to the table and said, as I remember: "I will see to it that the money for Sipp is given you to-morrow," after which we left the restaurant together, and came over to Manhattan in the Subway, Capt. Hussey leaving the Subway train at the Grand Central Station.

I received the money, namely, $950, as is set forth in my statement, and in accordance with Capt. Hussey's promise, on the following day, Dec. 30, and gave the amount which was agreed upon to George A. Sipp in the City of Newark on the same day, between 11 P. M. and midnight.

EDWARD J. NEWELL.

Sworn to before me this 9th day of April, 1913.

JOHN J. BUCKLEY,
Notary Public, New York County.

Indictments for Conspiracy.

With this change in affairs, District Attorney Whitman will ask to-morrow for the indictment on a conspiracy charge of Hussey, Murtha, Sweeney, and Thompson under the section of the Penal Law which makes it a misdemeanor "for two or more persons to commit any act injurious to the public health, to public morals, or to trade or commerce, or for the perversion or obstruction of justice, or of the due administration of laws." In addition, it was learned, Mr. Whitman would ask for an indictment charging bribery of a witness against ex-Inspector Hussey. Hussey has already been indicted for bribery of public officials.

Newell will be the chief witness before the Grand Jury against the inspectors in the new indictment proceedings. It is significant, however, that Newell, in his latest chapter, has directly corroborated the testimony of George A. Sipp, Howard Sipp, Eugene Fox, and Capt. Walsh.

The developments will probably necessitate a complete rearrangement of plans for the trials of the former inspectors. It had been planned to proceed next week with the trials of Patrolman Robinson, Murtha, Sergt. Duffy, and Sweeney. Under the new plan, however, it is probable that the District Attorney will move shortly for the trials of the four inspectors on the conspiracy charges.

The outcome of the Hyde case, it is said, is being carefully watched in relation to the bribery cases against the police officials. One lawyer closely connected with the graft cases said yesterday that he was surprised that District Attorney Whitman had moved for the graft trials before hearing the outcome of the appeal on the Hyde case.

"The cases are exactly similar," said this lawyer. "The graft cases are also similar to the Becker case. The question at issue is whether a man can be convicted on the testimony of an accomplice. In the cases which the District Attorney has worked up against Sweeney and the others, the witnesses for the State are in each case confessed bribe givers. That, we maintain, makes them accomplices if there was any wrongdoing, just as Robin was Hyde's accomplice. It is true that Justice Goff held that Robin was not an accomplice, but it is recalled that he granted immediately a certificate of reasonable doubt. We can also show that a man's family, if the members of the family are co-beneficiaries in the results of bribetaking, may be considered as accomplices."

Such an interpretation of the law, it was pointed out, would exclude the testimony of George A. Sipp, Howard Sipp, and Thomas Dorian, all of whom are working in the interest of the State. At the District Attorney's office it was said in reply to this argument that it would be pointed out that the crimes admitted by the State's witnesses in paying protection money were in each case other than those with which the indicted bribe takers had been charged.

PASTOR ASKS VINDICATION.

But Justice Newburger Said the Rev. J. Hervey Must Wait His Turn.

Supreme Court Justice Newburger refused yesterday to put on the preferred calendar a $25,000 libel suit brought by the Rev. Joseph L. Hervey against Alvin B. Leavitt and other members of the Washington Heights Presbyterian Church. Mr. Hervey resigned from the pastorate of the church after six years' service.

An untrue story about him had been instigated by Leavitt and some members of the congregation, he alleged, as part of a campaign for his removal, [illegible] (N. Y.) United Presbyterian Church. He is now pastor of the Church of the Open Door, Brooklyn.

TAXICAB BANDITS REHEARSED CRIMES

LEADER AND MEN CONFESS

All the secrets of the taxicab bandits and their bold exploits were disclosed yesterday in a detailed confession by Joseph Taylor, whose real name is Joseph Young, to Assistant District Attorney Charles F. Bostwick, corroborated by confessions from five other members of the gang.

Young made his confession, which covered forty-six full typewritten pages, before a stenographer and witnesses. He pleaded guilty to robbery in the second degree before Judge Foster, and the other bandits became panic-stricken and offered pleas of guilty also. They reported twenty taxicab robberies within one year and said the gang numbered about eighteen men and was divided into three groups.

Those pleading guilty were Joseph O'Connell, assault in the first degree; Benjamin Gold, assault in the second degree; Frank Jerrie, attempted assault in the second degree; Young and Charles F. Lober, robbery in the second degree. The first four confessed to holding up Otto Hardwich, a restaurant keeper, at 432 East Ninth Street, on March 22. Another member of the gang, Samuel Goldstein, refused to plead, but made a statement in which he said that he had simply driven the automobile for the bandits. Taylor and Lober pleaded guilty to holding up Albert Newman, a cafékeeper of 44 Reade Street.

The bandits admitted holding up John Popper, head of the firm of Popper & Gray, dealers in cheese at 411 East Seventeenth Street, on Sept. 23 and stealing $922; Edward Wider, a messenger for the Silk Finishing Company of 33 Bethune Street, robbed of $1,198 on Sept. 21; the Douglas shoe store, Broadway and Fourteenth Street, robbed in December, as well as other robberies of minor importance. The District Attorney is also investigating the report that the gang can shed further light upon the murder and robbery of Jacob Stern in Jacob Jacoby's jewelry store, at Thirteenth Street and Sixth Avenue, on July 22, 1911, a crime for which Martin Garvey was tried and acquitted.

Young's confession is the most complete, and, if true, he is a remarkable criminal. Young says that he is a college graduate and comes from a very good family, and has considerable money, which comes to him at odd periods from a trust fund. This is known to be true by Mr. Bostwick, who has found Young's relatives, but will not make them known.

Once a Model Young Man.

Young says that up to six years ago he was a model young man, and at one time sang in the choir of St. Francis Xavier's Church. Six years ago, he says, knockout drops were given to him in a saloon on the west side and he awoke on the river front. He says he did not know his name, but met a woman he had previously met, and she told him that his name was Young. He insisted that it was Taylor. He complained to this woman that his head was feeling badly, and she suggested that he smoke opium. He accompanied her to her flat, where he remained for ten days smoking opium. He then left her and began his career as a taxicab bandit. He is now taking 22 grains of opium a day.

In describing the gang which he headed, he said it was divided into three parts. One was made up of Patrick Bolger, George McVetty, Robert McVetty, and Charles Clark, who are to be placed on trial before Judge Foster to-day. Another unit was composed of the men who pleaded guilty yesterday, and the third was made up of Lober and himself. He gave the names of numerous other members of the gang, who are not yet under arrest.

Anyone who came along and made known his intention of becoming a taxicab robber got a try-out. Sometimes they stole an automobile to commit their crimes, again they would get a chauffeur to drive them, and on other occasions they got the owner of the automobile to join them. In the last case they, as a rule, disposed of the automobile in New Jersey, and reported that it had been stolen, in order that the owner might collect his insurance money. He gave the name of one man who was accepted as a member of the gang simply because he could drive any make of automobile that they might steal.

Before a robbery was committed they always rehearsed their parts. On one occasion when they wanted to rob a jewelry store on Broadway a stool-pigeon reported their intended rehearsal to the police, and sixteen policemen were assigned to watch the store. Nothing happened, and all except two of the policemen were withdrawn. The automobile with the robbers then drove up, but on reflection they decided not to rehearse. On this occasion there were six armed bandits in the automobile.

He Never Hurt Any One.

Once during his confession Mr. Bostwick stopped Young and said:

"Did you ever hurt a man?"

On one occasion, he said, one of the gang reported that his sister was going to get married on the day set for a robbery. This man said he didn't want to go on with the crowd, and Young told him to go home, as he would do the job alone and give him half of the proceeds. This is affirmed by the confession of the other man.

On another occasion, when one of his men weakened, Young said to him:

"Well, you go and get the machine ready for a getaway, and I'll stick up the men and give you the money. You see, I am not married, and you have a wife and two kiddies."

Young told Mr. Bostwick that the bandits went armed with revolvers and iron pipes.

In speaking of the operations of one of the groups, in which Gold and O'Connell acted, Young said they went to a saloon at Avenue A and Fourteenth Street where they obtained a small amount of money. They then went up the avenue, and several policemen emptied their revolvers at their speeding automobile, but were unable to stop it.

In speaking of the Newman case Young laughed, because the joke was on him. He said he had watched Newman for some time and had at last entered his saloon and seen a sign saying that checks would not be cashed. He therefore figured that Newman must have a large amount of money and these suspicions were confirmed to his mind when he noticed that on every Tuesday and Friday Newman took a suitcase home with him.

Stolen Satchel Empty.

He watched Newman for ten weeks, and finally communicated with Lober, and the latter stole a large green touring car. They drove to the Bronx, and changing the number of the car painted it red. They then watched Newman leave his saloon and driving along after him waited until they reached 144th Street and Eighth Avenue, where Lober jumped from the car, and striking Newman a vicious blow with a section of pipe snatched the suitcase and returned to the car. They then sped away, and opened the bag to find that it contained a roll of paper and a fish sandwish. Subsequently they learned that Newman never carried any money, and used the suitcase to carry linen to and from his saloon.

The particular crime for which Bolger, McVetty and his brother and Clark are indicted was committed the night of Jan. 25, when Patrick J. McDermott's saloon, 351 West Seventeenth Street, was robbed. The bandits entered with drawn revolvers, rifled the pockets of everyone and the cash register.

Young denies that he or any member of his gang ever took part in any of the numerous cigar store robberies.

FIGHT WITH CIRCUS LIONESS

One of the liveliest chapters in the history of chiropody was written yesterday morning when the Barnum & Biley veterinaries realized that the time had come for an operation on the fierce and sensitive claws of Princess, the tawny, sombre lioness, late of Africa, and now stopping in the basement of Madison Square Garden.

It is unwise to trifle with Princess when she is in her laziest and sunniest mood. Following an accumulation of several days of acute pain, she was anything but sunny yesterday and her keepers had been noticing that she was as nervous as a witch.

John Patterson, who rules over all the animals in the circus except Harry Mooney's elephants, knew that the lioness was suffering from the homely trouble of ingrowing claws, and that, ticklish as the job would be, those claws would have to be removed.

The hour selected was 11 o'clock, with plenty of time left before the doors would have to open to admit the afternoon crowd. All the surgical staff of the circus gathered around Princess's cage. First they thrust a six-by-three scantling through the cage to pin her in the corner, and then they dropped a noose of rope over her angry head. The lioness was furious. With one blow of her paw she smashed the stout piece of wood as if it had been a match. They tried another scantling, and that was soon splintered.

But, although they didn't last long, they lasted long enough to allow the men to slip ropes about her head and body, and these were finally in such position as to allow them to draw her firmly against the bars. As her feet were thrust forth for fight they were seized by the men outside, and at last Princess was held tight and firm. At the signal the menagerie chiropodist worked as fast as he knew how, and the job was done.

Elephants, deer, and monkeys are very docile under the surgeon's hands, but the lions and tigers are suspicious and resentful. Mooney has no trouble in tending his elephants when they go on the sick list. It is only when they are mentally ailing, when they are jealous or low in their mind, that the big jungle beasts are hard to handle.

Duchess, for instance, was the most tractable of patients the other day when the doctors took her in hand for her rheumatism. Mooney prescribed what she should do and have, and she was very acquiescent. Duchess even consented to be swathed in bandages so cumbersome that they ruined her personal appearance of which, it is believed, she is excessively proud. Duchess even suffered the doctor to take her temperature every day, though she must have thought this a senseless proceeding.

Captive elephants have to have their big feet cared for continually. For lack of exercise their pads often fail to wear to the desirable thinness. The pedicurist goes at them with rasps, knives, and sandpaper, and the members of the Mooney herd do no more than trumpet irritably while he is at work.

ART NOTES.

The various collections now on view at the American Art Galleries include some interesting paintings. There are two Corots, the larger a characteristic river scene with the long horizontal lines that lend peace to his composition emphasized and a soft gray sky in which the whites of the clouds have yellowed a little. The picture is recorded in Robaut's book on Corot, and is a very ingratiating example of the master's most tranquil manner. Even the inevitable red in the dress of a peasant is subdued to the gray tonality. The smaller Corot is lighter and more silvery, and is painted with a touch that hardly grazes the canvas.

Among the other French paintings are two by Fromentin, the smaller beautiful with the sensitive glazings which the artist used with an artistic tact hardly appreciated by his critics; the larger less interesting—a "Horse Market in Algeria," almost too big in scale to afford the best opportunity for Fromentin's powers, which lay in the direction of precious rather than bold methods of execution.

There is a portrait signed "Chardin" of the Marquis de Launay, last Governor of the Bastile, as a young man with sensitive aristocratic features and steady eyes, a delightful and sympathetic portrait. A nude figure by Bouguereau represents a blond young woman holding a conch shell to her ear listening to its music. The picture hangs near the steam radiator, and on these chilly April days the steam from time to time gives a very creditable imitation of the shell's purring song.

A brisk note is struck by Sorolla's "Child on Beach," the bare legs of the sturdy youngster showing copper-colored in the strong sunlight. Gerome's "Lion Looking for Prey" is exceedingly dramatic in composition and color. There is the sprightliest of Boldini landscapes sparkling and dexterous, and withal amazingly true to nature in one of her brilliant moods in France. In striking contrast to the magnetic quality of this landscape is the slower pulse of the Norwegian Thaulow, who is extremely well represented. There is a "Temple of the Winds" given to Velasquez in which it is difficult to dscover that artist's hand, and there is a "Virgin and Child," a charming little group, given to Mabuse which stops this side of convincing authority. A fine old head belongs to the School of Rembrandt, and a rather sentimental St. Cecilia to the Spanish school.

Among the American pictures the portrait of Gen. Henry Knox as he looked in his prime, wearing his Continental uniform, will excite most interest. The portrait is stated in the catalogue to carry with it authentication based on personal knowledge and embodied in an affidavit, its story dating from the Knox home at Thomaston, Me., when in possession of the General's daughter. It is a sturdier soldier, and in many respects a finer piece of portraiture than Stuart often achieved, having no suggestion of his gayety of mood which lapsed easily into irresponsibility.

PINKERTON AGENT TRAPPED MULRANEY

Knew Mulraney in Sing Sing and Talked Over the Murder of McBreen with Him, He Tells Rosalsky.

Evidence that John Mulraney took part in the murder of Patrick McBreen, despite his claim of innocence, was given before Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions yesterday by Mordecai Saltzman, a secret agent in the employ of the Pinkerton Detective Agency, who says that it was through his investigation that the arrest of Mulraney was brought about, and the confession alleged to have been obtained from him made possible.

Saltzman is the "Salty" referred to at different times by the witnesses appearing in the present hearing and by those who appeared during Mulraney's trial. It had always been believed that "Salty" was a criminal and the warm personal friend of Mulraney and John Dowling. It therefore created quite a sensation in court yesterday when a quiet-mannered little man took the witness chair, and, taking some memoranda from his pocket, said that he was "Salty" and could shed considerable light on the Mulraney case.

Saltzman was pardoned by Gov. Dix while serving a term in Sing Sing for forgery. He was at once employed by the Pinkerton Agency, and at the time of the murder of Patrick McBreen he was out looking for evidence against some forgers who were later arrested. He stumbled, quite by accident, upon Mulraney, Dowling, and Fay, and obtained from Mulraney's own lips admissions of guilt which were reported each day to the Pinkerton Agency. He was arrested with the defendants after he had sent word to the police, and while in the cell with him obtained further admissions of guilt from Mulraney. All of this testimony, it is said, will be corroborated by officials of the Pinkerton Agency, who will bring to court to-day the official reports of their agents.

It is the first time in the history of the Criminal Court Building that a secret agent for any detective agency has testified in court, as these men simply report their findings and leave the binding of the case against the criminal whose arrest they have brought about to the regular detectives.

The witness said:

"My employers had sent me out to obtain evidence against a gang of forgers operating against the New York Central Railroad, and on Oct. 4 I met Mulraney in Sweeney's saloon and he said: 'I have blackjacked a politician.' This was after he had spoken to me. He knew me because we had been prisoners in Sing Sing together. He said the fellow he blackjacked was in the hospital and would die, and that he wanted to go away from the city, and intended to go to Hartford, Conn.

"On Oct. 7 I saw Dowling, and he said that he was with Mulraney at the time they did a fellow up, and showed me a newspaper clipping containing an account of the murder of Paddy the Priest (McBreen) and said: 'That's the fellow we done up.' On Oct. 10 I met Fay and Mulraney, and Mulraney showed me a newspaper clipping about Paddy the Priest's murder also. He said: 'The fellow died who we done up.' I said: 'My God, wasn't that foolish?' And Mulraney said: 'When I was young I got struck on the head and when I get mad I get crazy, and he deserved to die, for he owed me $50. When he didn't pay I done him up.' Fay then said he was with Mulraney and Dowling, and that he got lost on the way to McBreen's."

This testimony corroborates that given at Mulraney's trial, where it was shown that Fay and Mulraney went to a fire on Tenth Avenue, and that Fay got lost at the fire and did not rejoin his companions.

"Yes," replied the witness, "I saw him later on, and he asked me if I couldn't give him some money, and I gave him $2 and he said: 'For God's sake make it five, will you? If you were in trouble I would give you all I had.' I saw him again on Oct. 10, and went to his home, and we spoke of Paddy the Priest, and he showed me a small revolver, and said: 'If they try and get me I'll blow their heads off.' I saw him again on Oct. 13, and he was with Fay and Dowling. I invited them to have a drink, and we went into Sweeney's saloon. I excused myself for a moment, and telephoned to the Pinkerton Agency and said I had the murderers of Paddy the Priest with me, and for them to send a man up at once. They did so, and he came in while we were drinking. I gave him the signal, and he signaled that he would go out, and for me to keep the three with me. I then left the saloon, accompanied by Dowling, Fay, and Mulraney, and when we got to Park Avenue Detective Barber and some others came up and placed us all under arrest.

"We were taken at once to the West Forty-seventh Street Station and two men came in to make identifications. The first one said he had been present in McBreen's saloon at the time of the murder but that none of us were there. The second said he had been there also and looked at Mulraney but would not identify him absolutely. We were then locked in a cell together. While here Mulraney said that after he had killed Paddy the Priest he went with Dowling to a cellar under a tailor shop and that he had left some paper he tore from a memorandum book there. He said that the police had this paper and that it would be all day with him if they could show it was his."

When the witnesses were allowed to go Judge Rosalsky ordered the court attendants to keep the door locked and not to allow any one to leave the room. Detective Barber was also instructed to accompany Saltzman, and Mr Rubin said that he would have the witness leave the city should any attempt be made to injure him in any way.

Detective Barber was also called and said that Mulraney had repeated his confession of guilt before witnesses and that before he signed it he saw its contents. He denied that Mulraney was under the influence of drugs but admitted to Mr. Shay that Mulraney had often asked for morphine.

An exceptional purchase of twenty-five patterns enables us to make an extraordinary offer. Ordinarily we would be forced to sell these suits at $25 to $30. A millman made us a low-down price. We pass the bargain on to you. $30 would be a fair price. Most tailors would ask $40. Call before they are gone. We can't send samples; these goods will go too quickly.
Suit to Measure, $20.
